Plant Seizure Bill Debate Prevented In Senate

Balked, Connally Warns War 'Won't Wait' for Industry, Labor to Agree

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Blocked in an effort to call up his antistrike plant seizure bill, Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, yesterday told the Senate that "the war won't wait" on voluntary agreements between industry and labor to cease interruption in production.

Connally, who failed to gain recognition on a motion to call up his bill, clashed with Senate Majority Leader Barkley, who cautioned against hasty action.

Barkley flatly opposed any labor legislation at this time. He said "more can be accomplished by voluntary cooperation than by compulsion," and declared the Connally bill would be used as a vehicle for a 40-hour week suspension rider.

Racketeering Charges Heard

With House hearings on the Smith-Vinson bill to curb profits and lengthen working hours in Easter recess for two weeks, the Senate heard charges of "racketeering" by both business and labor elements on war contracts, and a claim that while strikes have declined many "slow-downs" are impeding production.

Connally, angered because his "seize-freeze" bill met leadership opposition, warned the Senate that if it failed to face the problem of disturbed labor conditions in war industries, "somebody else is going to bring it up in the forum called the ballot box."

"I'm not threatening anybody," the Texan said. "I'm not a candidate. I'm trying to save some of these boys that are."

He said that "the war isn't waiting—the war isn't being postponed until we settle these questions."

Calls for Courage

"Talk about courage," he shouted. "It looks to me like the Senate ought to have courage enough to face some of these questions."

Connally's bill, favorably reported by the Judiciary Committee last December, gives the President power to take over war plants if work is interrupted by either labor or management. Labor relations in such plants, except wages, would be frozen for the duration. A special board would be created to make wage adjustments.

Earlier, Senator Reed (Republican), of Kansas, in a call for Senate action on his bill to prohibit union membership requirements on war projects, charged that workers on defense jobs have been forced to pay $30,000,000 in fees to labor unions.

He asked the Judiciary subcommittee to investigate his allegations of "scandals" in unions in certain

Sayre Releases Names of 1500 Held in Manila

Francis B. Sayre, high commissioner to the Philippines, yesterday released the names of more than 1500 persons, mostly Americans, interned in Manila, and said that the International Red Cross was attempting to secure the appointment of a Swiss citizen to act as its representative there.

Information obtained by such a representative, he explained, would be forwarded to the next of kin by the information bureau of the Army Provost Marshal's Office.

Sayre said the list of persons interned in Manila could not be guaranteed as to accuracy and that it did not contain the names of all the Americans who were there at the outbreak of the war.

Couple Convicted Of Beating Teacher

Lafayette, Ind., March 30 (AP).—A jury tonight convicted Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Leslie of assault and battery in the flogging of the pretty 33-year-old school teacher of their son, Danny, 11.

The 11 men and one woman recommended a fine of $200 and sentence of 30 days' imprisonment for each. The teacher, Miss Constance Davis, testified that Mrs. Leslie flogged her with a belt while Leslie stood guard at the door after the Leslies' son had gone home and reported the teacher hit him with a book.

Lew Ayres Sent to Camp For Objectors

LEW AYRES

By Frederick C. Othman,
United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, March 30.—Lew Ayres, the movie star who made his greatest hit in "All Quiet on the Western Front," cinematic preachment against war, left Hollywood tonight in the upper berth of a tourist sleeper for a conscientious objectors' camp at Cascade Locks, Oreg. Ayres eluded curious Hollywoodians by boarding the Southern Pacific train at San Fernando, Calif., a flag stop in the Los Angeles suburbs.

War, he told his selective service board, was as abhorrent to him in real life as it was upon the screen nearly 15 years ago. He told officials of the board that he could not conscientiously shoulder arms for his country. They assigned him to leave for the camp on the

Housewives Denied New Appliances, To Conserve Metal

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

In a dozen drastic orders, all testifying to deepening raw material shortages, the War Production Board yesterday slashed at the use of metals in hundreds of civilian and household commities, ranging from zippers to lawn mowers, percolators to caskets.

In the most sweeping of the regulations, the WPB forbade the manufacture after May 31 of almost every household electrical device. The only exceptions of major importance were vacuum cleaners, fans, heating pads and record-players, most of which have been or will be curtailed under other orders.

In a concurrent move, the WPB forbade the use of copper and its alloys and restricted the use of steel, zinc alloys in the manufacture of zippers, hooks and eyes, brassiere hooks, snap fasteners and other garment closures. The order is effective tomorrow and is expected to save 8000 tons of copper annually.

Gold, Silver Caskets Permissible

The order affecting caskets and burial vaults curtailed the use of iron and steel and prohibited the use of all other metals except gold and silver. The order is expected to save 50,000 tons of iron and steel as well as substantial quantities of bronze, copper, zinc and lead formerly used in burial hardware.

In another order, largely technical, changes were made in regulations governing the use of crude rubber and latex, which are designed to save more than 100 tons of the precious Far Eastern com-

Deduct Big Doctor Bills, Tax Aide Asks

Treasury Official Also Advises Listing College Students Up To 21 as Dependents

By Roger Tatarian
United Press Staff Writer

The Treasury urged Congress yesterday to lighten the income tax load on citizens who pay "extraordinary" medical bills and on parents who finance the college education of children between the ages of 18 and 21.

Randolph Paul, Treasury tax adviser, told the House Ways and Means Committee, which is considering the proposed new $7,600,000,000 revenue bill, that past increases in levies have rendered some exemptions and credits "inadequate." The projected increases, he intimated, would heighten these inadequacies.

Joint Returns Favored

He said, however, that the Treasury has not changed its position in insisting that husbands and wives be required to file joint income tax returns. As a concession to foes of the proposal, Paul recommended that in families where the wife is employed, an additional credit equal to 10 per cent of her earnings but not to exceed $100, be allowed.

A similar credit, he said, should be allowed to the widowed mother who employs outside help to care for her children.

Paul did not submit an estimate of revenue losses from these credits, but it was noted that in each instance he emphasized the need of imposing ceilings over the recommended credits.

Ceilings on Credits Suggested

He told Representative Wesley E. Disney (Democrat), Oklahoma, he did not believe that medical bills below $500 or in excess of $2500 should be allowed as a credit. He is understood to have favored this limitation on incomes of all sizes.

Family medical expenses are not deductible under the present law. A major operation in one year may consume a large portion of a taxpayer's income, but he still has to pay taxes on this money, which he no longer has, when income tax day rolls around.

Not only are medical expenses not deductible, but a family in which a child is born midway in a calendar year can deduct only half of the $400 exemption allowed for a dependent.

Paul would correct the present statutes which hold that a child of 18 no longer can be regarded as a dependent and that the $400 dependency allowance must not be claimed by the parent taxpayer. He recommened that boys and girls in college be considered dependents until they have passed their twenty-first birthday.

Capital Tax Defended

The Treasury's proposed 30 per cent tax on short-term capital gains—profits derived from the sale of securities at a higher price than they were purchased—was defended by Paul as equitable. A long list of witnesses before the committee has contended that present capital gains taxes are slowing the flow of money into new industrial enterprises.

There has been consistent support for a bill introduced by Representative Patrick J. Boland (Democrat), Pennsylvania, to tax both long and short term capital gains at 10 per cent. Paul said enactment of this bill would "result in loss of revenue and facilitate tax avoidance."

Countless Helping Hands

Many Private Agencies Here Guide Steps of Businessmen

By Bill Brinkley
Post Staff Writer

In addition to at least eight Federal information services that provide the type of help to businessmen and others proposed for the fast-growing OGR colossus at Fourteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, there are a number of private ones.

One of the most noticeable of the latter is the service operated by the United States Chamber of Commerce at 1615 H Street Northwest, a few minutes' walk from the Pennsylvania Avenue structure that Lowell Mellett and his Office of Government Reports is eager to occupy when it is finished.

The chamber's service is available, without charge, to any businessman, and is not limited to members of the chamber. It is keyed around nine organized departments devoted to major lines of business: Agriculture, construction, merchandise, finance, foreign commerce, insurance, manufacture, natural resources and transportation and communication.

Each department, according to chamber officials, is headed by a full-time salaried manager who is an expert in the field and has had long contact with officials directing the war program. Each department can tell the businessman exactly where he needs to go, if anywhere. The departments even help the businessman to make appointments.

Japanese Reform Ranks, Press On; Nips Use Poison Gas on Chinese

By International News Service

Mandalay, Burma (Tuesday), March 31.—Counterattacking British tanks were reported today to have thrown back 10,000 Japanese troops in western Burma, while reinforcements were rushing down the Mandalay Road to aid a Chinese division battling superior enemy forces at Toungoo.

On the western side of the battle-front across central Burma, the British tanks were said to have charged down the Irrawaddy River to surprise two Japanese columns moving north to attack Gen. H. R. L. G. Alexander's British Imperial lines defending Prome.

The British armored units opened the counter-assault Sunday near the village of Paungde, 30 miles south of Prome, and the Japanese rushed tanks of their own up to the scene to cope with this challenge.

Japs Reform and Press North

After a heavy battle lasting two days and one night, the British tanks drove back the enemy's spearhead units, according to advices reaching Mandalay this morning.

The Japanese, however, were said to have reformed their broken ranks and resumed their northward pressure, only to encounter further stubborn resistance by British tank and imperial infantry forces determined to thwart the enemy's effort to reach Burma's rich oil fields and the land route to India.

Meanwhile, the Chinese division at and around devastated Toungoo fought off repeated new assaults by at least two Japanese divisions, supported by artillery and dive bombers.

Foe Uses Poison Gas

This battle at close quarters raged into its sixth day this morning under an unseasonal tropical rain that failed to quench its fury. While holding on tenaciously to the eastern half of Toungoo, the Chinese counterattacked north of the city to regain the Kyungon Airdrome, Nangyun and four villages, slaying hundreds of Japanese, capturing considerable booty and frustrating a second enemy attempt to encircle Toungoo.

A communique relayed from Chungking charged that the Japanese had begun using poison gas in a desperate effort to overcome obstinate Chinese resistance.

The Chinese, however, "anticipated" the gas attacks, which they

1500 Nazis Slain In Renewed Drive; Pressure Resumed At Both Ends of Line

By International News Service

Moscow (Tuesday), March 31. A renewed Soviet offensive on the central front west of Moscow was reported early today to have resulted in recapture of 20 additional villages in a wide area of Smolensk Province and the killing of 1500 Germans.

This drive coincided with resumption of heavy pressure by the Red army, with the support of fliers of the Soviet naval air arm, against the enemy anchors on the Baltic and Black Sea flanks of the long front.

In the north the Leningrad front once more flared into sanguinary fighting as Russian armored forces sought to extend the salient they pushed into the Nazi lines across the Volkhov River, north of Novgorod, last week.

The midnight Soviet communique related that 2500 Germans were "wiped out" in only two days of relentless combat on the Leningrad front. Naval air pilots of the Soviet Baltic fleet have "annihilated hundreds of Germans," it was announced.

Swooping low over the hard-pressed German lines around Leningrad, the naval fliers also were credited with demolishing "a large number" of German tanks, trucks and other vehicles, as well as 16 mine throwers.

The announcement said that the Soviet Black Sea fleet's air arm went into action over the Crimea, battering the Nazi lines north of the Sevastopol naval stronghold and shooting down seven German planes in one contest.

In the eastern Ukraine, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's forces were reported closing around the flanks of Kharkov and intensifying their pressure on that German-held metropolis.

(A Stockholm dispatch reported heavy fighting before Kharkov but said there was no confirmation from Moscow of a Vichy broadcast that the Red army had completely encircled the city.)

The trapped German Sixteenth army in the Staraya Russa zone below Lake Ilmen was still counter-attacking desperately. Strong counterblows were acknowledged in other sectors as well.

India's Hindus Balk at British Ruling Defense

Their Party Reserves Formal Decision on Cripps' Offer, However

By the United Press

New Delhi, March 30.—A majority of the All-India Congress Party's working committee, representing the dominant Hindu faction, is ready to reject Britain's self-government offer because it does not give India enough control over her war efforts, it was learned tonight.

Unless a loophole could be found in the statement made yesterday by Sir Stafford Cripps, the British war cabinet's negotiator, that the plan would have to be accepted or rejected without any changes, some circles believed his mission was approaching an unsuccessful end.

(A Bombay dispatch to the London Daily Mail said, however, that Jawaharlal Nehru, leader of the party, had aligned himself with Sir Stafford.

("Nehru is concentrating his efforts on swinging the congress working committee over to the scheme," the Daily Mail said. "Five members are siding with him. Seven still are believed to be definitely opposed to the scheme.")

Nazi Navy Attacks Arctic Arms Convoy

Freighter Sunk, British Cruiser Hit, Berlin Says; Admits Loss of Destroyer

By the Associated Press

London, March 30.—The Germans claimed destruction of a Murmansk-bound transport laden with tanks and munitions today at a cost of a Nazi destroyer sunk in a convoy attack which may have been the first big-scale sea and air battle for command of the Allied Far Northern route to Russia.

Official London was silent on this German report, which said a British cruiser was torpedoed, but in its own offensive against the Germans in the north the air ministry announced R. A. F. patrol planes torpedoed and probably sank a German supply ship and set another afire last night in operations off the Norwegian and Danish coasts. Torpedoes were aimed at two other Nazi vessels, but the results were not determined.

Attack in Blizzard

The Germans said their combined sea and air attack, apparently in the Arctic off North Cape, occurred during a dawn blizzard a day after Nazi airmen had pounced on the same convoy and damaged four merchantmen and a British destroyer.

For some time the British have expected a determined Nazi effort to cut the Allied route to Murmansk, informed circles said, because the Germans are beginning to feel the sharp effect of United States and British supplies reaching Murmansk. Today's Berlin reports, they added, may signal the opening of this struggle.

Today's German communique said that destroyers were the only Nazi surface craft involved in the attack on the Allied convoy, which it described as protected by "superior enemy forces of cruisers and destroyers."

Torpedo's Effect Not Observed

It said the effect of the torpedo hit on the British cruiser could not be observed due to the weather.

[A United Press dispatch said the admiralty announced tonight that the British light cruiser Naiad has been sunk, but it did not say where or when. The Germans claimed the cruiser they torpedoed in the Arctic was of the 10,000-ton Southampton class. The Naiad was a 5450-ton vessel, launched in 1939, and a member of the Dido class.]

The Germans reported further that a great part of the sunken Nazi destroyer's crew was picked up by other German craft and that survivors of one Allied ship besides those of the 10,000-ton transport claimed sunk also were rescued. This second Allied ship was one of the four claimed hit in the previous aerial attack.

Then Came the Deluge

By the United Press

Gen. MacArthur's Headquarters in Australia (Tuesday), March 31.—Allied air superiority, firmly established by the return of Australian pilots from the Libyan war, and a 40-inch deluge in the Markham Valley of New Guinea have combined to throw the Japanese on the defensive over Australia's northern approaches, it was revealed today.

Air Minister A. S. Drakeford said American and Australian fliers have crippled more than 10 per cent of Japan's cruiser strength and have knocked out 63 enemy planes in a three-week offensive which definitely has established their superiority over northeastern Australian outposts.

Equipment Believed Washed Away

Port Moresby dispatches said the Markham Valley deluge had driven the Japanese back 27 miles to their beachhead at Lae, cutting short their drive through tropical jungles in the direction of Port Moresby, which could serve them as a springboard for attacking Australia proper.

Persons familiar with New Guinea said the Japanese began their drive too late, as the wet season is beginning north of the Owen Stanley Mountain Range, separating Lae from Port Moresby, and that the entire Markham valley will be under several feet of water for the next four months.

It was believed that the Japanese lost a considerable amount of equipment and stores when the deluge washed them out.

Jap Air Strength Defeated

The area occupied by the Japanese already has become a huge lake, it was reported, and they had to abandon their advance base at Nadzab entirely, along with their plan to build air bases there.

"Without overstressing the importance of the Australian northern front in terms of the war as a whole," Drakeford said, "It can definitely be stated that the success

Senate Approves Big Pay Rises For Service Men

The Senate, by a vote of 74 to 0, yesterday passed and sent to the House legislation granting substantial pay increases to enlisted men and the lowest grade officers in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and other uniformed services.

The measure, sponsored by Senator Ed C. Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, would raise the monthly pay of enlisted men in the Army and Navy in this manner:

Privates and apprentice seamen, from $30 to $42; privates first class and seamen second class, from $36 to $48; corporals and seamen first class, from $54 to $66; sergeants and petty officers third class, from $60 to $78; staff sergeants and petty officers second class, from $72 to $90; first sergeants and petty officers first class, from $84 to $114; and master sergeants and chief petty officers, from $126 to $138.

Corresponding ranks in the Coast Guard and Marine Corps would receive similar raises.

Dies Called Unfair as House Hears Charge Against Nudist

Delights of Life Sans Clothing Read Into Congressional Record

By Lee Carson
International News Service Staff Writer

The writings and adventures of a little man tucked away (fully clothed) in the Board of Economic Warfare has touched off the first Congressional debate on nudism in the history of American legislation.

Originally uncovered by the Dies committee on un-American activities, the controversy over the peeled past of elderly, bespectacled Maurice Parmelee, BEW economist, turned last night into a double-headed drive to purge him from the Government and unseat "at least 35 other" employes on the war board headed by Vice President Wallace.

The storm of protests over the employment of Parmelee broke with all the ferocity that marked the hearings on OCD hiring of "fan dancers." Waving copies of Parmelee's "Nudism in Modern Life" and "The New Gymnosophy," Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, formally put into the House record Dies' letter charging that the scholarly gray-haired economist advocates that "nudism be practiced wherever feasible, in the home, in

No More Imported Cuffs

U. S. Hastily Patches Loophole In New Trousers Regulations

Copyright by Chicago Sun

American and British diplomacy was called on yesterday to solve a weighty matter involving cuffs on men's trousers and double-breasted suits with vests.

The situation arose as War Production Board regulations went into effect restricting the use of wool in American-made suits. The restrictions ban cuffs on men's trousers and vests with double-breasted suits.

It was discovered that loopholes in the regulations permit the importation of ready-made clothing from England with the cherished cuffs and not-so-cherished vests with double-breasted suits.

It was reported to the WPB that certain dealers, specializing in imported clothing, had informed their customers not to worry about cuffless trousers and vestless suits as they would be able to import enough British clothing for them.

While the British have their own restrictive orders on the amount of new wool which may be used in suits and overcoats as well as style restrictions, these restrictions do not apply to garments manufactured for export.

When these facts were pointed out, WPB officials took the matter up with the British Embassy. The Embassy has forwarded a copy of the American restriction to London, together with recommendations that no clothing not conforming to the United States program be shipped to this country.

The so-called American "victory suit," in order beginning today, has only one pair of trousers, no cuffs

Equal Voice Given To Anzacs in War

Pacific Council Set Up To Prosecute Fight From Washington

By Marshall Andrews

Post Staff Writer

Australia and New Zealand were given an equal voice in direction of the war in the Far East yesterday by creation of a Pacific Council to proscute "an effective war" against the Japanese from Washington.

The council, which will meet for the first time tomorrow at the White House, will be composed of representatives of the United States, England, China, Australia, New Zealand, Canada and the Netherlands. Before its formation, the Anzac countries were accorded only a minority voice, as members of a minority in the British imperial war council in London, in the conduct of a war which has come perilously close to their own borders.

They have made no secret of their dissatisfaction with this state of affairs and of their fear that the Allied effort would be directed toward meeting Hitler in Europe to the detriment of a vigorous war in the Pacific. Only two weeks ago Australia sent her minister for external affairs, Herbert Evatt, to Washington to press for larger participation in the conduct of a war so vital to Australian interests.

Joint Action "Imperative"

"It is imperative," President Roosevelt said in announcing formation of the Pacific Council, "that all of the United Nations now actively engaged in the Pacific conflict consider together matters of policy relating to our joint war effort.

"An effective war can only be prosecuted with the complete cooperation and understanding of all the nations concerned. The new council will be in intimate contact with a similar body in London."

It was presumed the President referred to a Pacific Council established in London February 9, on which only England, Australia, New Zealand and the Netherlands were represented.

Creation of the body here was taken to indicate that Washington will become principal headquarters for prosecution of the Pacific war from now on. It was assumed that matters of strategy would remain in the hands of the military and naval men constituting the combined chiefs of staffs, on which at present only the United States and England are represented. Whether other nations engaged in fighting the Japanese in the Pacific would be given representation on this board of strategy was not revealed.

Australia's Wishes Granted

Australia's dissatisfaction with its minority role in conduct of the Pacific war resulted in immediate accession to their request that General Douglas MacArthur be sent to them from the Philippines to assume supreme command in the field in the Australian sector. Mr. Roosevelt gave Australia further assurance of this Nation's intention to support Australia's fight last week when he gave Russia first priority for lend-lease supplies but at the same time promised Australia that the supply of weapons to nations fighting the Japanese would not be curtailed.

Announcement of the Pacific Council was received with satisfaction in Australia, where Prime Minister John Curtin said the Pacific war now "will have its proper place when grand strategy is being decided and Australia will have a proper voice in making those decisions." He said the decision to form the council was "the culmination of prolonged efforts by the Commonwealth government to secure the creation of the machinery for direction of the war and for consultation with those whose fortunes are involved."

President to Represent U. S.

The council, Evatt said here, should "facilitate joint planning for the higher direction of our common war effort." He cautioned, however, that establishment of the body "should not create any false feeling of security."

Dispatches from Ottawa indicated that Canada was prepared to increase her participation in the Pacific war though prior commitments would not permit sending troops to Australia now.

President Roosevelt will represent the United States and Evatt will represent Australia at the first meeting of the council. Other representatives will be Walter Nash, minister of New Zealand to the United States; Lord Halifax, British Ambassador; Dr. T. V. Soong, Chinese foreign minister; Dr. Alexander Loudon, the Netherlands minister, and Hume Wrong, counselor of the Canadian Legation.

For A Year

St. Nazaire Base Ruined, British Say

London, March 30 (U.P.).—The mammoth drydock and submarine base at St. Nazaire probably were put out of commission for a year by the British land, sea and air raid Saturday, and two tankers were trapped inside the destroyed harbor locks, it was revealed tonight.

A British naval officer who was in the action said photographs proved that the harbor's main locks, which keep the water inside from dropping during low tides, was destroyed when the dynamite-laden destroyer Campbeltown rammed it.

The photographs showed no signs of the Campbeltown, formerly the U. S. S. Buchanan, "which probably is partially blocking the entrance below the water," the officer said.

Casualties Fewer Than 100

Official quarters, commenting on German claims that 400 men were killed or captured during the raid, said it was a "gross exaggeration. . . . Even 100 casualties would be an overstatement."

Snitch in Time?

Plymouth, England, March 30 (AP).—Leslie Hore-Belisha, former war secretary, suggested in a speech today the seizure of the French island of Madagascar in the Western Indian Ocean in the name of the Free French. It has been reported Japan will get bases there.

To Save Midnight Oil

Wellesley, Mass., March 30 (INS).—President Mildred H. McAfee, of Wellesley College tonight proposed a three-month winter vacation for college students instead of the usual summer holiday.

The plan, she said, might help the war effort by conserving the college's supply of fuel oil.

Turk Navy Bolstered

New York, March 30 (AP).—The British radio broadcast an Ankara announcement tonight of the arrival in Turkey of a second destroyer built in Britain for the Turkish navy.

The broadcast, heard here by C. B. S., said the warship was turned over to the Turks at Alexandretta this morning.

Democracy at Work

Sydney, Australia, March 30 (AP).—A 23-year-old American millionaire, now a private in the United States Army in Australia, serves as a chauffeur for officers, including a lieutenant who used to be a drug store clerk.

Nazis Operate Radio Station In 'Midwest'

Germany is operating an "underground" broadcasting station which purports to be located in the United States' Midwest and to be operating in defiance of American officials, it was learned yesterday.

The outfit, Station D-E-B-U-N-K, was first heard on the air last week and since has broadcast regularly over shortwave from 8:30 to 9 p. m.

The only thing wrong with its build-up is the fact that DEBUNK's signals were first heard abroad, that simple direction-finding efforts have located it in Europe, and finally, that its broadcasts follow the Berlin shortwave "line' almost word for word.

Other than that, the station is American as all get out. It begins its broadcasts with a few bars of the Star-Spangled Banner, and is conducted by a couple of announcers with Middle West accents. It signs off with "My Country 'Tis of Thee." In between its propaganda it plays hot jazz.

Rural in Tone

Rural in tone, the programs appear to be directed to Midwest audiences. In slangy, colloquial speech, the audience is urged to reclaim from the "Jewish crowd running the show in Washington" the power which they usurped by "un-American" methods.

Violently anti-British, the station argues that American farm boys are being sent to die for the "redcoat snobs," in order to preserve the domination of the international banker groups.

It is fiercely anti-Semitic, anti-Roosevelt, anti-British. It broadcasts that "this is a war we cannot possibly win."

Not Very Subtle

Something less than subtle, the station urges Americans to read the history of the American Revolution in order to realize the barbarity of the British, "who aren't fit to eat slop alongside pigs at a trough," and to agitate against sending the American Army into foreign battlefields.

The broadcasts follow the reports of the official German shortwave so closely that listeners in this country believe the Nazis are making no serious attempt to conceal the fact that the transmitter is, in fact, operated in Germany.

Gehrmann Sees Milk Trust Plot

By the Associated Press

Predicting that milk soon would "flow in the gutters" of producing States for lack of processing facilities, Representative Gehrmann (Progressive), of Wisconsin, suggested in the House yesterday the resignation of Clyde E. Beardslee, head of the War Production Board's dairy division.

The Wisconsin Congressman said the Borden Company listed Beardslee as a vice president and declared that this company with the National Dairy Products, Swift's and Armours constituted a "big four" engaged in building up "complete control of the evaporated milk industry."

When this group heard of the plans to expand facilities, he charged, they "immediately scuttled the program of expansion, regardless of whether it was an integral part of the war effort."

Knox and Aides Give to Navy Relief

Secretary of the Navy Knox and three assistant secretaries of the Navy yesterday went into their pockets to show their feeling for distressed families of America's fighting seamen.

Each made "substantial" contributions to the Navy Relief Society's local ampaign for $750,000, now entering its second week, during a personal call at the Navy Department by George A. Garrett, campaign director here.

The assistant secretaries were James V. Forrestal, Artemus Gates and Ralph A. Bard.

Receiving the contributions, Garrett told the Navy officials that "your checks are a salute to the men on all of the fronts."

The first week's solicitations brought approximately $15,000 to the local fund. The volunteer citizens' committee making the canvas is redoubling its efforts this week to meet the quota. The national goal is five million dollars.

Wainwright Stalls Newest Jap Offensive

By John G. Norris

Post Staff Writer

Those stalwart defenders of Bataan were reported by the War Department yesterday to have stopped Japan's new major offensive dead in its tracks.

Ground fighting on the narrow, rugged peninsula died down Sunday morning, the department said, after the first major enemy assault in weeks was broken and heavy losses inflicted on the Japs.

Nipponese dive bombers continued to hit the front lines and rear areas of Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright's little army and a few planes kept up their round-the-clock assault on Corregidor from a respectful altitude. On the ground, however, action dwindled to skirmishes between patrols.

Heavier Attacks Expected

Military men here have no doubt that Gen. Yamashita will come back with new and even heavier attacks, probably all out assaults from land, sea and air. The attack launched Saturday night probably was an attempt to drive through what the Jap commander thought, mistakenly, was a weak spot in Wainwright's line.

New Antiaircraft Guns

The Army communique reported that a Japanese plane was shot down yesterday from an altitude above 27,000 feet by an antiaircraft gun on Corregidor. This is out of sight from the ground and may set something of a record.

Few planes have been shot down from such a height anywhere in the war to date. It is well beyond the normal effective range of the American Army's 3-inch antiaircraft guns —about 21,000 feet—and close to the extreme range of such weapons.

The Army's newer 90-millimeter and 4.5-inch anti-aircraft weapons have a much greater range than the 3-inch gun. The latter, however, was the standard gun until recently and it is not known whether any of the newer and heavier models are in use in the Philippines.

All three guns are aimed by fire control systems which use both telescopic and sound locating mechanism for shooting at night and at high altitudes. The naked eye rarely can pick up camouflaged planes when above five miles from the ground.

Yamashita now is sending much fewer bombers over Corregidor—in contrast to the opening days of his renewed offensive on the fortress when as many as 54 big new-type craft rained explosives on the island.

He gives the citadel's defenders little rest, however, keeping up the air raids, day and night.

Corregidor's gunners, however, have forced the Jap bombers to fly so high that most of the hundreds of bombs dropped the past week have fallen into the sea.

Yesterday's Army communique, in fact, made the flat statement that "no serious damage had been inflicted on our installations."

The War Department also reported renewed fighting on the southern Philippine Island of Mindanao, with local skirmishes at three areas widely separated from each other.

Communique No. 168

The text of the communique, No. 168 of the war, follows:

"1. Philippine theater: Sharp fighting in Bataan continued throughout the night of March 28, but died down at daybreak of March 29, the enemy's assault having been repulsed with heavy losses. During the past 24 hours the Japanese have made no attempt to attack in force, but patrols have been active on both sides. Enemy dive bombers continued to attack front lines and rear areas.

"Hostile air raids on Corregidor continue day and night, but the number of bombers employed is not large. No serious damage has been inflicted on our installations. An enemy airplane flying at an altitude higher than 27,000 feet was shot down by our antiaircraft artillery.

"In Mindanao there were several local skirmishes between patrols at three widely separated points.

"2. There is nothing to report from other areas."

Virginian on Bataan Carries The War to Enemy's Lines

By Frank Hewlett

United Press Staff Correspondent.

Gen. Wainwright's Headquarters, Bataan, Philippines, March 30.—American artillerymen again have bested the Japanese in a savage duel which resulted in the wounding of Lieut. Col. Lester J. Tacy, of Virginia Beach, Va., after he had exhibited the greatest heroism in attempting to save a brother officer.

Tacy was hit three times but not seriously hurt while personally supervising a front line post where he observed the fire of the United States big guns and enabled them to knock out a number of Japanese batteries.

Despite his wounds Tacy remained at his post for more than 36 hours directing and coordinatng the American fire until the opposing Japanese batteries were put out of action.

When the officer finally returned for a "check-up" doctors found he had been hit in the shoulder by a small caliber rifle bullet, had an earlobe knicked, his stomach "creased," two bullet holes in his helmet and marks on the helmet from two other bullets.

Scalp Massage

Two machine-gun bullets had passed right through the top of his helmet but without so much as scratching his scalp.

Here is Tacy's story, typical of the artillerymen who are doing so much to hold this hard-pressed outpost:

Some time ago Tacy was placed in charge of training green troops in artillery operations, which were becoming increasingly important as the Japanese pressed their attack.

The test for his men came when the Japanese started a strong frontal attack during which, for a time, our men had tough going.

Tacy's artillery wasn't functioning as well as he would have liked because of observation difficulties—our artillerymen have no planes for spotting as have the Japanese.

So the colonel personally took over an important observation post in one of the worst areas, where large numbers of Japanese jungle troops had infiltrated. After reaching his post he phoned back:

"Don't call me under any circumstances. There are Japs all around and they will hear this 'phone bell ring. I'll keep you posted and give you corrections for your firing."

Aide Is Shot

Later in the day Tacy asked a lieutenant, his assistant, to make a further check on the firing from a point 200 yards to the left of the observation post. The lieutenant, however, ventured farther than ordered and was shot by a Japanese sniper.

When the lieutenant failed to return Tacy went to search for him. He was hit before he had gone many yards, but he wriggled forward until he found his junior—who was dead.

Tacy tried to pull the body back toward the observation post, but was hit by another bullet. He dropped and then managed to crawl away. For the moment he could not tell how seriously he was hurt.

Reaching the observation post, however, he took stock and decided he was able to keep going—and he did keep going, all the rest of the day, through the night, and through the following day. He said nothing over the telephone about being wounded, but kept up a steady stream of low-voiced observation, correcting and adjusting fire and coordinating the fire of his own batteries with others which had been brought into the action.

At the end of the second day, with all going well, Tacy decided he had better return to eat and have his wounds examined.

Proceeding down a trail, with a soldier ahead of him armed with an automatic rifle, Tacy saw his advance man suddenly come to a quick and surprised halt. The reason was a detachment of 20 or more Japanese soldiers, lounging at lunch in a glade under a big mango tree, not more than 75 feet away.

Unlucky for One Nip

The Japanese spotted the soldier, but did not see Tacy. An officer jumped to his feet and motioned to the soldier, a Filipino, to come forward, making signs of friendship.

Tacy shot the Japanese officer dead with his pistol and then leaped into the jungle as the man fell. Three Filipino soldiers joined him and the four wriggled into a dense patch of jungle and burrowed under the leaves and undergrowth. They stayed buried for six hours while the Japanese scoured the entire area, often coming within a few feet of them.

Tacy said he had a good rest during the wait. When it was dark he and his men wriggled away and then took back trails through the hills, traveling for three days before they reached headquarters.

An officer told Tacy he had better go to a hospital but the colonel wasn't interested. What he wanted, he said, was a little sleep, so he took a day off, caught up on his sleeping, and then went back to his artillerymen who had kept right on battering away at the Japanese during his absence.

Spy Beginning Sentence Hangs Self at Atlanta

Carl Herman Schroetter, convicted on espionage and conspiracy charges in New York ten days ago, hanged himself in the Atlanta Penitentiary early Sunday, the Justice Department announced yesterday.

Department officials said Schroetter slashed his wrists with the diaphragm of a radio head set, then used a bed sheet to hang himself from a water pipe in his room in the quarantine receiving building.

A coroner's jury late Sunday returned a verdict of suicide by hanging, the department said.

Schroetter was one of nine defendents convicted in Federal court of transmitting information on national defense to the enemy. He was admitted to the penitentiary last Friday to serve a 10-year sentence.

Esso Officials To Testify Today

Officials of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey are to testify today as the Truman Senate Committee resumes its inquiry into the tie-up between the company and I. G. Farbenindustrie, Nazi-dominated German dye and chemical trust.

Frank A. Howard, vice president of Standard, who conducted negotiations with the Germans, and W. S. Farish, president of the company, are to be witnesses.

Senator Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, Committee chairman, and Hugh A. Fulton, chief counsel of the Committee, intend to question them.

Dutch Officers Spurn Bribes, Flee Jap Camp

Kunming, China, March 0 (U.P.).—Two Dutch submarine officers, among the few Allied war prisoners to escape from Japanese prison camps, said on their arrival here that their captors tried liquor, an offer of "nice French girls" and finally third-degree tactics in a futile attempt to learn military secrets.

Their submarine was sunk off Malaya shortly before the fall of Singapore in February after it had sunk three Japanese troop transports.

Pan-American Military Staff Set Up

By A. E. Stuntz

Associated Press Staff Writer

A permanent collaborative staff of high military officials of the 21 American republics, long hoped for by advocates of Pan-Americanism, came into being yesterday with promises from both United States and Latin-American leaders that everything would be done to protect this hemisphere from invasion.

Named "The Inter-American Defense Board," the officers met at the Pan American Union under their massed national banners to hear Secretaries Stimson and Knox and Gen. George C. Marshall promise victory in the war for democracy. In turn, Major General Espinosa, of Chile, senior officer of the Latin-American delegates, said the spirit of Latin America held that liberty was "almost a biological necessity" and pledged his colleagues' support.

The atmosphere was strictly military. Soldier guards in full fighting equipment saluted smartly as the uniformed officers, accompanied by their aides, entered the building. A Marine band played national airs in the patio. The officers were seated in alphabetical order, around a huge U-shaped table in the "Hall of the Americas."

Cites Common Peril

Dr. Diogenes Escalante, Ambassador of Venezuela and acting chairman of the union, told the delegates that "measures of military defense must take precedence over all other considerations; and declared that "if the history of the last two and a half years has taught one lesson, it is that every country of this continent is affected by a threat to any one of them."

The delegates elected Lieut. Gen. S. D. Embick of the United States as permanent chairman and agreed to convene again April 6 with specific outlines for a general agenda.

One of the principal problems will be the control and protection of Inter-American shipping. Another will be to gear the needs and resources of each nation into a system of mutual defense.

Both situations were recognized by United States officials as requiring the utmost in cooperation from Latin Americans and tremendous effort by this Nation.

Knox recalled that the war in 1940 was called the Battle of Britain; in 1941, the Battle of the North Atlantic.

"We must now prepare for an extension of the theater of action to the south Atlantic and the entire Pacific," he said.

Knox pledged all possible naval material and naval training for the aid required by Latin America. But he urged each of the republics to "develop its own naval resources to the extent of its ability."

Envisages a "Common Council"

Stimson envisaged the board as a "common council" where the needs of each nation would be understood and resources exploited. Both he and Marshall promised that the United States would not cease its efforts short of victory.

Marshall informed the delegates that the great purpose of the United States was "to gather all its forces for a major offensive at the earliest possible date," and that such a plan must be followed "steadfastly and with determination."

"We must keep war out of the Western Hemisphere," Marshall told the board. He emphasized that the defense of the Hemisphere was "imperative," but that movement of materiel for the defense of the America's "must be tempered by needs of the United States Army in other theaters of action."

The defense board meeting, he said, was most significant because, "for the first time, we are gathered together for the announced purpose of making military plans for the defense of the Western Hemisphere."

President Returns From N. Y. Trip

President Roosevelt returned to Washington last night after spending the weekend in his home State of New York.

William Hassett, White House secretary, announced that the Chief Executive spent the greater part of the weekend at his home at Hyde Park.

Mr. Roosevelt, it was stated, spent three hours in New York City at the former Roosevelt home at 47-49 East Fifty-sixth Street, "transacting business in connection with the settlement of the estate of his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt.

Tydings Finds Wide Duplication Of Effort in Government Offices

Subcommittee Staff Tabulates Answers From Questionnaires

Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland said yesterday that facts unearthed from thousands of Government department questionnaires "are disclosing widespread duplications of effort that will have to be corrected by legislation."

The Maryland Senator, chairman of a special Senate Appropriations subcommittee investigating Government overlappings and methods of freeing more trained employes for essential war work, declined to discuss the nature of the duplications.

"What I'm looking for now is facts, not publicity," he said.

An estimated 40 per cent of the questionnaires sent out by the Tydings subcommittee to every bureau, section and office chief have been answered and returned and the subcommittee's staff yesterday was busy tabulating key answers on a master chart.

Tydings said an initial report may be presented to the Senate in two or three weeks, to be followed up with more detailed analysis of the mountain of information being compiled.

"We've got enough to lay a really scientific basis of Government," the chairman said.

He said no effort will be made to translate results of the inquiry into amendments to current appropriation bills, which are already far along, but before the start of the new fiscal year he will submit "retroactive" legislative proposals extending proposed reforms to each of the supply measures.

Information on employes in non-war agencies who can readily be transferred over to busy war agencies will be released at the same time, he said.

Witness Replies To Query on Wawaset Tragedy

The request of a 79-year-old Washington woman for information about anyone who belonged to the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church Sunday school class of 1873—a class figuring largely in the death toll when the Potomac River steamer Wawaset burned on August 8, 1873—brought a reply from a witness of the tragedy.

Mrs. Leonora Rowles contends that her own life was saved probably by a dream of impending tragedy her mother had the night before the Wawaset took the class on the outing. Eighty-five persons died when the boat caught fire and sank.

In response to a request for information about survivors which Mrs. Rowles made through The Post on March 17, a letter came yesterday from Mrs. Clizzie Limerick, of Fredericksburg, Va. Mrs. Limerick said she "was standing on the bank" when the boat caught fire and "heard the cries and saw the people jumping overboard." Her father and sister were aboard the Wawaset, but were saved, she stated. Mrs. Rowles lives at 3104 Mount Pleasant Street.

Court Outlaws Closed Shops When Inspired by Employers

By the Associated Press

The Supreme Court outlawed yesterday any closed shop contract between a company and a union where the labor organization had been assisted by the employer.

An 8-to-1 opinion, delivered by Justice Reed, asserted that the Wagner Act prohibited such contracts. Justice Roberts dissented.

The litigation grew out of rivalry between five A. F. of L. affiliates and a C. I. O. union over obtaining members at the Electric Vacuum Cleaner Co., Inc., of Cleveland.

The labor board found that the company had made a closed shop agreement in 1937 with the A. F. of L. affiliates after coercing the employes to join these organizations and to "forego" the C. I. O. affiliate. Methods employed, the board said, included discharges, threats of discharge and a lockout.

After making the closed shop agreement, which required all employes to join one of the A. F. of L. unions, the company was alleged to have denied employment to workmen who were nonmembers. Reinstatement was directed by the board and sustained by the court.

"When the closed shop agreement was adopted," Reed said, "it was invalid because entered into with a labor organization assisted by an employer."

In other labor decisions yesterday, the court:

1. Held, 5 to 4, that a State (specifically, Texas) had the constitutional right to prohibit picketing of business by persons not directly related to the businesses affected.

2. Ruled unanimously that the Wagner Act was not infringed by a Wisconsin employment relations board order directing a union to stop mass picketing and other specified activities in connection with a strike.

3. Upheld, 8 to 0, the right of a labor organization to picket peddlers of bakery products in New York City as a protest against "the economic and social evils of the peddler system."

The picketing opinion held that under a Texas anti-trust law the labor unions had no right to picket a Houston cafe to publicize contentions that the owner had employed a contractor who was unfair to the unions to erect a building a mile away.

Explaining that "so far as the record discloses, the new building was wholly unconnected with the business of Ritters' Cafe," Justice Frankfurter added:

"Recognition of peaceful picketing as an exercise of free speech does not imply that the States must be without power to confine the sphere of communication to that directly related to the dispute. . . .

"Texas represents the prevailing, and probably the unanimous, policy of the States. We hold that the Constitution does not forbid Texas to draw the line which has been drawn here."

Riom Trial Recess Set for Thursday; May Not Resume

Vichy, March 30 (AP).—The Riom trial of persons accused of responsibility for France's defeat is to be suspended from April 2 to April 15, and although there was no official announcement, it is doubtful whether it will be resumed.

The Rome radio, in a French language broadcast heard in New York by C. B. S., also said the Riom trial would be suspended but that it would "be resumed at some later date in a different form which would conform with the aim that Marshal Petain wishes to attain."

Thus the Vichy regime apparently seeks to stop with the least possible publicity a trial which from its inception has proved a boomerang, with the defendants accusing their accusers with uncomfortable defiance.

Sikorski Leaves After Broadcast To Homeland

Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, leader of the Polish armies and government in exile, terminated a seven-day visit here yesterday with luncheon at the Soviet Embassy and a short wave broadcast to his homeland reporting that "nobody here is ready to compromise on the principles of freedom and equality."

"I am glad to inform you that our Polish views on the problems facing the world and our war aims are in complete harmony with those of responsible American statemen," he said in the broadcast before leaving at 4 p .m. for New York City to attend a dinner given in his honor last night by the Manhattan Society. Accompanying the general was Count Edward Raczynski, Polish foreign minister, who had come here to prepare for Sikorski's visit.

Sikorski was the luncheon guest yesterday of Soviet Ambassador Maxim Litvinoff. From New York he will go to Canada and thence to London where his government functions. He arrived here for conferences on March 23.

Let CCC Fit Boys for Army, Chief Urges

James J. McEntee, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, yesterday envisioned that agency as a physical conditioner of youths for service with the armed forces.

This possible new assignment for the CCC was suggested by McEntee during testimony before the Senate Education and Labor Committee in opposition to the McKellar bill to curtail CCC and the National Youth Administration.

Recalling that 40 per cent of draft registrants have been rejected as physically unfit for military service, McEntee declared:

"I often wonder why we do not give immediate attention to youngsters who are physically soft—perhaps starting at 17—and encourage them to spend what might be termed a six-month apprenticeship in the Civilian Conservation Corps."

Gen. Ulio for Retention

McEntee was joined by Maj. Gen. James A. Ulio, the adjutant general, in opposition to the bill sponsored by Senator McKellar Democrat, of Tennessee. McEntee declared that termination of the corps would "not help our war effort and may hinder it in some respects."

Observing that 40,000 CCC enrollees are now doing work for the Army that soldiers or civilian labor might otherwise have to perform, McEntee maintained it would be "a tremendous indictment" of the Nation's "common sense" and the "height of folly" to dismantle one agency and create another to do similar work.

Ulio told the committee that the CCC relieves "soldiers of many non-military duties."

McEntee will return to the committee at 10:30 a. m. today for cross-examination by McKellar.

Meanwhile, Edward M. Tyler, accountant for the Joint Committee on Nonessential Expenditures, reported that thousands of dollars worth of property appears to have been abandoned on dump heaps during operation of CCC camps in Pennsylvania.

Tyler, who with Joseph Borda, committee investigator, spent three days in Pennsylvania last week investigating reports of waste and willful destruction of CCC equipment, turned results of the inquiry over to Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, the committee chairman. Byrd said the evidence would be subjected to further inquiry to determine if a full committee investigation in Pennsylvania is warranted.

McEntee last night declared that his inspectors "have yet to find a truthful story of CCC waste and we have investigated four or five of them in Pennsylvania."

Blames G. O. P. Politicians

Accounts of abandonment of still serviceable equipment, McEntee said, have been inspired by Republican politicians, anxious to develop issues for election campaigns in Pennsylvania.

Tyler and Borda investigated published reports that 30 new kitchen ranges were buried in the ground about four years ago at a CCC camp near Jersey Shore, Pa. Tyler said they were unable to find where the ranges were allegedly buried, but obtained from Walter Keeler, of Williamsport, Pa., a former foreman at the camp, a statement that he had witnessed not only the burial of the equipment but the destruction of a number of still serviceable automobile tires.

According to Keeler's statement, Tyler said, the ranges were deliberately damaged and then buried because upon delivery it was found that they were not of a type desired at the camp and because camp officials wanted to get rid of them rather than exchange them for another type of stove, in order to provide additional employment for industrial labor.

Dump heaps at an abandoned camp near Somerset, Pa., were inspected and the investigators interviewed a farmer, Philip Baker, who said that he and his neighbors, as late at 1940, salvaged from the dumps and put to use kitchenware, knives, saws, metal folding chairs and other equipment.

stated, that farmers living in the vicinity of the camp made daily inspections of the dumps for possible salvage material.

Baker, said Tyler, showed the investigators three of the chairs, a meat saw, several spoons, butcher knives and mess-kit knives taken from the dumps. Some of the equipment was stamped as being the property of the Army Quartermaster Corps, he stated.

Tyler told of interviewing a junk dealer who said his offer to purchase some of the discarded equipment was refused by camp officials.

1200 Drivers in 125 Firms In Midwest Plan to Strike

By the Associated Press

St. Paul March 30.—A strike notice against the Regulated Motor Transportation Association, embracing 125 companies, with headquarters in seven States, and 45 over-the-road operators, was filed by Minneapolis and St. Paul drivers' unions today.

James L. Kelley, State labor conciliator, said approximately 1200 drivers are affected.

Filing the notices were General Drivers' Union Local 544, A. F. of L., of Minneapolis, and General Drivers, Helpers and Truck Terminal Employes, Local 120, A. F. of L., St. Paul. Kelley said the strike notices were an outgrowth of the Transportation Assocaition members' refusal to submit the labor dispute to the National Labor War Board in Washington.

Companies affiliated with the Transportation Association memheadquarters in various cities of North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Oregon.

The notices are against firms who operate into and out of the Twin City area.

The unions have notified Kelley that the companies involved have refused to sign "an appropriate contract" and to comply with terms of a decision by the National Labor War Board.

Fall River, Mass., March 30 (U.P.)—Fall River's striking textile operatives were back at work tonight and wheels again turned in 18 mills where war production virtually was paralyzed for a week with 15,000 workers idle.

About 1000 members of the American Federation of Textile Operatives (independent) took the back-to-work vote at a mass meeting today on the recommendation of their emergency committee. They had struck on the jurisdictional question of craft vs. industrial unionism.

Chairman William A. Doster of the emergency committee said the NLRB had telegraphed a promise to review its recent decisions denying A. F. T. O. petitions for craft-union elections in the mills here.

The eight-day walkout was precipitated by the return of a C. I. O. (industrial union) worker to a plant employing A. F. T. O. (craft) members.

U. S. May Release Silver As Substitute for Vital Metals

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau revealed yesterday that the Treasury is considering releasing Government-held silver for industrial purposes to replace metals vitally needed in defense production.

Morgenthau told a press conference that the Treasury Department's legal section now is studying the possibility of lending silver from its stock of more than 2,000,000,000 ounces for use in industry.

Officials reported that the section was expected to render a decision in "a few days."

It was understood that one use of silver in industry would be as a substitute for copper in manufacture of "bus-bars," or conveyors of electricity in electrical appliances.

Officials pointed out that the silver loaned out by the Treasury for industrial uses could easily be reclaimed at any time. Loans of silver, they felt, would not affect the output of coins because of the great supplies already on hand.

Treasury officials explained that the Government still is paying 71 cents an ounce for silver, compared with the world price of 35 cents, and must buy all that is made available to it.

Just last Saturday, President Roosevelt signed the second war powers bill which carries a provision to permit substitution of silver for the nickel and part of the copper used in production of 5-cent

Clark Lee, of AP, Now in Australia

Melbourne, Australia, March 30 (AP).—Clark Lee, Associated Press war correspondent who covered the fall of Manila and the siege of Bataan, arrived here today.

Lee, whose dispatches from Bataan were described by Army men as "the best the war has produced on any front," came out of the Philippines just two weeks after Gen. Douglas MacArthur reached Australia.

What a World of Duties a Desk Can Perform!

ITS obvious duty, of course, is to further the gentle art of correspondence, to offer you politely paper, pens and ink when you are in a writing mood.

Then, too, it holds the letters you mean to answer some day, and the accounts you must keep, and the precious little missives that you treasure.

Last but not least, it has the important duty of decorating your home. The secretary pictured is $59.75 and suggests an inexpensive way to have all these services.

fluential political group expressed their views fully in a meeting today, the formal decision on the reply to the British proposals was reserved until tomorrow, allowing time for negotiations on possible amendments.

Sir Stafford tonight appealed to the Indian public in a radio broadcast for immediate and full acceptance of London's offer.

The primary need of the moment, he emphasized, was defense of India. Britain would give all the protection she could, "but with your willing help and cooperation that protection can be made more effective and more vital."

Cripps' plan offered India a chance to adopt her own constitution after the war and become a dominion in the British commonwealth thereafter. Without referring directly to the Congress Party's demands, he maintained in the radio speech that the plan allowed India to make her voice heard fully in direction of the war effort.

The chief complaint was that the plan involved no immediate transfer of real power or authority from British to Indian hands and specifically that it did not entrust the defense portfolio in the executive council to an Indian.

The Moslem League, though understood to favor acceptance of the proposals because of the provision for the partitioning of India if all her elements could not agree on unity, was delaying its reply until the Congress Party had acted.

Leaders of the Hindu Mahasabha, militant Hindu extremist group which opposes any leniency toward the Moslems, were understood to have informed Cripps that his proposals were unacceptable to them, primarily because they favored the Moslems and would lead to disruption of India's unity.

Opposition of this minority element was discounted, however, as was that of Mohandas K. Gandhi, spiritual leader of the All-India Congress. His objection was that acceptance of the British plan would compel Indian cooperation in the war, which would be contrary to his doctrine of nonviolence.

Sir Stafford reiterated tonight in his radio talk that Britain "must inevitably bear the responsibility for and retain control and direction of the defense of India as a part of their world war effort."

Accident Squad Discussion Set By Trade Board

The police report on the Accident Prevention Unit will be discussed at a special meeting of the Board of Trade's traffic committee next Monday.

The report was scheduled for discussion at yesterdays regular monthly luncheon, along with other traffic matters, but was held to be of such importance that an entire hour should be devoted to it.

Inspector Arthur I. Miller, who turned the report over to the committee, was present to explain the report. He assured the committee members that they had plenty of time to make their will known to the Commissioners. No action can be taken on the abolishment of the unit until the Traffic Advisory Council makes its recommendations to the Board of Commissioners, Miller said.

The Traffic Advisory Council's special subcommittee to study the A. I. U. report will state its findings to the council at the monthly meeting on April 9.

A move to call the traffic committee's extraordinary meeting for a week from Monday was rejected on grounds that "things are moving too quickly on this axing of the Accident Investigation Unit. We don't want to give them a chance to put anything over on us."

Loophole Closed In New Suit Law

Cuffs Are Gone

on the trousers, no vests with double-breasted suits, no patched pockets or belts, and no pleats in the trousers.

Uncle Sam Starts His Wool-Gathering Early

Since Pearl Harbor, Uncle Sam could hardly be accused of "wool gathering," but yesterday the old gentleman, with scant regard for sartorial elegance, clamped down on those wool-consuming, time-honored extras of men's clothes—like trouser cuffs—ruling them out for the duration.

Retail stores were told they might sell the stocks they have on hand as is with all their "pleats, tucks, bellows, gussets, yokes, etc."—but no cuffs.

Officials at various department stores here reported their men's wear departments have been "stormed" during the last week in an effort to buy trousers with cuffs before the deadline went into effect yesterday.

Many customers were disappointed.

Alteration rooms were said to have been overcrowded and since last Thursday most buyers of pants have been sent away cuffless. The spare pieces of woolen cloth—about three inches off each leg—are being saved by the retail stores.

WPB has asked them to contact local wool rag dealers and make arrangements with them for the goods to be purchased along with other usual wool accumulations.

It has been estimated that retailers have on hand approximately 19,500,000 pairs of men's and boys' trousers. It will take about four months to exhaust these, it was said. "victory suits" will probably not This means that the first so-called make a widespread appearance here until the Fall season.

The apparel section of WPB believes that the wool reprocessed from chopping off cuffs of trousers now on hand will provide enough material to make more than 300,000 suits.

Those who must buy an Easter suit with cuffs still have an out. Custom tailors may continue making "suits as usual" until the end of May when the order hits them.

Changes to be brought about in the wool conservation program will eliminate, besides cuffs, pleats, patch pockets, no vest with a double-breasted suit, full dress coat, the cutaway, the double-breasted tuxedo and fancy suit coat backs.

Dies Charges About Nudist Rouse House

the office and the factory."

"These books," shouted Representative Cox, "contain the filthiest photographs and text I have ever seen."

Congress, bored with war and taxes, leaped on the tomes with speed and spirit as Cox passed them around for closer inspection.

"The New Gymnosophy" brought frowns of disappointment, but "Nudism in Modern Life" got an intensely interested reader reaction.

Illustrated discreetly with pictures of nudists at work and play, the latter volume on Parmelee's belief in the buff expressed rather vividly the advantages and philosophy of life in the raw.

"The javelin thrower"—a picture of a young girl wearing a string of beads and a spear was voted as the only runner-up to familiar barroom art. Photographs of gentlemen with shapes which would be far better covered by a Senator's toga were hastily skipped over.

Stating his case for a world-wide strip act, Parmelee said in "Nudism in Modern Life" that ". . . the direct and personal enjoyment of nature can be attained to the highest possible degree only when unclothed . . ." "War, poverty, snobbery," and a yard length of other human ills, said Parmelee, would disappear along with clothes, one of these fine, preferably sunny days.

Thought for the Future

Representative Mason (Republican), of Illinois, a member of the Dies Committee, said "a critic of the book calls attention to the fact that if nudism becomes generally practiced we may need restrictions against overcrowding in elevators, streetcars and similar places."

When the roar of laughter and wave of joke-swapping subsided, Cox declared that he "hoped" that Vice President Wallace did not carry his rebuke of Dies as far as defending either nudism or Parmelee.

Gymnosopy—which is Latin lingo for nudism—according to Parmelee promotes nice, frank, friendships. Young children running around in their skin, are not esthetically attractive except to their parents, Parmelee asserts, but there is beauty to be found in the oldsters, whose figures have a lot of mileage, wear and tear on them though we do not see it now because of untrained eyes.

Congress, dignified and presenting a well-rounded vest to the world, unanimously declared that Parmelee was indulging in some mighty farfetched wishful thinking. The close resemblance of certain middle-aged swimmers to beached marine life, Congress felt, precluded milady's fancy wandering from the young and lean "V" man to the big "O."

With a garland of flowers and a "string of beads and sometimes brightly colored shoes with ribbons" as the only competitive ground, the BEW economist explained men and women learn to love all mankind.

"The day," lyrics the tome on gymnosophy, "is passed in swimming, lying on the sand, talking, reading, writing, preparing meals, singing and playing games." At night the nudists pop into a handy haystack the way they are and at cock crow pop out again, dive into the water and start all over again.

Nudists dwelling in chilly climates is a subject often raised in the mind of man and Philosopher Parmalee has the answer. If it turns cold you slip on a little jersey sweater.

The author considers gymnosophy the "best possible preparation for mating and marriage because it brings the young of both sexes together in the most natural way."

A few brave souls read all this and after some knuckle-chewing came to the defense of Vice President Wallace and his Board of Economic Warfare.

Many Private Agencies Here Help to Guide Businessmen

merce, is another such service. It is operated by the National Association of Manufacturers for its members.

Between them, the chamber and the N. A. M. are said to represent not more than 90 per cent of businessmen coming to Washington. But whether this figure is high or low, it should be remembered that the chamber's service is for any businessman, whether he is a member or not.

Also in the private field helping their members make contacts with Government officials are about 500 trade and professional groups which have either heaquarters or contact offices here. Some 250 of these are "bonafide" trade associations—strictly business groups. One of the main functions of their offices here is to help their members get in touch with Government officials.

Other U. S. Agencies

In addition to these private groups helping the businessman, there are other Government agencies besides those mentioned in the two preceding articles.

War Department's industrial information branch of the Bureau of Public Relations, in the Munitions Building, at Twentieth and Constitution Avenue Northwest, is one of them.

Conversations with persons at the War Department brought out the following:

Businessmen now know that if they want to do contract business with the War Department it is best to go to one of its 54 procurement offices located in other parts of the country. A man wanting to sell shoes to the Army doesn't come to Washington, for virtually every man in the shoe business knows that the Army buys shoes in Boston. Therefore, a man wanting to sell shoes to the Army wouldn't come to Washington except, perhaps, to see the Washington Monument.

To sell textiles to the Army, the businessman goes to Philadelphia, and so on.

The War Department has had a long campaign of driving this information of "Don't come to Washington" into the businessman's head. Results are the Industrial Information Branch now averages, only one businessman a month who doesn't know where to go. It used to have many.

Navy Department Lends Hand

This would indicate a decreased need for the service which the OGR center is intended to provide.

Navy Department's Bureau of Public Relations is in the Navy Building, Eighteenth and Constitution Avenue Northwest. The information there is that "businessmen know exactly where to go." Those few who don't know are readily told the exact person or department. If a man calls to ask, for example, if the Navy needs vegetable ivory buttons, the information is quickly gleaned by Public Relations from the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts.

Treasury Department Bureau of Public Relations is in the main Treasury Building, Fifteenth and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. Downstairs, uniformed young ladies have six or eight callers a day wanting to know where to go to transact business with the Government. The uniformed young ladies are able to tell them. Public Relations says businessmen have telephoned back expressing thanks for this help.

Lend-lease aspects of Treasury procurement are handled here in Washington. Other purchases are made here and in 42 procurement offices throughout the United States. The advice to the businessman is to write Washington before coming, to find out which way is up.

Office of Price Administration's inquiry unit, Temporary D Building, is at the main headquarters of OPA on Independence Avenue between Fourth and Sixth Streets Southwest. It doesn't even have rugs on the floor but serves 500 callers a day, according to Mrs. Marguerite Kates, its chief. It determines whom the businessman should see, in whatever agency, and gives him a slip of white multilithed paper stating office, name, location, floor, building and extension of official, with notation at bottom: "Red Lights Indicate Stairways."

Motto of the unit: No employe shall say "I don't know."

According to Mrs. Kates, it has many regular customers—businessmen who like its service so well they come back and say, "Well, start me off again."

Federal Public Housing Authority's press section is located in North Interior Building, Eighteenth and F Streets Northwest. It is due to be renamed shortly the "Information Service Section." The section deals with manufacturers of housing equipment, and general contractors. It can tell businessman "exactly where to go," and has thus told hundreds, it claims. A man came in, for example, wanting to know who is buying trailers. A telephone call revealed that the Farm Security Administration is buying them.

Specialized Help Given

In addition to contacts they sometimes need to make in the above agencies, farm people coming to Washington to see Government officials are given specialized help through the Agriculture Department and farm groups.

Agriculture Department's office of agricultural defense relations, for example, is located in the South Agriculture Building on Independence Avenue between Fourteenth and Sixteenth Streets Southwest. It was established primarily as contact arm of Department of Agriculture, but is also used by outsiders. It helps both farmers and businessmen to determine the individuals they need to see.

There aren't many farmers wandering about in search of someone to see, say Agriculture officials, because the farmer can't afford such tomfoolery. Most of them know where to go before they come here. But when they don't the department ordinarily can help them.

A National Committee for Farm Production Supplies, with headquarters at 1731 I Street Northwest, has been established by the four major farm organizations to present the farmer's case before defense agencies. It is "one of the most popular things we have done in a long time," according to Ezra T. Benson, secretary of the committee and also executive secretary of the National Council of Farmers Cooperatives, one of the four groups. The committee represents between three and four million farmers and works with the WPB.

Help for Working People, Too

When farmers or their representatives come here, wanting help, they ordinarily go to one of their farm organization, such as the cooperatives group, located at 1731 I Street Northwest; the National Grange, at 1343 H Street Northwest; the American Farm Bureau Federation, in the Munsey Building, 1329 E Street Northwest, and the National Farmers Union, same address.

There is also help in Washington for labor people coming here.

Labor Department's information service is located in the Labor Building at Fourteenth Street and Constitution Avenue Northwest.

It helps labor people in contacts with Government officials if they need this help, which they usually don't, according to officials.

Both C. I. O., at 1106 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, and A. F. of L., at 901 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, render service to their representatives who come to them for help in getting around, telling them where to go and arranging appointments. Problems of these out-of-town labor representatives may involve such matters as man-power training and trying to get war contracts for a shut-dow. firm.

The agencies described do not exhaust the entire list of information services in Washington, but they show that there is no dearth.

This is the last of three articles on information services in Washington.

Allied Planes Rule Air Over New Guinea

achieved by comparatively small forces can no longer be regarded as merely of tactical significance. They have made a marked strategical difference in the war."

The determined Allied counteroffensive has forced the Japanese to withdraw air strength from other areas to replace their losses, Drakeford said, and has seriously impeded their entire scheme of operations.

Despite the Yank and Aussie blows, the Japanese air force in New Britain and New Guinea, however, continued weak sallies against Darwin and Port Moresby.

Attempted raids on both cities Monday, the second straight day, were beaten off.

Summarizing the first three weeks of the American-Australian air offensive, Drakeford said that probably one in ten of the cruisers with which Japan entered the war had been sunk or crippled.

(The authoritative Jane's Fighting Ships, in the latest available information on the Japanese fleet lists 35 Japanese cruisers, with 5 more reported under construction for two or three years.)

The offensive also destroyed or probably destroyed 48 Japanese bombers and damaged at least 15, against a total Allied loss of 12 planes, Drakeford said, giving the United Nations air superiority "as marked as any in the Pacific war."

The stoutest blow struck by the Allied airmen occurred March 10, when they spread havoc through the Japanese air, naval and troop concentration at Lae, New Guinea.

"No single operation during the Malayan campaign had such valuable results, and it is doubtful whether even the magnificent attacks launched from Palembang (Sumatra) were so devastating to enemy shipping," the air minister said.

He said seven transports were burned, sunk or beached at Lae, three destroyers damaged, and numerous smaller craft destroyed. The Japanese losses, as announced in a Washington communique, totaled 23 ships, he said.

On March 21, Allied planes ranging over a 2000-mile front from Timor Island to Rabaul, on New Britain destroyed the equivalent of virtually two enemy squadrons of planes.

Meanwhile, the Allied striking power was increasing steadily. A portion of the Australian expeditionary force returning from the Middle East was reported to consist of pilots from a formation credited with shooting down 200 Axis planes.

Plane Ferry Service Opened to Australia

Melbourne, March 30 (AP).—A Pacific ferry service, similar to that operating across the Atlantic to Britain, has been inaugurated between the United States and Australia in order to further strengthen the air arm here, it was disclosed today.

One young Australian, who was engaged in the Atlantic service flying bombers to Britain, is one of the pilots engaged in a similar service to Australia.

have already experienced in their native land, and their "morale remained high," the Chinese communique declared.

It was understood that Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stillwell, American commander of China's Fifth and Sixth Armies in Burma, had dispatched reinforcements down the railway from Mandalay to bolster the heavily outnumbered Chinese units in the Toungoo sector. One Chinese division—about 15,000 troops—is stationed in the Toungoo sector, Chinese field headquarters revealed.

One officer at headquarters remarked that "every extra hour that the Toungoo garrison holds out is an hour in favor of the Allies," adding:

"The Japanese are due for an unpleasant surprise in the near future."

The enemy was moving still greater forces into the Toungoo area, including more than one division reportedly landed at Rangoon. He was also stated by the Chinese to have large forces held in reserve immediately behind the Toungoo lines to back up the two Japanese divisions already thrown into action there.

Eyewitness reports from the Toungoo region spoke of whole clusters of villages burned out under Japanese air raids calculated to hinder United Nations Communication. The communications, however, remained intact.

War Fund Swelled By $100, $50 Gifts

Contributions to the District Red Cross War Fund yesterday included $100 from the Daughters of America and $50 from the Dunbarton College Class of 1943, campaign headquarters announced.

The Dunbarton students' donation represented proceeds from a dance.

Enrollment in a Red Cross home nursing course will take place Wednesday at Walsh House, 2020 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. Classes will meet there at 10 a. m. Mondays and Wednesdays for six weeks.

Dies Called Unfair as House Looks Into Nudism Charges and Books

"I noticed in the press that Mr. Dies, without ever having given me any hearing or notice of his intention to accuse me of anything, is charging that I was a sponsor of the American League for Peace and Democracy," Vaughan stated. "I was never a member or a sponsor of the American League for Peace and Democracy."

While no more than 40 members were on the House floor during discussion of Dies' action, it was apparent that Dies, who has yet to obtain funds his committee needs for investigations, incurred widespread disfavor because of accusations against officials of the board, which is headed by Vice President Wallace.

Charging that Dies is promoting disunity by attacks on communism at a time when Soviet Russia is a military ally, Representative O'Connor (Democrat), of Montana, warned that some "40 or 50" members would act unless the House leadership takes steps to control the committee.

Although Dies was loudly acclaimed by members when the House voted several weeks ago to continue his committee to the end of this year, there were indications last night that the appropriation of necessary funds will not be as easy. Representative Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, said he would notify Dies that his Accounts Committee will be ready to hear his request for funds April 14. Dies has been detained is Texas by the illness of his mother.

Vice President Wallace, meanwhile, said that he has yet to receive Dies' "open letter" citing Maurice Parmelee, $5600-a-year "principal economist" for the BEW as the author of "Nudism in Modern Life," a book which Dies said advocates "the widespread practice of nudism in this country."

The Vice President Sunday night blasted the letter which, he said, "might as well" have come from "Goebbels himself."

Dies, O'Connor recalled, has said he intends asking the House for $300,000. The committee has been allowed $385,000 over the last three years.

Cochran told the House that "there is no set amount agreed upon (for the committee) and anyway he (Dies) always asks for more than he is going to get as far as I am concerned."

Officials accused by Dies, declared Voorhis, should have been called before the committee to determine what is "basically true." Dies' report, he said, was based on a comparison of a list of board employes with a list of alleged members of a Communist front organization. Organizations of this sort, Voorhis commented, make a practice of luring foes of Communism onto their membership rolls.

"Until you have investigated a man individually and found out what the truth is about him, I do not think you have the right to make public accusations," Voorhis declared.

Propaganda Stirs Goldsborough's Ire

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

Justice T. Alan Goldsborough revealed yesterday that he had called on the Department of Justice to find out who left propaganda pamphlets in his chambers at the District Court last week.

"The High Cost of Hate," written for his Tokyo employers by the admitted Japanese agent, Ralph Townsend, was one of the booklets left on the judge's desk.

Justice Weighs Case

For Townsend last week pleaded guilty to a charge that he violated the Foreign Agents Act by failing to register his operations for Jikyoku Iinkai, a Japanese propaganda committee which spent more than $175,000 in this country. Townsend, by his own plea, admitted he got some of the money.

And Justice Goldsborough is currently considering whether he will send Townsend to prison for eight to 24 months, as the law provides he may, whether he will sentence the Japanese agent to prison and then let him out on probation, or whether he will let him off with a fine.

"I have not myself examined the contents of the envelope," the justice said, "but I want the public to know that I regard it as improper to send a judge any communication bearing upon a case before him, while that case is pending. If I should find any person sending me such material I shall send him to jail for contempt of court."

"Far Eastern Affairs" Also

Also in the envelope on Justice Goldsborough's desk were two copies of "Far Eastern Affairs," allegedly issued by David Warren Ryder, indicted with Townsend. Ryder and another defendant, Frederick Vincent Williams, are scheduled to go on trial before Justice Goldsborough May 11.

The justice yesterday called all counsel in the case before him and turned the pamphlets over to Special Prosecutors Albert E. Arent and Arthur B. Caldwell.

U. S. Attorneys Here for Conference

United States attorneys from large cities are being called to the Department of Justices for conferences to speed up action against naturalized citizens active in Axis-led groups like the Bund.

Acting Attorney General Charles Fahy announced yesterday that the prosecutors are conferring with James Rowe, jr., assistant to the Attorney General; Wendell Berge, assistant Attorney General in charge of the criminal division, and Special Prosecutors D. M. Balch and James M. McInerney.

Whale Washes Ashore Near Kitty Hawk

Manteo, N. C., March 30 (AP).—A big whale, with a wounded side, was washed ashore 5 miles north of Kitty Hawk today. Fishermen who viewed it said the mammal evidently had been hit by an explosive or a ship.

Last week several smaller whales were washed ashore near Myrtle Beach, S. C. It was supposed they had died from concussion caused by depth charges.

Bethesda Man Reported Lost On Freighter

Although company officials have given up as lost an American freighter now several weeks overdue, Mr. and Mrs. Noble C. Dowling, of Bethesda, parents of the ship's first officer, yesterday clung to the hope their son might still be alive.

The missing mariner, Noble C. Dowling, jr., 48, was born here and attended Peabody and Tech High Schools. His wife, who lives in California, notified his parents yesterday that the ship had been given up as lost.

The younger Dowling had served in the Navy during the last war. For several years he was assigned to destroyer duty off the coast of France. While performing this duty his ship, the U. S. S. Jacob Jones, was torpedoed.

He has been connected with the Merchant Marine for the past 22 years. Seven years ago he married and made his home on the West Coast. His parents said they have never met his wife. Mr. Dowling was to have been in Washington next Sunday and his wife was coming from California. "We had planned a real family reunion," his father said.

Besides his parents he has three brothers, Frank E. Dowling, of Washington; Clinton Dowling, of Bethesda, and Raymond Dowling, of Barcroft, Va., and two sisters, Miss Louise Dowling, of Washington, and Mrs. Elizabeth Conklin, of Bethesda, Md.

Senate Committee Approves $1,000,000,000 For Expansion of Naval Shore Facilities

By the Associated Press

The Senate Naval Committee approved yesterday a one-billion-dollar program for expansion of Navy shore facilities.

Chairman Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, told reporters that the measure contemplated construction of fuel oil storage facilities, aviation facilities, additional housing, ordnance storage, hospital and dispensary facilities and repair equipment.

Walsh also said that two committee investigators were now at work in New York obtaining evidence concerning the burning of the former French liner Normandie. The committee is seeking to determine whether the burning was the result of negligence or sabotage.

As the committee took up proposed legislation to permit promotion of warrant officers to commissioned rank, Navy Department spokesmen and witnesses representing a group of warrant officers disagreed over its terms.

The disagreement centered about an amendment proposed on behalf of the warrant officers by Representative Boland (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, who asked that in promotion of any warrant officer up to the rank of lieutenant his assignment be restricted to his warrant specialty unless an emergency required otherwise.

Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, told the Senate Naval Committee that the Navy was opposed to the amendment because it would give "additional commissioned rank without change of duty or increase in responsibility."

A. L. Freling, a chief pay clerk, contended, however, that the Navy would lose the value of the specialist training of warrant officers if it put them in the regular line of promotion, removing them from the special type of work in which they had experience.

Jacobs described the bill, however, as "desirable for the morale of the whole Navy" because it would open a way for any enlisted men to earn commissioned rank by working up through the various grades, including warrant officer.

Mrs. G. A. Ross Dies; District Church Leader

Mrs. George A. Ross, president of the Washington Council of Church Women, died unexpectedly yesterday at Emergency Hospital following an operation.

For 36 years an active worker in local individual and city-wide church activities, she was a member of Calvary Baptist Church, where she taught the Baker Class. She was a past president of the Northwest W. C. T. U.; the Baptist Woman's Society of the District of Columbia; of the Woman's Society of Calvary Church and of the District Sunshine Society.

She is survived by her husband, a retired Central High School teacher, and a brother, Fred Hathaway, of this city. She was a native of Ohio, and moved with her family as a girl to Missouri. She and Mr. Ross were married when they both were teaching at Harding College.

Funeral services will be conducted tonight at 8 o'clock at the Hysong Funeral Home, 1300 N Street Northwest, by the Rev. Clarence W. Cranford and the Rev. Edwin H. Tuller, pastor and assistant pastor, respectively, of Calvary Baptist Church.

The body will be taken to Mexico, Mo., for burial.

Japs' Plane Losses Put at 1025

London, March 30 (AP).—A British source said today that Allied communiques and official statements had listed at least 1025 Japanese warplanes destroyed since the attack on Pearl Harbor.

He said this was more than one-fourth the total of first class fighting planes Japan had at the outset of the war. He estimated this total at 3650.

(This was considerably lower than most estimates, which have placed Japan's initial air strength at 5000 to 6000 planes.)

Ayres in Antiwar Film Role

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR—This is Lew Ayres as he appeared in "All Quiet on the Western Front," antiwar film in which he first gained prominence on the screen. It was disclosed yesterday in Hollywood that Ayres is being sent to a conscientious objectors' camp after requesting exemption from military service on grounds of religious scruples

Columbia River near Portland.

Ayres was the first motion picture star to claim conscientious objection to war and was, for that matter, perhaps the first well-known American to refuse to fight on the basis of his religious convictions.

Fellow motion picture stars said they believed that by publicly holding to his belief, Ayres had blasted his future as a movie actor. He has been starring in the Dr. Kildare series.

In Oregon Ayres will join fellow conscientious objectors in clearing underbrush, felling trees, cutting fire breaks and other work similar to that performed by the Civilian Conservation Corps.

A. H. Pier, chairman of Ayres' draft board, said he first had entered the plea of conscientious objection when his number came up six months ago.

"He was quite a philosopher," Pier continued. "He wasn't a Quaker or a member of any other religious organization, but he did have a kind of religion of his own."

Pier said his release from armed service had been taken up with Washington and approved by the Attorney General's office. Ayres, 33, is a former husband of Movie Stars Lola Lane and Ginger Rogers. He had few intimate friends in Hollywood, save some of the actors who appeared with in "All Quiet."

He lived alone in a home atop Lookout Mountain, where he composed music and made a hobby of weather predicting. So high was his home that it frequently was enveloped in clouds; on clear days he liked to sit on his front lawn and yell greetings to passing aviators.

Burial Tomorrow For J. L. Skidmore

Funeral services for James L. Skidmore, 82, patent attorney who died Sunday at his home, 1344 Montague Street Northwest, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at his residence, with burial in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

A life-long resident of Washington, Mr. Skidmore was first employed as an office boy for the firm of Howson & Howson, patent attorneys. He was graduated from Columbian University, now George Washington University, and later entered business for himself with offices in the Washington Loan & Trust Building.

Mr. Skidmore was a member of Almas Temple, Washington Commandery, No. 1, Lafayette Chapter of Masons, Lebanon Lodge, No. 7, and a patron of Naomi Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Tena Skidmore, and a sister, Mrs. Annie L. Powers, of Washington.

Funeral Today For Mrs. Johnson, School Teacher

Mrs. Laura Glenn Johnson, public school teacher for 44 years, who died Saturday, will be buried at 11 a. m. today in Oak Hill Cemetery following funeral services at her home, 2837 Twelfth Street Northeast.

A native Washingtonian, Mrs. Johnson had taught in the Ludlow, Bancroft, Force and West Schools, retiring in 1937. While at Ludlow School she was one of the teachers assigned to the "model" section. Sole survivor is her husband, Charles A. Johnson, retired principal of the Henry D. Cooke School.

Mrs. Johnson received her first assignment in the school system in 1893.

Funeral Tomorrow For Adm. J. R. Blakely

Funeral services with military honors will be held in Arlington Cemetery tomorrow at 1 p. m. for Rear Admiral John R. Y. Blakely, retired, who died Saturday at Denver, Colo.

Chaplain R. D. Workman, head of the Navy chaplains, will officiate at the graveside ceremonies.

FIGHT the War!
BUILD the Production!
FINANCE the Victory!

THE WINNING of this grimmest of all wars, as every citizen knows, calls for a triple-offensive against a powerful enemy. Americans must fight the war, build the production, and FINANCE the Victory. Let two—or even one—of these objectives fail and the cause is lost.

International Harvester, therefore, takes the keenest pleasure in announcing, in behalf of its employes, an outstanding participation in the purchase of United States Savings Bonds.

More than 98.2% of Harvester men and women all over America—52,187 of them as this statement goes to press—are buying shares in America and a financial interest in the Victory America fights for. They believe it's the best investment their money can buy.

Today, almost all operating units of International Harvester—thanks to these loyal and patriotic employes—hold the Treasury Department's special merit certificate.

The Harvester Company was one of the first organizations in the nation to be designated by the Treasury Department as an issuing agent for the sale of Defense Bonds, Series E. It has made available to employes, for this purpose, the machinery of the Employes Savings Plan which was already in full operation. In addition the company provides a safe-keeping service under which all bonds purchased are deposited with designated custodian banks and held subject to the order of the employe-owners.

The response in the Harvester organization has been an inspiration from the outset.

Harvester men and women are buying a bigger and bigger share in America—buying not just once, but regularly.

Harvester people, building an ever-increasing volume of war materials on their daily jobs, have seen 2500 of their number off to fight the war itself. Their spirit and their will, expressed in ACTION, give assurance that America's all-out drive SHALL NOT FAIL.

Buckley Must Stand Trial, Court Decides

The United States Court of Appeals here yesterday upset the ruling of Police Judge Hobart Newman that Attorney M. Edward Buckley need not stand trial on a charge of driving while drunk.

Accused after his car hit two others July 21, 1940, Buckley demanded a jury trial and the case dragged until October 30, when it was dropped. The witnesses had not been heard.

More than two months later, on January 13, 1941, Buckley appeared before Newman—although Newman was not sitting in traffic court—and pleaded guilty to a substitute charge of driving on the left side of the street. He was fined $25.

The Post exposed this arrangement on January 30, 1941, and the driving while drunk charge was renewed, on February 15. Buckley claimed this was unconstitutional, because it placed him twice in jeopardy for the same offense. Police Judge George N. Neilson ruled against Buckley, and the lawyer again demanded a jury trial.

Meanwhile, a woman convicted before Newman accused him of bias and corruption and Buckley went to Newark and took a statement in the judge's behalf.

When Buckley came up for trial on the drunken driving charge last June 20, he withdrew his demand for a jury—so his case was sent to the Traffic Court, where Newman, his friend, was on the bench.

Then Buckley renewed his complaint of double jeopardy. Newman upheld him.

The Court of Appeals, in an opinion by Justice Harold Stephens, reversed this ruling yesterday, commenting that the law on the subject had been "thoroughly explained" and "definitely settled." Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner joined in the opinion.

Concurring, Justice Wiley Rutledge said "the offenses charges were clearly and substantially different."

The Buckley case was sent back to the Police Court "for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion."

Electric Gadget Output to Be Halted

modity each month. General effect of the order is to cut down the quantity of a large number of commercial and industrial products using rubber.

The production agency also forbade the manufacture of lawnmowers after June 30 and cut in half the amount of steel to go into such products for the next three months up to the shutdown date. A saving of 45,000 tons of iron and steel a year is expected from the move.

The electrical appliance order permits the 200-odd manufacturers affected to continue production between now and May 21 at one and one-half times the normal rate, but forbids the use of pig tin, alloy steel, copper, copper alloy and aluminum, as well as nickel for nickel plating.

Included in the scope of the order are all home and commercial appliances using electrical heating elements or powered by electrical motors of fractional horsepower.

This takes in such items as electrict toasters, waffle irons, flatirons, roasters, grills, table stoves, portable heaters, food mixers, juice extractors, percolators, dishwashing equipment, dry shavers, cigar lighters and heating units for electrical stoves, water heaters and radiating heaters.

Also included are the full run of beauticians' accessories—hair dryers, permanent wave equipment and hair clippers.

The zipper order is expected to force manufacturers to shift from the customary copper-zinc alloy used in the past to steel, which manufacturers have hitherto insisted was not suitable for slide fasteners.

Furthermore, it prohibits the making of zippers of more than 10 inches in length, except that 12 inches is permitted for trouser fly fasteners and 20 inches for work jackets.

In addition, no zippers whatever may be used on a long list of articles such as bags of all sorts, novelties, pocketbooks and purses, all sorts of coats, corsets and foundation garments, slip covers, footwear of all types, gloves, kits, linings, luggage, overalls, raincoats, shirts, sporting goods, sweaters, swim suits, toys and upholstery.

Indicating the seriousness of the orders, the WPB yesterday penalized 22 steel warehouses which had accepted deliveries of steel in excess of authorized quotas in 1941. The penalties were reductions, in varying amounts according to the degree of wilful cupability involved, of the quotas of steel which may be acquired by priority orders for the next three months.

The only reversal to the general trend of metal use curtailment was a WPB request yesterday that nail manufacturers increase their output. It was pointed out that lumber is replacing steel in wartime construction projects and more nails are needed. They may only be sold on preference ratings.

WPB Won't Advance Clocks Another Hour

By the United Press

The War Production Board has no intention of asking that all the clocks in the Nation be set up another hour during the summer months, J. A. Krug, chief of the power branch, said last night.

He explained that advancing timepieces a second hour during the summer would yield only a fraction of the substantial power savings gained through establishment of war time by Presidential proclamation in February.

He said certain States might take such action on a State-wide basis.

Capital Leads Nation in High Rents, Housing Census Shows

Washington rents are higher than the rents in any of the 48 States, a Census Bureau report on the first census of housing ever undertaken in the United States disclosed yesterday.

Average monthly rent for a family unit in Washington was listed at $53, compared with an average of $30.84 for the country's cities and a rural nonfarm average of $18.35, and a combined rural and urban average of $27.46.

Other high average rentals by States listed in the report (urban and rural combined) include the following: New York, $39.83; New Jersey, $37.43; Connecticut, $36.22; Delaware, $33.95; Massachusetts, $33.34; California, $31.27; Illinois, $30.54; Maryland, $29.77; Michigan, $29.35; Wisconsin, $28.39; Ohio, $27.67, and Pennsylvania, $27.66.

Low rents ranged from $12.32 in Arkansas to $16.84 in South Dakota.

Home ownership, according to the report, declined more than 4 per centage points in ten years—from 47.8 in 1930 to 43.6 in 1940. The decline was recorded although Federal agencies were active trying to stimulate private construction and purchase of homes. Unofficially, the decrease was attributed to a great increase in the number of apartment houses in cities.

The survey revealed that of the 37 million individual dwelling units in the Nation in 1940, 34,859,552 were occupied, and of these, 15,196,188 were owned or partly owned by occupants.

Federal agencies which have directly or indirectly devoted their efforts to stimulating home ownership, include the Federal Housing Administration, the United States Housing Authority, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the Farm Security Administration, the Farm Credit Administration, and certain housing agencies which formerly operated under jurisdiction of the Federal Works Agency or the Public Works Administration, but which now are under the USHA.

Highlights of the census revealed:

Dwelling units occupied included 20,597,520 in cities of 2500 and over, 7,151,471 in rural areas, but not on farms, and 7,106,561 on farms.

Fewer than half of the owner-occupied homes are mortgaged.

Nine per cent of occupied dwellings housed more than 1½ persons per room, which indicates overcrowding. On farms, 16 per cent of the living units had occupancy of more than 1½ persons per room.

More than half of the dwellings—54 per cent—had private baths.

In cities, the percentage of units not equipped with private baths was 23.3; in rural nonfarm areas it was 60.7, and on farms it was 89.4.

Among farm homes, 78.9 per cent had outside toilets, 9.3 per cent had no toilets at all, 82.3 per cent had no running water, and 68.7 per cent had no electric lighting.

More than 18 per cent of all homes were in need of major repairs.

Of city dwellings, 11.5 per cent needed major repairs; in rural nonfarm areas, 21.4 per cent; and on farms, 33.9 per cent.

The total number of families living in these homes increased 16.6 per cent over the ten-year period, while total population gained only 7.2 per cent. The size of families, however, decreased to 3.8 persons per family.

Vatican Confirms Tokyo Relations

Rome (From Italian Broadcasts), March 30 (AP).—L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper, has published a note on the appointment of Ken Harada, former Japanese Minister to Vichy, as Minister to the Vatican.

This was the first confirmation from Vatican sources of the establishment of diplomatic relations with Japan. (Harada's appointment was announced from Tokyo last week.)

Church Attendance Suffered Most in Storm, Survey Shows

As the snow of Sunday's freak blizzard melts from the streets, so do the estimates of the damage it inflicted. It is beginning to appear that church attendance suffered the only serious loss.

Speaking from the District government's point of view, Budget Director Walter L. Fowler said last night, "It didn't cost us as much as many a smaller one, because it melted so fast."

J. Blake Gordon, director of sanitary engineering, said, "The taxpayers' bill wasn't increased enough to notice. We made rapid, but not elaborate plans to get rid of the snow—we knew at this time of the year the sun would soon be along to do most of the work for us."

The telephone company reported that most of its trouble was with "drop lines," leading from the telephone poles into the houses. Although there were enough of them—4400—the repair was not nearly so great as a collapse of very few trunk lines would have been.

More than 75 per cent of these fallen lines were repaired on Sunday, and the remainder on Monday.

Clifford Lanham, superintendent of trees and parking for the District, said that by tonight all limbs will be cleared from the street. In his entire 50 years in the department, he stated, he has never seen a storm of this typ do such damage to tree limbs.

However, he pointed out that the damage was largely confined to soft wood trees which the District is anxious to replace with hard wood types. Silver maples were particularly hard hit soft wood trees, he said.

The final silver lining to the storm clouds is that Washington's snow equipment was out of storage only by 24 hours. It had been ordered dismantled and put away for the summer by yesterday morning.

District Refuse Director William Xanten, pleased to have been able to try out his new "Sno-Go," bought last November, reported that it blew all the snow off the Pennsylvania Avenue bridge into the Anacostia River in two hours. It would have taken men two days to shovel it off.

Orchestra Needs To Raise $114,000 For New Season

One hundred and fourteen thousand dollars must be raised during the ten-day National Symphony Orchestra drive for supporting funds for the 1942-43 season, it was announced yesterday by E. R. Finkenstaedt, drive chairman. The drive will be held April 15-25.

The drive, which supplements the season's ticket receipts, provides for an orchestra of 80 musicians, a winter season of 20 weeks and a summer season of six weeks at the Potomac Water Gate.

Commenting on the fact that this year's goal is larger than that of previous years, Finkenstaedt pointed out that this is the first year that the summer season has been included in the budget and that costs have increased because of a new contract with the Musicians' Union, providing for a higher base pay for musicians.

Rep. Rich Drops Out Of Pa. House Race

Harrisburg, Pa., March 30 (AP).—United States Representative Robert F. Rich, of Woolrich, Pa., today dropped out of the Republican contest for reelection.

Rich's Sixteenth District was merged with the Fifteenth under the State's new Congressional reapportionment act. The Representative said he decided to withdraw after a conference with United States Representative Wilson D. Gillette, of the old Fifteenth District, "in the interest of party harmony."

Smooth going speeds Victory

Smooth going through the reduction of friction in American machines is speeding the successful outcome of the war. ★ Friction is universally a brake against speed, a drag on power—the chief cause of machines slowing up, wearing out, breaking down. But friction in machines can be overcome—by means of roller bearings. ★ Rub the palms of your hands together from wrist to finger tips, back and forth; notice the frictional resistance. Now repeat, with a pencil rolling between the palms; notice the total absence of "drag". That's how roller bearings eliminate up-and-down friction from machines. Furthermore, TIMKEN Roller Bearings, because of their tapered design, also control sidewise thrust. ★ In quality and output of roller bearings, America is far ahead of any other nation. The superiority of American tanks, ship mechanisms, trucks in the supply lines, and planes everywhere, is in large measure due to the smooth and lasting efficiency of Timken Roller Bearings. So are the speed, power and durability of the great machines in plants producing America's mechanized equipment and supplies.

★ Timken's expanded and still growing capacity is supplying the roller bearings needed for the nation's tremendous armament program. Smooth going at Timken is speeding Victory!

Retreaders Get More Time To Apply for Truck Camelback

Retreaders and recappers of tires were given an extension of time to file applications for their initial allotment of truck camelback, District Rationing Administrator Whitney Leary announced last night.

March 1 had been ordered as the deadline for these applications, but a telegram yesterday from the Office of Price Administration stated that so many dealers had not gotten theirs in that it was decided to extend the period.

No definite limit was set, but the dealer must submit an affadavit stating his reason for his failure to have his request in on time. If the reason is deemed valid, he will be given a certificate for an initial allotment.

The Tire Administration did not specify what would be considered "valid reasons," but indicated that lack of publicity on the date for filing would probably lead the board to accept ignorance as an excuse.

Truck camelback is the humped strip rubber used in retreading used tires. There is no restriction on this. Any dealer who gets an initial allotment may keep replenishing it by turning in certificates from qualified purchasers. These certificates may be used by the dealers to obtain certificates for equal amounts of camelback.

Leary, in addressing the Board of Trade's traffic committee yesterday, said he could give them no encouragement on the prospects of development of synthetic rubber or opening of new fields of natural rubber. He predicted that, in spite of the store of recapped and retreaded tires, within a year 40 to 50 per cent of the traffic would be off Washington streets.

Murphy Acts to Guard Deaf During Raids

Because Washington's air-raid signals are all auditory, air raid wardens were instructed last night to make a survey of all deaf persons in their sectors and make provisions for their safety in case of an emergency.

Dr. Percival Hall, president of the Columbia Institution for the Deaf, and Lloyd Graunke, senior warden for the institution, consulted with deaf persons there for suggestions on training the deaf to take care of themselves during air raids.

It is only when such persons are alone at home that they might miss the signals from sirens and horns. Therefore, Chief Air Raid Warden Clement Murphy ordered his wardens to talk with the deaf persons and their families to make certain that whenever they are to be left alone, friends or neighbors will be ready to pass the warning along.

This survey is the first of several planned. Other special provisions will be made for the lame, the blind and invalids, Defense Executive Lemuel Bolles announced.

Littering Streets With Glass Means Arrest

Inspector Harvey G. Callahan, assistant superintendent of police, yesterday directed members of the force to prosecute vigorously any "deliberate or willful throwing, or leaving of broken glass, bottles, nails, or other sharp objects" in the streets.

The action, which was taken in the interest of wartime automobile tire conservation, followed the receipt of numerous complaints from motorists, Callahan asknowledged. Persons accused of such violations will be required to post a minimum collateral of $25, he said.

Glass and other sharp objects which might inure automobile tires have become a source of concern to the public since tire rationing made it impossible for the average citizen to replace his damaged tires, it was pointed out.

Speed Cut on Army War College Grounds

To help conserve rubber through lower speed limits, Col. Thomas F. Bresnahan, of the Army War College, announced yesterday that speed on the grounds there would be limited to 25 miles an hour for passenger cars and 20 miles an hour for trucks.

Because the Army War College is now the headquarters of the Army Ground Forces, only civilian visitors on official business, visiting officers and those connected with the post will be admitted to the grounds, the colonel said.

Neomeganphopus Roosevelti Named For—You Guess!

President Roosevelt has a new namesake, a hitherto unknown sea animal "closely related to the shrimps and more distantly to the crabs and lobsters," according to the Smithsonian Institution's description.

No, the creature's relations apparently had nothing to do with the selection of his monicker—neomeganphopus roosevelti. The name was chosen because Dr. Waldo L. Schmitt, Smithsonian biologist, was serving as naturalist on the President's cruise to the Galapagos Islands in 1938 when he discovered neomeganphopus roosevelti off the coast of Lower California.

Neo's chief value, according to the Smithsonian, seems to be in providing food for other fish and whales. They find him very tasty though not much of a meal unless devoured with others of his species—he's only a quarter of an inch long.

D. C. Lends 26,000 Helmets to Pacific States

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

The National Capital bowed to "more acute needs" of the West Coast yesterday, permitted the Office of Civilian Defense to borrow 26,000 civilian defense helmets for immediate shipment to the three States along the Pacific.

"We just had them under contract, anyway, and were not expecting delivery before April 15," declared Col. Lemuel Bolles, defense director.

Dean James M. Landis, head of the OCD, praised the District for thus "generously subordinating" itself and promised that Eastern cities soon would be receiving equipment purchased with the recent 100 million-dollar appropriation.

Forty cities along both coasts have been approved to receive shipments, he said. Names were withheld, however, as selection was made on the basis of expected need and allotment on the basis of strategic location.

Bolles Report Released

Colonel Bolles said he was sure civilian defense workers in the District would be glad for other cities to have the 26,000 helmets "if the Army thinks their need is greater than ours."

In the meantime, Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, chairman of the House District Committee, released a report from Colonel Bolles covering the complete equipment-for-civilian-defense picture in Washington. He had asked the information, he said, so as to be able to answer complaints from civic groups and organizations which have complained about the lag.

"From the report,' he said, "it appears equipment is being secured as rapidly as could be expected."

The report showed these orders have been placed in the three largest defense services:

For air-raid wardens—18,000 helmets, 18,000 whistles, 200 coils of rope, 150 gas identification sets, 1500 magnesium training units, 5000 flashlights, 3000 gas masks and equipment for emergency feeding.

For auxiliary policemen: 5000 steel helmets, 5000 visibility belts, 5000 badges, 5000 whistles, 5000 raincoats, 5000 overseas caps, 5000 batons, 30 radio scout cars, 75 pistol-grip spotlights, a gasoline auxiliary power plant, 27 radios and 27 transmitters.

For the communications service: Maps, plats, and printing, air raid warning devices, telephone equipment, handset telephones, patrol box keys, emergency cables, radio for Lorton, Va., and a special truck.

The gas masks cannot be obtained due to restrictions by the Army, Col. Bolles pointed out, and the flashlight order is held up pending "construction of a flashlight that can be placed in the hands of civilians without danger of detection from the air." The whistles and rope have been delivered, he said, and 100 of the 1500 magnesium training units.

Equipment for the police auxiliary has been delivered except for helmets, the auxiliary power plant, and 25 of the 27 transmitters, all of which contain vital materials. Maps and plans and air raid warning devices have been received for communications services, and a portion of the telephone equipment. Other materials are expected in "due course," he said except the hand-set telephones, which cannot be procured until Army and Navy have procured enough for their needs.

Bolles said payment for this equipment was to be made from the million dollars the District was permitted to borrow for civilian defense. Questions about armbands have caused considerable comment, he said, but the District order for them was withdrawn when it was learned OCD would furnish them from its 100 million dollars. Fire-fighting equipment also will come from the OCD funds, he pointed out.

Dark Glasses Advised For Fire Wardens

Civilian defense fire wardens should include dark glasses in their equipment needs, the Bureau of Standards warned yesterday. Tests at the bureau have shown that those who fight incendiary bombs need protection for their eyes, it was said. Blue-green, sage-green, or greenish-yellow glasses were recommended.

Judicial Rebuke

Judge Hobart Newman of the District Police Court suffered a well deserved spanking yesterday at the hands of the United States Court of Appeals. In writing the opinion of the court Justice Harold M. Stephens confined his discipline of the local judge to judicial language. But the rebuke was none the less stinging. In effect he told Judge Newman that any one with meager knowledge of the law and with ordinary human judgment would not have made the inexcusable blunder which glares out from the record in the Buckley case.

M. Edward Buckley, jr., had pleaded guilty to a charge of driving on the wrong side of the street in January, 1941. When a charge of driving while intoxicated was later filed against him, he contended that it would involve double jeopardy for the same offense. Judge George D. Neilson sensibly held that there would be no second exposure to jeopardy because the offenses were separate in law and different evidence would be required to sustain each. Attorney Buckley then demanded a jury trial. When Judge Newman, who is a friend of the defendant, had his tour of duty in the Traffic Court, however, Mr. Buckley withdrew his demand for a jury trial so that the case reverted to the Traffic Court. There Judge Newman reversed his fellow judge on the authority of some Alabama cases and in the face of clear-cut decisions to the contrary by the Court of Appeals here.

Judge Stephens showed a good deal of restraint in rebuking such conduct in legal terms. The really disturbing implication of the incident is that Judge Newman was willing to ignore the law in order to dispose of a charge against a friend. Presumably the opportunity of shifting cases to judges who may be expected to render favorable decisions will be eliminated when the Municipal Court is set up. But conduct of this type will remain a problem as long as judges with no judicial temperament are appointed to the bench.

Saving Aluminum

One of the toughest jobs in meeting the expanding requirements of the aircraft production program is to figure out ways to get around real or potential bottlenecks. Today, for example, there is a real bottleneck in aircraft accessories which, in some cases, is holding up plane deliveries. It is a bottleneck which can and will be overcome with more subcontracting. But there is a potential bottleneck which, in view of the magnitude and urgency of the production program, is infinitely more worrisome. That is the possibility of even temporary shortages of such strategic materials as aluminum alloys.

Long before the war provided additional impetus, aircraft designers were experimenting with new materials—plastics, plywood and various metal alloys—to serve specific purposes in military planes. They were less interested in supplanting aluminum as the chief component than in discovering where in the planes other materials would function to better advantage. Some of the results of their experimentation have already been of service to the Army and Navy. But only a beginning has been made compared with what is apparently to follow.

For North American Aviation, Inc., has announced, with the approval of the War Department, the development of a low-carbon, low-alloy steel which is to be used along with plywood as a substitute for aluminum in advanced training planes for the Army. In terms of aluminum conservation, according to the company, this means a saving of 623 tons on 1000 such training planes, or enough to build 420 pursuit planes or 150 medium bombers. If the claim is sustained in actual production, aluminum may prove to be not even a potential bottleneck, as some fear. For well over a third of all the planes we build are trainers of one sort or another. And if it should seem advisable to build them all of steel and plywood—which is by no means certain—the effect would be a phenomenal easing of the pressure on aluminum supplies.

In any case, North American's announcement is welcome testimony of the constant evolution of American aircraft design to meet new conditions. This, in itself, is one of the surest guarantees of air leadership, which must be ours in the war and afterward.

Free India

Since war broke out in the Pacific the need for a Pacific Charter to match the Atlantic Charter has been widely urged. The President met the agitation by saying there was no geographical limit to the Atlantic Charter. He said the charter got its name only from the place of its signature. Nevertheless, the document did not meet the demand for a specific declaration for Asia. And, obviously, the President knew it. But he could not move till Britain had reclarified its relations with India. This has now been done in the submission of the plan offering India full dominion status after the war. That plan, as outlined in Sir Stafford Cripps' statement on Sunday, lays the cornerstone of a Pacific Charter which will put Asiatic meaning into the Freedom Front's crusade against Japo-Hitlerism.

Full dominion status is a phrase that till recently was widely misunderstood in this country. It was felt to contain a catch. There was supposed to be nothing in the device which in the final analysis changed the sovereignty of Britain over the dominions. In fact, any such sovereignty was abolished with the Statute of Westminster of 1926, when the dominions became member nations of the British Commonwealth. The member nations, to be sure, acknowledged the King of Britain as their King. But the position of the King in Britain, as in the dominions, has nothing to do with power. The dominions are masters in their own house, and their relation with the mother country is one of free and equal partnership. Surely the right to secede is the crowning evidence of independence.

That is the status which is now offered to India. It meets all the aspirations that have come out of India since Mahatma Gandhi became a symbol of emancipated India and aroused the sympathy of freedom-loving Americans. Whether the Congress Party—let alone the other elements in India—will accept the proposals cannot be determined in advance. Gandhi, evidently, will not seek to prejudice the decision, though he calls the British offer a "post-dated check." That seems to imply that he wants freedom now. But, if wisdom means attention to realities, any such quibble—if it is intended as such—is scarcely wise. Already the Japanese in the Andamans and in Burma are pointing daggers at India. Moreover, a long time will be required in writing and agreeing upon a constitution for India, and the maintenance of Britain's present role in India till the war is over is equivalent in this respect to the role of ringmaster.

Another argument that may be advanced against the Cripps document is that the British retain direction of the interim defense of India and India is expected to participate in the war effort "to the full." Such an objection could be understood only in the light of past suspicions of Britain. India, together with the rest of the United Nations, is faced with a situation which makes this proviso a positive boon. India cannot defend herself. She has not developed either the personnel or the machinery even for directing that defense. For the sake of India, therefore, it would be prudent to acquiesce in the present set-up, which, as a matter of fact, will be amended to provide for Indian membership in the war councils in London. That is surely an earnest of Britain's good intentions. The Cripps document is so precise in every particular, so sweeping in its pledge, that the defense provisions deserve to be enthusiastically accepted as vital in themselves to the preservation and preparation of India for self-government.

In this country there will be a two-fold interest in India's acceptance of the British formula. India is a co-member with the United States in the United Nations. For the Agent General of India actually signed the 26-nation compact in behalf of India, thus anticipating in a degree the pledge of independence which is now offered. An ally naturally hopes that his partners will exert themselves without stint to the prosecution of the war. America likewise will see in the Cripps proposals a message to all Asia. This war is directed against a tyranny on a world-wide scale, and the United Nations can crush the threat to the remaining liberties only by organizing their fighting alliance in counterrevolutionary terms. That counterrevolution is to insure and extend the kind of liberty that is now pledged to India.

Russian Relief

Washingtonians who attend the Boston Symphony concert in Constitution Hall tonight will have the satisfaction of knowing that the entire proceeds of the affair will be turned over to Russian War Relief, Inc. This organization, founded by a group of prominent Americans, has been doing notable work in the past few months. Its funds go to purchase not only medical and hospital supplies, bedding and clothing to succor the immediate need of our hard-hitting ally, but also seed to replant the scorched earth which the Russians are now reclaiming. Those who have not already bought tickets would do themselves a service in finding time tonight to go and hear the music which the Boston Symphony will provide. But in so doing they will have found a way to support actively a fighting nation who have fought and endured nobly in our behalf as well as theirs.

Brash Mr. Dies

Henry Wallace's tongue-lashing of Martin Dies was a thoroughly workmanlike job. The brash Congressman from Texas had it coming to him. His passion for the limelight is so great that he does not always scruple about the methods he employs to achieve it. There was a time when Mr. Dies and his committee appeared to be doing a job that needed to be done in the way of exposing un-American elements in our midst. In the process, it is true, they smeared perfectly innocent individuals, while other individuals, not so innocent (George Sylvester Viereck, for instance) were handled with kid gloves. Still the public was inclined to forgive Mr. Dies' aberrations in order to permit the committee to carry on. But they will regret that indulgence, we feel, in the light of Mr. Dies' latest "crusade" against staff members of the Board of Economic Warfare.

Just why Martin Dies chooses this moment to assail these persons is not clear. The Congressman himself will no doubt protest that he was acting out of purely patriotic motives. It is permissible to suspect other motives, however. Surely he was not unmindful of the possibility that this latest "exposure" would get him into the headlines and, perhaps, help overcome the reluctance of the Appropriations Committee to approve funds for the continuance of the Dies Committee. There is certainly an "ancient and fishlike" smell about the "disclosures." Dies apparently did not consult even his own committee before giving out to the press his open letter to Vice President Wallace.

Congressman Dies sought to pillory certain individuals because of their alleged association with Communist-dominated organizations. It is a shopworn smear technique. In Mr. Dies' case it is likewise a boomerang. As a man who has appeared on the same platform with Fritz Kuhn, who has been the darling of the Christian Front, and whose words have frequently and enthusiastically been quoted by the Nazi press and radio, Congressman Dies ought to be a little chary, these days, of raising the charge of guilt through association. But Mr. Dies also stooped to smear. In the case of one individual, he cited a court verdict to condemn a man whom a higher court exonerated. Mr. Dies said nothing about the exoneration.

In impugning the patriotism of certain members of the Board of Economic Warfare, Mr. Dies was also impugning the efficiency of the Civil Service Commission and the FBI, both of whom look into the records of all prospective employes of the Government. Both give special attention to those appointed to high administrative posts. It is always possible that in this case or that a slip-up occurs. Vice President Wallace recognizes this. And he assures us, and there is not the slightest reason to doubt his assurance, that he stands "ready at all times to have any and every fact regarding our employes thoroughly investigated." But that would not have suited Mr. Dies' immediate book.

Mr. Wallace declares in his statement that the "doubts and anger which this and similar statements of Mr. Dies tend to arouse in the public mind might as well come from Goebbels himself as far as their practical effect is concerned." This is strong language. It cannot be said that it is undeserved.

BLIZZARD

STORM-STAYED IN THE PROVINCES

Now is a lawless world of snow
Closing about us with a furious, slow

The edges of the wind are curled
Like climbing seas;
And noise is hurled
Backward and forward . . . hemlock trees
Crack in the frost,
And window-panes are thick with white.

Here is unruly night!
Day was defeated, lost
Hours ago;
This turbulence is like a fence
Closing us in . . . clouds crash together
Letting fall
Their chilly weight of sleet
Like storms of granite on a granite wall.

No battling thought can meet
And overcome the gales without . . .
Here is the bitter weather!
This is the time to know
How to be still,
Not in rebellious doubt morning can ever come,
But with the stark, long patience of a country hill
Waiting for Spring through windy, winter dark.

Taken In?

What awful news from Australia! At last it is coming out in the papers that lots of our crack warriors there in the Far East are surrendering without firing a shot.

Many of them take to falling out of the regular ranks, and entering into engagements of their own.

No, they don't exactly throw down their arms. They throw them out with a kind of encircling movement, wholly unknown to military tactics. And how soft and sheepish they look. No wonder they surrender. Why, sometimes a Yank decorated for bravery is found clasping his captor to his heart!

Talk about the valor of American soldiers, when they are even getting down on their knees to be taken—by the pretty girls of Australia. F. H.

Washington, March 27.

Can't Forget

Even in war the American people won't, can't forget their domestic objectives.

Some favor pay and a half for over 40 hours, some for over 48 hours, others oppose any pay for overtime.

Some would prohibit profits during the war in excess of 6 per cent, others would leave profits unrestricted save for such tax as would bring in the most revenue.

The moderates urge the continuance or adoption of their pet domestic measure as helpful and desirable to the winning of the war.

The extremists proclaim the war will be lost unless their pet measure is speadily adopted.

It is inevitable that the people will continue to pursue their domestic objectives during the war.

America has no reason, no right to ask her citizens to forget their domestic objectives.

America has a right to ask, a right to demand, that her citizens put war and victory first, that her citizens keep their tempers and conduct their domestic controversies in an orderly manner consistent with the will of the majority as embodied in the law, whatever that may be, and in such way as not to interrupt or impede what the majority from time to time deem essential for war and victory—yet with the full right and duty of every citizen to sway the will of the majority by criticism or praise.

But until victory is won the guiding thought of every American should be: Does what I do, does what I say, contribute to victory?

Spiritual Strength For Greater Unity

For your truly fine admonition "For Greater Unity" of March 28, you will hear reechoing commendation in all directions from responsible thinkers. Allow me to add my word of appreciation.

Surely the press fulfills its highest function when it serves to uplift the thought and motives of its readers, as well as presenting the daily world events about which the clearest thinking is urgent in these testing times. ETHEL C. LUENING.

Washington, March 28.

In every great crisis America has called upon God and has been heard.

Washington knelt in the snow and called on the Ruler of Nations to bless his forces. He was answered.

Lincoln, his tired head bowed and pressed against his Bible, prayed that God would help the Union. He was answered.

President Roosevelt publicly states that he himself prays daily to God for the safety of America. He will be answered.

But the suggestion of The Post is excellent because it calls for public and organized prayer. Christ has said, "Wherever two or three are gathered together in My name, I will be there in the midst of them." Public prayer of many is better than private prayer of a few.

May the suggestion of The Post be taken to heart by all Americans everywhere. In every church in the land there should be public prayer every Sunday for God's blessing on our armed forces and for His guidance of the President.

FRANCIS DE SALES RYAN.

Washington, March 28.

As a Christian minister and reader of The Washington Post may I thank you for your superb editorial? You have rendered a rare public service. You have said some sound words which many will study. The churches are trying to do their task well. Regardless of name, every church and minister, priest and rabbi I know is working for a better world. Every churchman is in your debt. Keep up the good work. The press standing with the church makes for great power for good will and spiritual power.

I have just read your editorial on the first page of today's Post. I am a newcomer to Washington and this editorial is the first friendly warm light I have seen since I came and it makes me feel nearer my home.

It is a wonderful message full of strength that is the heritage of us all, and lifts our eyes from our plodding feet—to our high distant goal. I am grateful for it, it has helped me.

LOUISE ROGERS FRANK.

Its message is one that I believe must be accepted by any people who wish to be in a place of influence and leadership. It was a real relief to see something besides headlines concerning war, murders and other horrors, especially in a place of prominence on the very first page. CLARA BLYSTONE.

Washington, March 30.

The suggestion that our leaders go to church is a most timely one for if there ever was a time for our people to commune with God this is the time! The tone of that article was just what we should hear now and we should have more of it. As a reader for nearly 50 years of your paper, I want to tell you how much I prize it as a great voice.

M. R. SPEELMAN.

We of the Nation's Capital can have a big unity parade, preceded by unity services in all churches, if we but make the effort. Our soldiers and sailors and marines are needed at the front; we citizens can make up for their absence by meanwhile showing them that despite what they hear or read, we're marching, 100 per cent, behind their every deed. FREDERICK G. FROST.

Effete Democracies

When the great Fortress of Singapore, the bastion of the British Empire in the Far East, fell to the soldiers of the Rising Sun, British prestige took an awful slump. And, when the German squadron sailed up the Channel and thumbed their noses at John Bull, we felt that we were at the parting of the ways. The siege of Troy lasted seven years. Singapore, the greatest fortress of all time, surrendered in seven days. Disaster follows disaster in monotonous sequence and with 100,000 of our soldiers in enemy hands, it would seem that we are due for a knockout. That may happen if the Germans get the French fleet at Toulon. The war effort is stalled and the future is full of foreboding. We are fighting a resourceful and efficient enemy who has brains and uses them.

The Japanese have shown the world what a poor nation can do when they have the will and courage to do it. Japanese troops are strewn all along the Far Eastern horizon, which would indicate a supreme confidence in the maintenance of superiority in the air, and on land and sea. Their success is phenomenal. After ten years of indecisive struggle in China, Japan now challenges the world, which would appear to be a foolhardy venture. They are a poor nation, without natural resources but with a population that will work and fight. In days gone by we would do both, but in the effete democracies there appear to be large numbers who are not inclined to do either.

It is often said that we want the truth. At that memorable conference at Jerusalem, Pilate asked, "What is the truth." Nothing is so dangerous as the truth, and the truth is that for 25 years—mentally, morally, physically and culturally—our race has been on the toboggan slide, and everything has been greased for the occasion. The democracies have thought only in terms of social security and the maintenance of the high standard of living, ignorant and forgetful of the fact that social security is valueless without national security.

We have enemies without and enemies within, and those within are no less dangerous than those without. Among many others are Lady Nicotine, Old John Barleycorn and sordid politics. We hear a lot about the preservation of our way of life, and judging from the crime sheets, it is not a good way. Every man would live like a millionaire. A democratic nation with all its social legislation will soon be the loafer's paradise and the taxpayer's graveyard. Only those who think and fight have the right to survive. We have the equipment for both thinking and fighting, and the pity is that we so often do neither.

The world is at war and along the road to victory or defeat, each milestone is marked by the word, "Retribution." As we trudge along the blood-red trail, the ghosts of 2,500,000 Armenians, abandoned by so-called Christian nations after the last war, point at us the finger of scorn. For our betrayal of Armenia and Montenegro, we now pay and pay plenty. It is retribution.

Congressional Grants

Many a blunder has been comitted by the members of the present Congress; before Pearl Harbor and thereafter.

Still, one feels, there must be a few sensible members in both houses!

These few could show the people that they too are ready to share in the sacrifice imposed upon the country by the war.

They can demonstrate it by trying to abolish their frank and travel privileges—at least for the duration.

The Post Impressionist

Car Convoy

The bus stopped in a cloud of dust. "Elkhorn," shouted the driver.

We picked up our bags and stepped down. Elkhorn, Nebr. There wasn't even a bus station. The driver had stopped on the side of a dusty road in front of a general merchandise store. Across the street, pig weed grew lush around the base of two tall grain elevators. Somewhere a dog barked with a lazy yelp. There was no one in sight.

The black macadam road stretched away to the West. We picked up our suitcases and started to walk.

It was late summer in 1934, the second year of the Chicago World's Fair. We had spent two busy and expensive weeks in the amazing show. Then one morning we realized that our money was gone. Our landlady greeted us at breakfast one morning with the news that our two weeks rent was up and would we like to stay longer, money in advance, of course.

A quick survey of our resources precluded even a consideration of that course. We didn't even have money to get to the West Coast and home. After another huddle we decided the only alternative was to get out of Chicago and hitch hike. The problem was to get as far out of the city as possible and still have money to buy food if our hitching proved none too good.

At a bus depot we gave a ticket agent a handful of change and a couple of bills.

"How far West can we get on this?" we asked.

He counted the money, consulted several charts and said, "Elkhorn, Nebr.," handing us two tickets and some change.

We were dumped in Elkhorn sometime around mid-morning. Traffic was sparse and ill inclined toward bent thumbs. At noon we bought some stale doughnuts, rolls and a quart of milk.

The afternoon wore on and we walked through miles of parched grass and corn country. One short ride had proved more discouraging than hopeful.

Said the driver as we piled in the rear of his old Ford,

"Expect you're not having too good luck are you? You see last week along about here a hitch hiker robbed a driver and took his car. People are afraid to give rides now."

He turned off the highway shortly and we walked on to where a cluster of trees shaded the road.

A long line of cars appeared in the distance. As they drew nearer, our hopes rose. Out of this stream we must surely get a ride. The first car whistled by, waived and was gone. Then came the second, and we saw that there were two cars together, one towing the other. In pairs they roared past, nine, ten, eleven, fourteen pairs, tail to nose, like a long mechanical snake chain.

In the rear was a single car. Our thumbs were still extended as he passed. Then brakes groaned and he managed a 50-yard stop.

"Can you both drive, and how far do you go?" he barked as we ran up.

"Sure," we panted, "West Coast."

"So am I," he said, "pile in. I need drivers." He shifted gears with a savage jab from low to high.

"These are new cars. Got to get West in a hurry. We drive 'em to save freight."

The driver was a small man dressed in soiled coveralls. He had matted, muddy colored hair and eyes that were too close together. Bony, freckled hands gripped the steering wheel in nervous tension.

"Here's an accident release agreement to sign," he said, taking a slip of paper from his pocket. "It relieves the company of any responsibility."

We glanced at what we were signing. A clause agreeing to pay a driver five dollars a day and expenses was crossed out. He saw that we were looking at this and explained.

"We don't have to do that now. Too many people want to get to the Coast from the Fair and are willin' to drive for their trip."

About 10 o'clock that evening we stopped at a small town.

"There's two blocks of empty street here," shouted our driver, "park 'em. We'll pull out at six in the morning."

Several tired-looking drivers were coming toward us.

"Well, boss," said one with a sneer, "where do we stay in this burg?"

"There's a boarding house around the corner."

"Good," said the driver, "we'll go somewhere else."

The "boss" walked away, and the boy with the sneer looked at us.

"So he hooked two more did he? Well, you're just in time to take over my car, I'm leaving tonight. I've had enough."

The next morning the "boss" was raving. The sneering driver had kept his word. He was gone.

"Here, you two," he said, "take over his car. Keep about 100 feet behind the car you're following. Watch the car back of you. If it stops, blink your headlights so the next driver can see and then you stop. Keep together. And don't get separated in traffic."

That night someone else went AWOL and we were each given a car. On through Wyoming, Utah and Idaho streaked this caravan of new cars. Gravel and grit had marred the finish on all cars being towed.

"They'll be repainted," someone said, "and you can't tell the difference, but what about the engines. These cars haven't been broken in, and our average speed is about 60 miles an hour. And we're pulling a car!"

One night in Idaho a driver slept in his car to save a hotel bill. The next morning the "boss" found his car on a railroad crossing twenty feet down the track. The boy said he must have done it in his sleep. He was fired.

Another driver nearly ran his car and trailer into a fence at top speed when a wasp flew in the window and down his back. The "boss" was mad, but the driver was madder, so the argument was short. The "boss" wouldn't argue with anyone bigger than he was.

We finally reached the West Coast with two cars free of dented fenders or scratches. We had a dollar between us and the firm conviction that when we bought a new car we'd see it delivered by rail.

Wartime Washington

By Merlo Pusey

Too Late And Too Little Again

DISSATISFACTION over the state of public health in Washington has resulted in a good deal of furor in recent weeks. Officials are fearful of a wartime epidemic. No one wants to take responsibility for exposing the Nation's Capital to such a disaster. So belated efforts are being made in various circles to clean up some of the worst breeding places of disease and ill-health. That effort should be encouraged in every conceivable way. At the same time we must measure proposed improvements in the light of what is happening today and not what the city's needs were a few years ago.

PUSEY

Members of the House subcommittee on District health became alarmed over some conditions they discovered here some months ago and immediately called Health Officer Ruhland on the carpet. Dr. Ruhland told them, in effect, that he had been denied the means of making some parts of his program effective. That turned the spotlight on the District Commissioners. Meanwhile, Dr. Ruhland was told to "get tough" and to fight for what he needed to make Washington a healthful city.

Commissioner Mason went before the subcommittee with only a short record of public service behind him. He could not take responsibility for what had happened in the past, but he did promise to "go along with Dr. Ruhland's recommendations 100 per cent" in the future. There seemed to be general approval of a concerted attack upon syphilis, tuberculosis and various other maladies that run riot in Washington. But the public is still waiting for this offensive to begin.

DR. RUHLAND quickly took advantage of the opening the subcommittee and the Commissioners had given him. Of course, he couldn't move to the attack at once. His first step had to be the placement of an order for men and munitions. That order took the form of a deficiency budget request, which went to the District Commissioners in January. For the last four months of the present fiscal year, Dr. Ruhland requested a total of $412,085 to improve the community's health and hospital services. By the time the Commissioners got around to approving these deficiency estimates hope of securing improved health service for the last four months of the fiscal year had passed. So the period to be covered was reduced to three months. The estimates went to the Budget Bureau from the District Building on March 17.

The trimming done by the Commissioners went much further, however, than merely lopping off a month of the period to be covered. Dr. Ruhland had asked for $186,537 for health services outside the hospitals. The Commissioners approved requests totaling $84,115. That seems to be a pretty sharp comedown from Commissioner Mason's pledge that he would back up the Health Office 100 per cent.

NOW WHAT did the Commissioners eliminate? Congressmen have rightly raised a furor over the disgraceful prevalence of syphilis in Washington. Dr. Ruhland asked only $8060 for the employment of seven part-time physicians, medical attendants and clerks and for medical supplies. Instead of lopping off a quarter of that sum because of the month that has passed with nothing being done, the Commissioners cut it in half. Do the Commissioners favor a too-late-and-too-little attack upon this horrible disease that is sapping the vitality of our man power right here in the Capital?

Take a look also at what has happened to the personnel request for the Nursing Bureau. Dr. Ruhland asked for one assistant director, 10 supervisors, 25 public health nurses, 75 junior nurses and 10 clerks. The Commissioners cut this down to one assistant director, two supervisors, 16 public health nurses, 50 junior nurses and two clerks. One of the most critical deficiencies of the Health Department is its shortage of nurses. Now an increase is proposed that will scarcely compensate for the increase in population.

Still more pathetic is the inability of the department to get a modernized sanitary inspection service. Sanitary inspection in Washington for a long time has been a tragic flop, as the stench of many an alley slum testifies. Our inspection force has been composed for the most part of old men who can't climb stairs or cover any substantial area on foot. Few of them have had any training for the job. One inspector used to be a barber, another an actor, another a lawyer and so forth. To keep a city with more than its share of slums in sanitary condition with such a staff was and is utterly impossible.

Dr. Ruhland began complaining about this situation soon after he came to Washington. Since 1937 he has asked for an additional $660,000 to bring the sanitary service up to a better functioning status. During all those years, however, he has been granted only $1400 for this purpose. There has been no increase in the number of inspectors since 1920, although the population of the city has almost doubled since that year. This is no ordinary case of neglect; it is a shameful scandal.

Dr. Ruhland asked for a trained public health engineer to head the Bureau of Sanitary Inspection which now has no chief. He asked also for a chief sanitary inspector, for an assistant public health engineer to supervise protection of the city's water supply, for another expert engineer to attack the problem of insanitary housing, and for adequate staffs of inspectors. The Commissioners eliminated funds for the engineers and allowed five new inspector positions. In short, the fund to be used to attack Washington's appalling deficiencies in sanitation was slashed from $32,323 to $8940. Allowing for the last month, the city fathers are backing the health officer about 33 per cent in this important field.

If the Commissioners' advice is followed in passing the 1943 appropriation bill as well as a deficiency appropriation, it will mean an increase of about 13 per cent in the health fund. But the Budget Bureau has estimated an increase of 250,000 in Washington's population this year. In other words, it is proposed to correct the city's utterly inadequate health service by adding 13 per cent to the budget, while about 35 per cent is being added to the population.

This is not progress; it is merely diminution of the rate by which we are slipping behind. It means that Dr. Ruhland will have to fight his battle against preventable diseases with relatively less man power and fewer supplies than he has had in the past. What an incredible version of "too late and too little" right here in the Nation's Capital!

Plotters In Mexico

By John W. White

Confined For Duration

THE MEXICAN government has quietly begun the elimination of the Fifth Column in Mexico to prevent it from weakening the country's defense from within should the national safety be threatened by actual attack from without. The secret police attached to the ministry of government are arresting all Germans, Italians and Japanese who have been found associated with subversive activities or engaged in propaganda designed to create that confusion which has proven such an effective weapon of the Axis powers in waging their war of nerves throughout the world.

These Fifth Column leaders are being confined for the duration of the war in the frowning old fortress of San Carlos de Perote, 130 miles from Vera Cruz, situated on a dreary plateau 7850 feet above sea level. This old fort was constructed between 1770-77 and was the scene of several bloody battles between the Mexicans and French in the days of Emperor Maximilian. During the war with the United States in 1847 the fort was occupied by Gen. Worth and his troops. The American war left the fort in ruins and it was abandoned until recently when the government restored it as a military prison.

THE GERMAN and Italian seamen from the vessels which Mexico interned on the outbreak of the present war have been confined in the fortress. During the last few days several very prominent German and Japanese residents, whose names have not been divulged, have been sent there. They will be joined shortly by their fellow plotters.

A careful investigation of Fifth Column activities which the government has been carrying on since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor shows that very few Italians are implicated in subversive operations, but has uncovered a well-organized campaign by both Germans and Japanese.

Mexico does not plan any general confinement of Axis citizens in concentration camps, even in the event she declares war on the Axis. The ministry of government maintains a permanent registration of all foreign residents even in times of peace and the authorities say this registration will permit a careful watch over all Axis citizens. It is not expected that they will present any serious problem once the subversive agents and propaganda directors who are agitating them have been confined in San Carlos fortress.

ALL JAPANESE residents of the Pacific Coast States and of regions near the American border have been moved into Mexico City and nearby localities where a close watch can be kept over them. Several hundred of them were moved from their old homes to the vicinity of Mexico City within 30 days after the order was given.

Most of the German and Italian citizens who are not slated for arrest in the present roundup are old established residents who will not be molested by the authorities unless it is found later that they have become engaged in anti-Mexican activities, in which case they will be sent to Fort San Carlos along with the others.

This elimination of the Fifth Column leaders is expected to put an end to the reecnt underground agitation against the government's stand on the war and especially the propaganda against cooperation with the United States.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Passing Of The Buck

CONCERNING the rubber shortage, a matter of great interest to every one, there is no use crying over spilt milk. But there is every use in trying hard to see clearly the true lessons. For by understanding our mistakes we are much less likely to repeat them.

LIPPMANN

SINCE about all the natural rubber in the world comes from abroad—from British and Dutch colonial possessions in the southwestern Pacific—the primary responsibility for safeguarding our supplies of rubber rested upon the State Department. It was the business of the department to judge whether a Japanese attack was probable or even possible, and to warn the Government to take the necessary measures.

Though nothing has been published about what the State Department did, there is every reason to believe that its record here has been not only good but impressively good. Certainly as early as the summer of 1940, when Japan began to move in the direction of the rubber countries, the Government knew from the State Department that the risks of war were real enough to call for extraordinary measures to assure our supplies of rubber and other strategic materials. Authority and money were given by Congress to Secretary Jesse Jones.

THE SECOND LEVEL of responsibility was with the earliest ancestor of Mr. Nelson's War Production Board—the National Defense Council. Its business was to advise the Government as to how much rubber would be required for the arms program and for civilian use. Mr. Stettinius, foreseeing the likelihood of our being cut off from the Far Eastern supply of natural rubber, advised the Administration to build plants sufficient to manufacture 100,000 tons of synthetic rubber a year. This was in the fall of 1940, and while the amount recommended was by no means sufficient judged by our present needs, what Mr. Stettinius advised was certainly a substantial beginning, and would have laid the foundation of an industry which could have been expanded as experience was gained.

Having been warned by the State Department and given the right advice by Mr. Stettinius and the National Defense Council, the responsibility for action rested upon Secretary Jones, subject to the approval of the President. Just what happened between the fall of 1940 and the spring of 1941 is not too clear from the public record, except that Mr. Jones did with the President's approval decide to spend 25 million dollars on synthetic rubber, and that he made little headway because, as he reports it, he could persuade "neither the rubber companies nor the oil companies owning the patents . . . to spend any of their own money in manufacturing synthetic rubber." Secretary Jones, on the other hand, did not wish to spend much Government money. And so we arrive at the month of May, 1941, and Mr. Jones testifying before the Banking and Currency Committee.

MR. JONES told the committee that "it would seem we have rubber enough to run us at least 1½ years if we were cut off tomorrow from a supply of natural rubber . . . and that would give us about the time required to build synthetic rubber plants." After quoting this testimony of his to the Senate committee, Mr. Jones adds in his recent report, dated March 21, 1942, that "the problem of synthetic rubber was generally discussed in the committee, and it was the consensus that limited operations should be undertaken. The President concurred in this course." On May 16, therefore, agreements were made by Mr. Jones with business corporations to do what Mr. Stettinius had advised him to do seven or eight months earlier—namely to build synthetic plants with a 100,000-ton capacity.

This is the record, and the most important point which it raises, now that the milk has been spilt, is whether the responsibility rests upon the President or upon his Secretary of Commerce. The point is of very great importance because it involves the fundamental question, absolutely vital to the successful conduct of the war, of the President's relation to his Cabinet and the heads of the great agencies.

IN ORDER to understand the question it must first be stated accurately. Mr. Jones, speaking officially in his own behalf, says that his recommendations in regard to rubber were "approved" by the President and that "the President concurred in this course."

The day after Mr. Jones issued his report, Mr. Arthur Krock, writing in the New York Times, said that "the most interesting and revealing aspect of the report . . . is that it was the President, after Mr. Jones had gone over the rubber situation with him, who made the 1941 decision not to go into the manufacture of the synthetic product on the scale which subsequent events proved to have been necessary."

We have here the beginning of a legend. Mr. Jones having said that the President "concurred," Mr. Krock reports that the President "made the 1941 decisions." Six days later Mr. David Lawrence carried the passing of the buck further: "Just why the President refused to allow the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to appropriate sufficient money either for Government-owned or Government-sponsored plants is not yet officially explained."

MR. LAWRENCE'S comment is downright misrepresentation, and a great disservice to the cause of sound journalism. Mr. Lawrence states flatly that the President "refused to allow" Mr. Jones to do what Mr. Jones himself says he did not wish to do. If the President "concurred" in the Jones program, is it fair to make it appear that Mr. Jones wanted to do something better, and that the President "refused to allow" him to do it?

Mr. Krock's interpretation, though it seems to me seriously misleading, turns on a more debatable matter. It is whether, since Mr. Jones was charged with the responsibility for our rubber supply, the President can be said to have "made" the crucial decision when he concurred in Mr. Jones' recommendation. For if the President "made the 1941 decision," then we must suppose that the President is supposed to know more about rubber and the technology of making synthetic rubber than the Cabinet officer whose prime duty it was to take care of the rubber supply.

IT IS impossible, I submit, to conduct a great government, and especially in time of war, if the President is to be held responsible, or if he is willing to be held responsible, for highly technical decisions of this character. My view is that the President is responsible for Mr. Jones but that Mr. Jones was responsible for the rubber supply, responsible for giving the right advice and responsible for taking the right action. Until the President was convinced that Mr. Jones was not the right man to take charge of rubber, it was necessary for the President to concur in what Mr. Jones recommended about rubber.

MANY of the President's troubles come, as they have in this case, from the fact that he himself is so unclear about this fundamental principle of good administration. Because he is unclear about it, he is excessively tolerant of weakness in his subordinates and inordinately willing to carry on his own shoulders burdens that a sound administrator would fix firmly and squarely on their shoulders. The effect is to protect weak men in his official family, men who lean absurdly too much on the President; the effect also is to weaken strong men in his official family by diluting that sense of responsibility without which there is no initiative and no enterprise.

Fair Enough

Our War Effort

Tucson, Ariz.

NO MAN can accuse me of optimism and get away with it, for my record shows that I have always feared the worst, a trait which may account entirely for my dismal failure in draw poker. But on a recent evening in Tucson I attended a mass meeting called for the purpose of expressing alarm at our laggardness in the war, and at the height of the speaking, which touched some rather lofty peaks of indignation, it occurred to me that these people probably did not know how well or how poorly we have been doing and, in short, did not know what they were talking about. It surely is not boastful to say that a newspaper man with my cruising radius and entree knows at least a little more about what goes on than persons in most other lines of work, but I realized that I had had only glimpses of the effort, and these more encouraging than depressing.

Who of us know how many soldiers are under arms? How many guns and tanks and of what kinds and how many planes and of what types and how much ammunition we have today or what are the rates of production and increase or how our production of ships compares with the rate of losses? I haven't the faintest idea, but I take comfort from the realization that when we became a war-mongering Nation, as Hitler called us, we were almost disarmed and have achieved such weight and power as we now possess, aside from the Navy, in less than three years, including a period of six months during which we just forgot the enemy to roll on the barroom floor amid the spillings and sandwich rinds and butts in one of those quadrennial political frenzies which always interrupt our functions and embitter us among ourselves.

IT HAS been less than three years since Gen. Hugh Drum presided over a humiliating outing of the armed forces up around Plattsburg in which the inexperience of the officers was purposely made conspicuous so that the people would realize, with shock, how puny we were in a world of marauding military giants. Those great barracks which are now to be seen in the Army centers were still trees in their native forests and the nails and paints were still in the ground. The old war plants were rusty and we had hardly started an inventory of our goods and raw materials.

From one place and another, often through the mention of union troubles on the projects, we have been hearing within the last 18 months of powder plants which were not even drawings three years ago, and those people who live in certain areas where the planes fly over singly and in twos and threes and by the dozen must realize that there was no such traffic across the skies when President Roosevelt went before Congress at the fall of France to outline the dangers and the task. The tough, unlovable Tom Girdler, a man more like John L. Lewis than either of them would like to admit, was still making steel and was catching hell from all sides for beating the ears off Lewis in Wrong John's revolutionary attempt to extend his dictatorial power into an area where he would be a very dangerous man today. Just now Girdler is making planes for the war and, according to my reading, is turning them out on an assembly line, the first American factory in which that has been done with these big jobs, although Henry Ford is fixing to do the like at Willow Run, but not for some time yet.

WE HAD neither the soldiers nor quarters in which to house them nor weapons to arm them so short a time ago, and the motor industry, now abandoned and its plants converting to war production, was still spawning cars for individual use. We had no powder factories worth mentioning and we were turning out our tanks at a Government arsenal which compares to the present capacity as a tinker's bench to a great factory.

I can't even speculate on the output today, but we all know it is considerable and growing as compared with zero-plus when we began this job, and I suggest that the Office of Facts and Figures might substitute a little practical information on this matter for some of its inspirational stuff without communicating to the enemy information which he doesn't possess already. After all, we have in our midst the accredited representatives of several nations which are more friendly to our enemies than to us, and I think we may assume that they are keeping the Axis reasonably informed of our more lumpy achievements.

We boasted much of our industrial war effort in the other one, but I have a pleasant suspicion that right now in this one we are producing much more and that the real reason why our rulers keep nagging us and scaring us is not that we have flopped so far but that this time we must give it all we have got, which is many times what we have done to date.

Incidentally, at this indignation meeting of which I spoke, there were few if any who had the appearance of men or women who were working at the lathe or bench on war production.

U. S. Production Lag

There's Still Time To Meet Goals

AMERICAN production of warplanes, tanks, antiaircraft guns and ships is expanding rapidly, but it still is behind the rate needed to reach the goals set by President Roosevelt in his message to Congress on the State of the Union in January.

The President, at that time, fixed these colossal production goals: 60,000 planes in 1942 and 125,000 in 1943; 45,000 tanks in 1942 and 75,000 in 1943; 20,000 antiaircraft guns in 1942 and 35,000 in 1943, and eight million deadweight tons of merchant ships in 1942 and ten million tons in 1943.

With the first quarter of 1942 nearly gone, these goals still are on the horizon. They can still be attained, but if so production must be stepped up sharply, bottlenecks must be removed drastically, industries must be converted to war production with little regard to civilian desires.

The production goals themselves gradually are undergoing changes. They must undergo changes to keep pace with the fortunes of war.

Since America still is on the defensive, production aims inevitably must shift to meet unexpected military developments. Only when this country definitely is on the offensive and is in a position to know with some degree of certainty the situation with which it is faced, can it make positive production plans not subject to overnight revision.

For example, the merchant ship production goal for 1942 is now nine million tons instead of eight million, due to sinkings. Ship output, however, is running behind what was regarded as necessary to meet the eight-million-ton goal.

Figures in most cases cannot be revealed because they are military secrets. But here is a general outline of the production situation as it stands with regard to different kinds of critically needed equipment:

PLANES. Output of warplanes actually has reached colossal proportions in comparison to what was thought possible when the armament program was launched nearly two years ago. Donald M. Nelson, war-production chief, announced recently that production had increased 50 per cent since Pearl Harbor.

That would mean more than 3000 planes per month, judging by previous announcements that output had reached 2000 per month last fall. Moreover, a large portion of these planes are of combat type.

The President in January called for 45,000 combat planes this year, which means that 75 per cent of 1942 production would represent combat ships, and the rest trainers. This ratio has not been reached as yet, but the percentage of combat ships in total production is rising.

Spokesmen for the aircraft industry say the outlook for plane production now is better since Nelson, overriding opposition within the Army and Navy Munitions Board, has granted a blanket A-1-A priority rating for all materials and parts that go to make planes, as well as the machine tools used to make planes and parts.

The main aircraft bottleneck right now, industry leaders insist, is material shortages, and the lack of an even flow of materials.

TANKS. Output of light tanks, used largely for reconnaissance purposes, already had reached a fairly high level at the time of Pearl Harbor, and at the present time is expanding less rapidly than production of medium tanks, on which the Allied armies will rely chiefly in ground operations.

Mass production of the big 58-ton heavy tanks, which will be used for break-through purposes at strongly fortified points, is just getting under way. The first heavy tank was delivered December 8.

The main thing, in the tank picture, is the medium tank. Only last April was a start made in producing these tanks, which the German armies found so devastating in France. Right now production is well ahead of the pre-Pearl Harbor schedule, and plans for expanded output are being made more rapidly than was anticipated.

But those in charge of the program still must perform remarkable feats if production is to reach the President's goal.

ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS. Before Pearl Harbor, production of these highly essential guns was slight. It still is small compared with production goals. In fact, is only getting under way.

In relation to production plans, output is behind schedule. A major problem has been the lack of machine tools.

SHIPS. Merchant ships are being turned out at the rate of one a day at the present time, which is less than 300,000 deadweight tons a month. In order to reach the new goal of 9,000,000 tons in 1942, output must average 900,000 tons a month during the last nine months of this year.

This is probably the most critical problem in the whole production program. Merchant ship production now definitely is behind schedule. It is going to be almost a superhuman feat if output reaches the President's goal.

All U. S. Behind You, President Tells A. E. F. In North Ireland

By the Associated Press

With the United States Army in Northern Ireland, March 30.—A message from President Roosevelt to every member of the United States Army Expeditionary Force arrived at headquarters today for distribution to the soldiers.

"You will be supported by the whole force and power of this Nation," said the President's message on White House stationery. "The victory you win will be the victory of all the people—common to them all."

The text of the President's message:

"To members of the United States Expeditionary Forces:

"You are soldiers of the United States Army.

"You have embarked for distant places where the war is being fought.

"Upon the outcome depends the freedom of your lives; the freedom of the lives of those you love—your fellow citizens—your people.

"Never were enemies of freedom more tyrannical, more arrogant.

"Yours is a God-fearing, proud, courageous people, which throughout its history has put its freedom under God before all other purposes.

"We who stay at home have our duties to perform—duties owed in many parts to you—you will be supported by the whole force and power of this Nation. The victory you win will be the victory of all the people—common to them all.

"You bear with you the hope and confidence, the gratitude and prayer of your families and your fellow citizens and your President.

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

War Effort Must Not Menace U. S. System, Martin Warns

By the Associated Press

Enid, Okla., March 30.—Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., Republican National chairman, said tonight the Nation's war effort should not be used as a cover under which to destroy our American way of life.

Declaring that "We must all realize now that if the Axis political and social doctrines gain prevalence in the world, human liberty will vanish," Martin, in a speech prepared for delivery at a Republican meeting, outlined his party's victory program.

"The sole consideration in the choice of both military and civilian administrators and directors of the war effort shall be their ability, training and capacity to do a good job and to do it as quickly as possible," he said.

"Every motive and purpose of American industry, agriculture and labor must be geared to the greatest possible war effort.

"Every ounce of energy, every wheel in the producing capacity of small business in the United States ought to be and must be utilized directly or indirectly in the war effort.

"Every man and woman, of whatever race, creed or color must be impressed with the vitally paramount issue of winning this war for freedom, enlightenment and human progress, both for those of this generation and for posterity."

"At no time," he declared, "shall the war effort be used as a cover under which to destroy our free American system of government, our American way of life, or our American free enterprise economic system."

The Massachusetts Representative called for the elimination of every function and activity of the Government not essential to the war effort, the maintenance of a free press a free radio and free speech and asserted "there can be no place in Government for partisanship or self-seeking bureaucracy.

"We must regard this struggle as a total war in the sense we not only must vanquish the physical armies and armament of the Axis dictators, but we must also stamp out of the world the doctrines which they represent.

"While a total war effort is under way we shall exercise every possible foresight to prepare for post war problems.

"Resist inflation and oppose any repudiation of the public debt.

"No group or party shall use the Nation's peril or the war effort to maintain itself in power by other than the most constructive patriotic, efficient and unselfish efforts to achieve the welfare of the whole Nation.

"Any failure to win this war conclusively and decisively would be a failure to win it at all. The fate of humanity for a long time to come will be decided in the issues of this war."

Women to Lose Cut-Rate Taxes On Admissions

By the Associated Press

The Treasury yesterday abolished cut rates for women on admission taxes.

Amending its regulations, the Treasury ruled that if women are admitted free or at reduced rates to dances or other amusements they must pay admissions tax at the same rate as men pay on full rate tickets.

Officials said that, as far as they knew, the change would affect primarily only dance admissions. Taxes on ladies' days at ball games and other functions usually have been figured according to the new ruling.

Director Alfred Hitchcock To Attend Keith Premiere

Expected in Capital for 'Saboteur' Opening; Children's Theater to Close Season Saturday; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

FREE-SPIELING INTO ACTION with the most detonating of his descriptives, Manager Hardie Meakin shouts from his Alpine housetop that "with lights blazing, bands blaring and celebrities from the country over in attendance," RKO-Keith's Theater will celebrate the world premiere of "Saboteur," Alfred Hitchcock's most recent production, on the night of Wednesday, April 15. Barring blackouts, blizzards and bomb scares, one presumes.

ALFRED HITCHCOCK

One of the unique aspects of this occasion is discoverable in the fact that it is being sponsored by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, the Washington columnists and radio commentators, who specialize in uncovering sabotage and smacking it down as soon as it waggles its slimy head.

Present plans will bring Mr. Hitchcock here for the opening, surrounded by a phalanx of the official upper stratum of Universal Pictures, producers of the film—which, as we seem vaguely to remember it, bears some sort of blood relationship to Mr. Hitchcock's earlier "The 39 Steps." Or maybe not, so don't take my guess for it. Anyhow, Robert Cummings and Priscilla Lane are the costars.

The premiere, by the way, will be by invitation.

And another thing of Universal interest, while we think of it. Manager Roland S. Robbins, of the Trans-Lux Theater, announces a preview of "Cavalcade of Aviation" tomorrow afternoon at 4:15. Representatives of the Junior Aviator Club of the public schools, members of the press and radio and aviation officials will be guests of the management. The fine hand of Bernie Kreisler, short subject sales manager for Universal, is suspected in the arrangement that will put the business on the air over WRC, beginning at 4:22.

Last Call for the Kiddies

On Saturday morning at 10:30, in the National Theater, the last play of its current season in Washington will be presented by the Clare Tree Major Children's Theater of New York. The attraction will be "The Poor Little Rich Girl," a play that lays timely emphasis on real values with no impairment of interesting and sprightly entertainment.

So Hoot Gibson, "Fog Horn" Clancy and Joe Holman barge by the desk for a little preliminary chatter about Col. Eskew's Championship Rodeo, coming into Riverside Stadium on April 4, and much retrospection about the old silent picture days, Will Rogers, show business in general and, in particular, how few Easterners seem to know what a rodeo is all about. We'll be getting around to that later, one way or another. In the meantime, Hoot looks like a million, and says he feels the same way, and, if you have any doubt about it, you will recognize the "Fog Horn" by his emerald green coat that couldn't possibly have a visibility of more than 10 miles or so!

Tonight in Roosevelt High School Auditorium, the Masquers of Roosevelt Community Center, under the auspices of the Community Center and Playgrounds Department, will present Julian Thompson's three-act comedy of "The Warrior's Husband," the play in which Katharine Hepburn scored one of her most substantial early Broadway hits. A long and well-drilled cast will be seen under the direction of Pauline Eaton Oak.

More than one of the staff of this pillar of journalistic rectitude are wondering—and asking this equally curious desk—what Paul Muni's aversion to the sidewalk in front of the National Theater is all about. It seems that Mr. Muni yesterday was seen to approach the marquee, detour into the sloppy street, pick his way around the parked cars and come up on dry land again at the stage entrance. It looked like a lot of muddy meandering for nothing. But don't ask me. I don't know why actors won't whistle in dressing-rooms, either. Maybe if I ask him—

Pictures Can Wait!

Hollywood, Calif., March 30.—I don't believe Hollywood knows that Eddie Albert has been working like mad with the sheriff's office, rounding up enemy aliens; and he has an idea how to put to work our 100 or more privately owned boats, and some of the fishing ships now held by the Government. It's a swell idea, and he's laying it before the Governor's committee in Sacramento. "But Eddie," I said, "when are you going to make a picture?" "In April, I hope." Picture is "Lady Bodyguard," at Paramount.

LUPE VELEZ

On that Mexican junket of 132 people, the funniest thing was that many of the Mexican soldiers didn't recognize our Hollywood stars. Lupe Velez quickly changed her impersonation from Gloria Swanson, whom they didn't know, to Mexican Dolores Del Rio, whom they did. But they certainly knew all about "Deep in the Heart of Texas," even when it was sung in English—and clapped and stamped at the right places. Irving Berlin made a big hit with "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

I hear there'll be even more fireworks in the Rita Hayworth-Ed Judson divorce than have already come out, and all pretty sordid, too.

Needing background shots of a boys' school for "Major and Minor," they're going to shoot the one which Orson Welles attended as a youth.

With a whole galaxy of stars and actors on the "Thunderbirds" location, a friend from there writes that the most popular, even though he's been neglected in Hollywood, is Jack Holt—especially with the English cadets in Phoenix.

John Carroll's going to surprise you in "Pierre of the Plains." That's a part that's just up his alley. After this, his critics are going to eat their words.

Dudley Nichols' "Air Force" will include actual battle scenes from the war in the Pacific, they hope.

cast as the falling star who clutches at "Yesterday's Magic," in the Theater Guild's production of Emlyn Williams' play of that name, now at the National Theater. In "Yesterday's Magic," given its metropolitan premiere in the National Theater last night, Emlyn Williams has contributed another warmly human, bravely gay, tender and poignant play to the American stage.

Into it have been woven humor and pathos and laughter and tears and tragedy, unerringly fashioned into a pattern of moving and memorable "theater." There is about it a spirit of deep integrity, a solid soundness of scene and situation and an insight into character that will not easily be effaced from memory.

With unusual cunning the author has pitched his play against a dim background of the footlights. Into a shoddy garret in a house in Long Acre, London, W. C. 2, he has moved the atmosphere of the theater to accentuate the tragic frustration of a great actor's rehabilitation.

Here live Maddoc Thomas, once the idol of London, commended by Sir Henry Irving and applauded by the Royal house, and his crippled daughter. For eight years he has squandered a great talent, content with his bottle, his tawdry new associates and the pittance derived from his intermittent compilation of old Welsh songs and the meager labors of his heroically patient and devoted child, who never had known her mother. Love, a home and children have been denied Cattrin Thomas by her affliction—until a young composer moves into house and secures a small part for the fallen star in a musical piece for which he has written some of the songs. The old spark is rekindled in the father's breast and a new one in his daughter's.

Drama of Human Frailty

With this tiny triumph, the dingy loft is transformed into a livable home, with comfort, happiness and a little dignity. The unfortunate associations are gradually broken off and the great Maddoc Thomas is on his way to play "King Lear" in Covent Garden under the management of C. B. Cochran and reclaim the prestige, the honor and the riches of the mighty.

When the gaudy fancy lady from the floor below divulges the daughter's plan to marry the young musician and leave for American immediately after the gala opening of "Lear," the little castle tumbles about their heads in as profoundly moving an interval of drama as a season is apt to produce.

To this basic movement of the play have been added gusty puffs of laughter, little swirls of pathos and a gentle play upon the emotions that grows finally into the grim dimensions of tragedy. The three acts and six scenes have more of beauty than of bitterness, greater warmth than chill, and build steadily with never any recession from a taut and gripping interest.

The characters of father and daughter have been made the medium of a thoughtful, penetrating and kindly exposition of those fundamentals of mind and heart that point the way to duty, devotion and understanding and in them lies the greatest measure of "Yesterday's Magic's" valid claim to a place among the season's most impressive examples of distinguished playwriting.

Cast of Exceptional Balance

To them, Paul Muni and Jessica Tandy bring splendid talents. Mr. Muni's sharp contrast between the unkempt derelict of the first act and the scholarly figure of the second, restored to something of his former glory, is impressively maneuvered and his tenderly pathetic last act is brought off with equal ease and restraint.

Miss Tandy, although occasionally a little unsteady in her lines last evening, is throughout the play a figure of great gentleness, charm and strength. Alfred Drake, as the young composer, brings the full power of its beauty to one of the matchless love scenes of modern drama and Margaret Douglas achieves something of a personal triumph in the role of Mrs. Lothian, a Maddoc Thomas "fan" from girlhood.

Brenda Forbes, as the incomparably droll Mrs. Banner; Cathleen Cordell, the superficial temptress, and Patrick O'Moore complete the admirable cast of an admirable play.

Never Batted an I.O.U.!

New York, March 30.

In Washington last week William Batt, of the War Production Board, testified before a committee which was trying to place responsibility in the shortage of synthetic rubber. In the report which Mr. Batt read to the committee, Jesse Jones fared none too well—although the report indicated that the President had advised Mr. Jones in this matter . . . That same night the Joneses were scheduled to play bridge at the home of Mr. Batt. The host prepared a bottle of 1871 brandy which Lord Beaverbrook had presented to him, and some caviar which he had brought back from Moscow, after the completion of his mission there. Then he waited—and the Secretary of Commerce and his wife arrived, on schedule . . . They played bridge. Mr. Batt won $14.

ORSON WELLES

Lord Beaverbrook will go to Arizona soon, because of his sinus trouble . . . Lieut. James Stewart received instructions to fly to New York, under sealed orders. The screen star made his farewells, positive that at last he was going into action. He arrived in New York, and received the fateful order—to appear on the "This Is War" program . . . Jimmy Walker volunteered to broadcast, "at any time," for the Treasury's Minute Men program. The Treasury assigned the eloquent orator to make his one-minute broadcast Friday night, at 10:15—while the Louis-Simon fight was broadcast over a rival hook-up . . . Jerome Weidman, the novelist, has resigned his editorial post with Simon & Schuster. He will devote all his time to a new Government assignment.

Five weeks after his arrival in Rio, Orson Welles took his first swim, to display his new red bathing trunks—and now he's recuperating from sunburn poisoning . . . Kurt Weill, the composer, now is in Chicago to write the musical background for Helen Hayes' recitations, which are being recorded. Weill, who wrote the music for "Lady in the Dark," also has brought Miss Hayes plans for a new musical play . . . Zero Mostel, the cafe society downtown comic, now has a 13-week contract with N. B. C.'s "Lower Basin Street" program.

Max Gordon, the producer, sent a message to Jerome Chodorov, coauthor of "My Sister Eileen," about the movie adaptation of that play, which Chodorov also had coauthored. "Dear Jerry," the message began, "pay no attention to those false reports in the Hollywood Reporter and Variety about another writer being called in to work on the screen-play of 'Eileen.' Take my word for it, there positively is no truth to that report. Best regards—Max" . . . To that message was appended a hurried postscript, reading: "Just spoke to Briskin. He informs me that another writer just was brought in—Max."

Louis Bromfield is responsible for the fact that Gandhi never has visited America. When Bromfield was in India his advice was asked about such a trip. "No," the novelist advised. "Americans would laugh at a man draped in a sheet and surrounded by a spinning wheel and a goat" . . . The Stork Club's Sherman Billingsley—who was raised in Enid, Okla.—received a note from Socialite Bill Fairchilds, who practically was raised in the Stork Club. Fairchilds now is in the Army, stationed in Enid, Okla. . . . At the dress rehearsal of the C. B. S. Playhouse's presentation of "Mr. Chips" Charles Martin introduced Fredric March as "Mr. Marsh." The film star protested: "Not 'Marsh'—as in 'swamp'—but 'March'—as in 'forward.'"

Sub Chief Knew What Ship Carried

Survivor Says He Also Told Him About Destination

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., March 30.—Survivors declared today that the commander of a German submarine knew the home port and destination of a United States freighter torpedoed and sunk in West Indian waters, while British sailors said they were waved to safety before a U-boat opened a shelling attack to sink their tanker.

One man lost his life in the sinking of the American vessel. Three were lost when the British ship was sent to the bottom.

The Americans said the sub commander even knew what the ship was carrying.

Sub Puts Man on Raft

The third mate, Arthur Wilder, of Weymouth, Mass., dived off of the stricken ship without a life belt. He was picked up by the submarine and transferred to a raft.

The steward, Wilfred J. Brunean, of Hollywood, Calif., was taken aboard the sub for questioning. He asked for cigarettes, and was given a box of German make, and a box of German matches.

One man—Clark Xavier, of Providence, R. I., was lost, being swept from a raft after all hands were removed safely from the ship.

Six survivors who were in the water for 13 hours were spotted from the air and picked up by surface craft.

"I saw the torpedo coming," related Thomas E. Sullivan, of Boston, seaman, "but it was so close that I didn't have time to say anything before it hit us and exploded.

"We were hit just after midnight, and the ship sank in about 15 minutes.

"I had to swim hard to keep clear of the submarine. It kept maneuvering. Why, that captain handled it like an automobile, running forward, then backing up.

"There was a heavy swell, and by the time the ship went down and the submarine had left, I couldn't find the lifeboat or a raft.

Sullivan said he, Capt. W. D. Graham, of Pulaski, Va., and an assistant engineer kept close together all night. Three other survivors swam to them after daybreak, and the six stayed together until they were picked up.

Sinking of the British ship was announced from Nassau March 20.

First Mate G. Keedwell said the sub scored a lucky torpedo hit in the engine room "just where it should have been to sink us."

Bishop Speaks

Noon Lent Talks Draw Big Crowds

The theme of dependence on Christ in a present-day troubled world was taken by Washington ministers yesterday at largely attended noon-hour Lenten services.

The Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, speaking at Epiphany Church, asked "to whom can we turn but Jesus?" and with the observation that His humanity is as closely discernible as His Deity. He asked his congregation, which filled the G Street church's auditorium, to dwell during their Lenten observances "on the great moments in the closing hours of Christ's life."

"The Escape of Christ" was the topic of the Rev. Howard Stone Anderson, pastor of First Congregational Church, Tenth and G Streets Northwest, in services joined in by the congregations of Calvary Baptist Church, Mount Vernon Place Methodist and New York Avenue Presbyterian Churches.

Dr. Anderson's text was "But He, passing through the midst of them, went his own way." His sermon was based on the incident at Nazareth, when Jesus returned to his home place and read the Scriptures in His own synagogue and was received unfavorably when he declined to work any miracles there because of the people's little faith. The people had tried to hurl Him to death.

"Just as the narrow and sensation hungry residents of His own village could neither confine nor destroy, just so all who have come after Him since then have been unable to hamper or obstruct His progress," said Dr. Anderson.

The early church tried to hold Him by their differences over the minutiae of religion. The Greeks with their philosophy, the Romans with their law, tried to restrain Him. The painters and sculptors have tried to represent Him as weak and effeminate. Some have tried to keep Him in the pages of a book, the Bible, and others would keep Him only in the fellowship of their own denomination, or race, or nation. He escapes all these," said Dr. Anderson.

"But it is for our encouragement that He will not stoop and entangle Himself in anything less than God's perfect will," he stated. "As we enter this week of perfect devotion, discipline, surrender and sacrifice, we can glimpse a kind of life from which He will not escape—in which we may have perfect fellowship and support from Him."

Debate Blocked on Seize-Freeze Bill

defense projects under the Army Engineer Corps.

Specifically, he accused the International Hod Carriers Union with "profiteering off of common labor, the lowest paid labor on the job" at the Kansas Ordnance Plant, at Parsons, Kans. He said no man could get a job at the plant unless he held a card in the local union of the hod carriers' organization, which was organized "from the outside." He said a $12 initiation fee was charged, and monthly dues were $2.

"The 'gravy' was too rich to let honest country boys pour it, so outsiders were sent in," Reed said. "It was charged by officers of the locals existing in this territory that those sent in were remnants of labor racketeering which had been common in Kansas City, Mo., during the Pendergast regime."

Reed estimated that fees and dues on this one project would run to about $216,000 and that the "take" of several construction trade unions from workers on war work was "at least" $30,370,903. He said this was based on an initiation fee of $12 for hod carriers, $25 for truck drivers, $50 for carpenters and $150 for electricians. Plumbers, steamfitters, bricklayers and the other crafts paid a membership fee between the high and low limits, he said.

When Connally sought recognition to call up his plant seizure bill, the nod went instead to Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana. Murray moved to call up his Senate bill creating a $100,000,000 small defense plants corporation.

But for the remainder of the day, debate centered on the labor issue, as one Senator after another rose to back either Barkley or Connally.

Senator Chandler (Democrat), of Kentucky said time lost from labor disputes had dropped to three one-hundredths of one per cent since Pearl Harbor and Senator Barkley declared:

"It is not wise, it is not in the interest of war production, it is not in the interest of harmony or unity to stir up our people over an issue that is being settled by voluntary arrangement, by voluntary negotiation, by men sitting down at a table with men responsible for men working."

Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, disagreed. He said a Congressional committee should approach the whole problem of profits, salaries, excess bonus and wages and the 40-hour law. He cited the recent disclosure of war bonuses paid by Jack & Heintz, Inc., on aviation work as "just as wrong and unpatriotic as some of the unjustified strikes."

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, observed that "we should not be misled by encouraging statistics into believing that this strike problem has all been happily settled and put behind."

"There is no way of estimating how much is being lost by this new, insidious method of slowdowns, in dealing with defense production."

Senator Hollman (Republican), of Oregon, said that while the number of strikes may be small, tie-ups in such vital plants as those making plane propellers might hold up a broad program.

Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana agreed with Barkley that the War Labor Board could settle strikes quickest through voluntary action, and Senator Brown (Democrat), of Michigan, asserted that the President now has the authority to do everything provided in the Connally bill.

Connally announced he will ask recognition to move to call up his bill as soon as the Murray small business bill is disposed of.

Young Blades Are Sporting Mixed Colors

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

THIS EASTER will see young blades deliberately attired in colors that do not match—"deliberate contrasts" they call it. Coats will contrast with trousers, or vice versa, and the greater the difference in the color scheme, the better it is liked.

Psychologists say it is the war—that boys 18 or less are too young to get into actual fighting and therefore they rely on bizzare and daring clothes to give them excitement. We believe, however, it's just that stylists have finally caught on to the fact that boys are always mixing up their clothes. They get tired of being the dull-colored ones while girls are ablaze with all kinds of hues and gadgets.

Mary Haworth's Mail

will not appear for some days, due to the fact that Miss Haworth has been called out of town.

Bold Patterns

Newest in these contrasting color schemes are the colorful and bold pattern effects combined with plain shades in the same outfit. A gold plaid coat might contrast with a plain pair of gray flannel trousers. Flannels are always replaceable with gabardines, coverts or any one of several other fabrics in a solid shade. This same idea may also be carried out in browns, blues, tans and heathers, while the coats are available in a great hodge-podge of colors.

If a young fellow is particularly attracted to loud colored trousers, he may reverse the process. The coat may be in a solid shade—camel's hair, the new maize shade, brown or blue—and trousers in a bold plaid or herringbone pattern. Not only young fellows, but boys of all ages like to mix up their clothes; in fact, it is being done by youths from 6 to 17, and the college freshman likes the idea as well as the high school boy. The strangest color combinations are usually found in the younger boys age range, however.

Boys Style Conscious

This style feature is not confined to a coat and trouser outfit. Deliberate contrasts are carried right through the entire boy's wardrobe. They are to be had in shirts, neckwear, headwear, sweaters and hosiery. As a suggestion, a coat in a bold and bright-colored pattern goes best with a solid pastel shirt and tie, while a solid shade hat goes best with a multicolored coat.

Stylists say that the idea that boys really do not care how they look is not true. Boys do like to be casual, but they are pretty particular how they go about it. It has been found by parents that boys are more conscious of clothes than they ever have been before—a good chance to sow early the seeds of practical value and good dress.

Boys Steal Girls' Gay Colors for Easter

Navy and Army Officers Hew to Traditional Lines

TRADITIONS don't pale one bit when Army and Navy officers make their choice of entrees at lunch. It was fish for the Navy officer and turkey for the Army officer at luncheon at the Pall Mall Room, Raleigh Hotel recently.

Chef Jules Anbray makes fine dishes but the two dishes—Fried Silver Smelts and Turkey Cutlets which these service men chose are two dishes that I think are extra special. With Lenten season still on, the Navy choice is one that any homemaker might consider serving. Here was the choice of the Navy man:

Navy Luncheon Menu

Clam Juice Cocktail.
Fried Silver Smelts,
Tartar Sauce.
French Fried Potatoes,
Carbigo Relish.
Chocolate Custard Pudding.
Coffee.

Turkey cutlets with fresh mushroom sauce is a glorious dish. This is the entree the Army officer chose. And the following was his menu selection:

Army Luncheon Menu

Chilled Vegetable Juice.
Turkey Cutlets.
Fresh Mushroom Sauce.
Lima Beans.
Shoe String Potatoes.
Blackberry Pie.
Coffee.

Smelts should be left in the natural shape or skewer like letter "S." They may be boned. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dip in crumbs, egg, and crumbs, or roll in flour. Fry in deep fat, 379 degrees, for 3 to 5 minutes. As soon as smelts are put into fat, reduce heat so that they may not become too brown before cooked through. Serve with Tartar Sauce.

Your Personal Success

Piano Lessons

MUSIC HELPS to create a charming personality! The girl whose friends are just "dream friends" should learn to play the piano.

There's a modern system by which you can easily teach yourself and you can also learn favorite airs a short-cut way. People will always gather around for such lovely tunes as "Everything I Love!"

In learning to play, your first step is reading music. In this you're aided by a keyboard chart showing life-size the most-used part of the real piano keyboard and giving with each key its music note.

Place the chart behind the keyboard so keys fit exactly—you see at once the key to play for a note.

The short-cut way to popular airs is this: Instead of playing the sometimes hard accompaniment, just play the simple melody line with your right hand and with your left some harmonizing chords.

Practice these a little and you've learned a new hit—which makes you, too, a hit at the next party you go to.

Turn dream admirers into real admirers. Our 24-page piano instruction book makes it easy to learn to play. Includes the keyboard chart and clearly explains elements of music, including time signatures. Has a table of chords and six simple favorites for practice.

Send 15 cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for our instruction book, "A Short Cut to Piano Playing," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York City. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of instruction book.

If Lean Years Lie Ahead, Get in Shape!

By Ida Jean Kain

PRODUCTION experts who are throwing themselves heart, soul and sinew into winning the war for us say we have grown entirely too soft and sluggish. And, generally speaking, there does seem to be a lot of chronic spring fever about.

A considerable percentage of the nation is due to get lean and hard. And while it is nice to know that toughening up makes for better looks, diet and exercise have ceased to be merely beauty measures. Where needed, they are almost an obligation, for they are the means of toughening up.

If you are more than 10 per cent overweight, you are obese. Fat is inert tissue and it makes for inertia. It is in your way. Get rid of it. In six weeks you can lose anywhere from 15 to 20 pounds—provided your doctor approves your reducing at such a steady pace. And you can lose weight on a diet that builds up your vitality.

Not a thing you need is left out of the carefully planned reducing diet. You get your calcium from skim milk and cheese, your protein and minerals from lean meat and eggs, and your vitamins from fresh fruits, vegetables and dairy products. Consequently, you improve your health as you average a weight loss of 2 pounds per week.

Ease Into Exercise

As for exercise, ease into it. You only retard matters by plunging into an exercise program without regard for how long it has been since you have had any. There is no sense in trying to make yourself out an athlete when you're not. Begin easily and you will enjoy the way you feel afterwards.

Stretching and limbering are very good conditioners. They tone your muscles without strain and, for all their mildness, put you into shape. Start off with the simple stretch-bend:

Stand erect with your feet parallel and slightly apart, arms overhead but with shoulders relaxed, hands clasped. Then, holding the hips still, bend the trunk first to one side, then the other. Just see how tall you can stretch and at the same time how far you can bend.

You can do almost the same exercise lying on your back on the floor. Keep the same position of hands and arms, but legs should be together, straight down on floor. Move shoulders and hips until the body forms an arc to one side. Feel the pull on those outside muscles? Now, work back in the other direction.

On your feet again and do a wall-stretch:

Stand with your left side against the wall and push your left hand up as high as you can reach. Do this slowly and try to get as much stretch as possible out of your midsection muscles. Repeat five times, then perform with right side to the wall.

Basic Food List

After the first week, you will be ready to go on to more strenuous specific exercises. Meanwhile, follow this basic food list in planning your day's menus.

Fruit—2, fresh, 1 a citrus such as oranges or grapefruit or the juice; or tomato juice.

Vegetables—2, cooked; 1 green leafy or yellow.

Raw vegetables—Use a raw vegetable salad daily—being sure to utilize the green leaves. Watercress is very valuable.

1 Egg—if not daily, then at least 4 times during the week.

Milk—2 glasses; or, 1 glass and 1 oz. cheese. Overweights should use skim milk or buttermilk.

Lean meat, fish or fowl—6 oz. daily and liver or other meat organs at least once a week.

Bread—3 slices daily of either 100 per cent whole wheat or enriched white bread.

Butter—3 pats daily.

If the menus are planned around this protective list, any other foods you like can be added so long as you stay within your calorie quota for reducing.

Spade China

One of the fine qualities of English china, Spode, has been made from about 1789 until the present time. The Spode potteries were founded by Josiah Spode the first who began his career in Staffordshire and became well known for the variety of beautiful earthenware he made, much of it decorated in the Chinese tradition. It was the second Josiah Spode who added bone ash to his formula and developed the fine Spode porcelain. He also produced an excellent quality of earthenware often known as stone china. The designs of Spode ware are versatile, having been inspired by Chinese, Dresden, Chelsea and many other fine wares as well as contributing designs of original character. The Spode works passed into the control of William Copeland in the nineteenth century, under whose name it is still operated.

Mrs. Harold Walker Gives Gala Party for New U. S. Ambassador to Cuba

PLUMP and popular Spruille Braden, new United States Ambassador to Cuba, took over a large slice of the Capital spotlight yesterday afternoon when he shook hands with several dozen Washingtonians at a party in his honor at the Mayflower.

Hostess for the event was Mrs. Harold Walker, who has known Spruille since his college days at Yale, and who had taken special pains to gather in a number of his old friends, as well as many other notables. "After 5:30 o'clock," until two hours afterward, the Pan American Room of the hotel was a moving mass of guests, drawn from the diplomatic, official and residential contingents. Receiving informally with Ambassador Braden, Mrs. Walker was smartly turned out in a floor-length black crepe frock, set off with a matching black ostrich toque.

"No, I'm not a hostess, but I'm receiving anyway," laughed Mrs. Walker's daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, whose new coiffure, arranged on modified upswept lines, attracted as much favorable attention as did her fashion-high black and white print frock. Aldace Walker, son of the hostess, seemed to be everywhere at once—a thoroughly satisfactory host.

Full of questions seemed to be every guest who greated Ambassador Braden. Would he be here much longer? Where was his wife? Was he happy over his new appointment; and what, if anything, did he think of wartime Washington? Being a diplomat, and a very good one, the engaging envoy was non-committal on any number of questions fired in his direction; but now and then he dropped a few bits of information.

He would go to New York today, he said. His wife was there already, visiting one of their daughters. He expected to be back in Washington with Mrs. Braden the latter part of April and would go shortly after that to Havana. Certainly, he was looking forward to his Cuban career with much pleasure . . . and so on, as you would expect. . . .

Envoy's Son Among Guests

Listening in a part of the time, while Papa held forth, was his son, William 2d, who received a Navy commission not so long ago and is now stationed in Washington. The Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Aurelio Concheso, and the Cuban Minister Counselor and Senora de Baron and Lieut. Col. Felipe Munilla, all assured me in practically one breath that Ambasador Braden would be "a great success in our country." The same idea was borne out a few minutes later in a few brief comments from Cuban Vice Consul Senorita Patria Mencia, who declared the new envoy seemed cut to order for the job.

A cross-section of Capital society was noted in the 150 guests who came in to enjoy the pleasant party. From the Cabinet there were Postmaster General and Mrs. Frank Walker. Mrs. Stanley Reed and the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Breckinridge Long arrived for the latter half of the fete. Quite a popular center of attention was Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, who had so many fans crowded around him I couldn't edge in close enough to say "Hello," no matter how hard I tried.

"Where's your husband?" somebody asked Mrs. Leon Henderson. "I don't know," she replied. "In Puerto Rico, Cuba, or Florida, I think. But even if he were here I probably wouldn't know exactly where he was," she added with a twinkle. Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer came in wearing one of the snappiest hats I've seen this season—a black straw number with a fluted edge. Another spring lid deserving special note was the black beanie, set off with a blue bird, perched atop the pretty head of Mrs. Eugene Carusi. "Is that a bluebird over . . . the white cliffs of Dover?" somebody quipped. "I hope so," replied Mrs. Carusi.

I saw a lot of Senators—almost a quorum, in fact. Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings were there; also Senator Joseph Guffey and Miss Pauletta Guffey; Senator and Mrs. Carter Glass, Senator and Mrs. C. Wayland Brooks, Senator James J. Davis. Mrs. Claude Pepper and Mrs. Ralph Brewster were also among those present.

Case of the Missing Coat

Diplomats? Oh, yes, they were there, too. The Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel Freye y Santander, came early and stayed late. Mme. Martins was a popular guest; also, the Minister of Luxembourg, and many others. Admiral and Mrs. George Pettengill came in and made the rounds, as did Rear Admiral and Mrs. Emory S. Land. Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, half-sister of the hostess, chatted with Mrs. Frank Letts—the latter of whom entertained at a small dinner later. Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner and Mrs. Sidney Cloman poured tea; and still others I saw in the throng—to mention but a few—were Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, Mrs. Burdette Fitch, former Gov. and Mrs. O. Max Gardner, Baron and Baroness Stackelberg, Mrs. Conger Pratt and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling. Clarence Hewes was another popular guest, and still others I saw were Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, coming in with Mrs. Eldridge Jordan; the Governor of the Virgin Islands and Mrs. Charles Harwood, who left shortly after the party for New York, and Mrs. McCeney Werlich, who had scores of friends flocking around to tell her what a good time they had at her party on Sunday.

"Oh, but I'm so disturbed about it," she said. "You see two coats got mixed; somebody wore the wrong one home, and we haven't got the thing straightened out yet." So, if you were at Mrs. Werlich's fete on Sunday and you wore away a black cloth coat, collared with silver fox—you'd better take a second look. It might belong to Miss Betty Hynes. She couldn't find hers when she started to leave. Somebody had taken it by mistake.

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: A guest at the Spanish Embassy for several days has been Lady Cunard, formerly an outstanding London hostess, who will return today to New York where she has been making her home for some time. She is the former Maud Alice Burke, daughter of the late E. F. Burke, of New York. Her late husband's grandfather, Sir Samuel Cunard, established the Cunard steamship line between England and this country . . . Serge Koussevitsky, who will conduct the Boston Symphony at its Russian benefit concert this evening, will be guest artist at a morning musicale for a small group at the Soviet Embassy tomorrow at 11 o'clock. Arriving here late yesterday afternoon, he is staying at the Mayflower Hotel. On his calendar today is luncheon with the President . . . Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rogers, who enjoyed a breath-taking round of parties while they were guests of Clarence Hewes the past few days, returned to New York yesterday . . . AND registering at the Mayflower yesterday, within an hour of each other, were Dr. Ezequiel Padilla, Mexica's Foreign Secretary, and Dr. Jose M. Davila, Mexican Ambassador to Brazil. Dr. Padilla came here from North Carolina, where he has been visiting Josephus Daniels.

Bun Sale Set For Good Friday

"One a penny, two a penny, Hot Cross buns If you have no daughters give them to your sons . . ." so goes the old rhyme.

As English as the rhyme is the time-honored custom to indulge in a Hot Cross bun and a cup of coffee after church on Good Friday. So the women in charge of the British War Relief Shop at 2624 Connecticut Avenue are making arrangements for just that. And here's an invitation to you to join them on your way home from church Friday.

Mrs. H. R. Scudder is in charge that day, and will be assisted by Lady Broderick, Mrs. George Lynch, Mrs. Anthony Ragg, Mrs. Charles H. Woolley, Mrs. Charles Brown and Mrs. R. Herdman.

Mrs. Hornbeck Mrs. Hatch Give Benefit Parties

Partying with a purpose, the purpose being to raise money for the Save the Children Federation, continues apace. The second week of this series of fetes opened yesterday with a large tea given by Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck here in Washington, and another out Fairfax County way given by Mrs. Douglas Hatch.

Among the guests invited to Mrs. Hatch's gathering were Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, Mrs. Paul Brown, Mrs. Fred Richardson, Mrs. Robert Graham, Mrs. Philip Williams, Mrs. Reed Thomas, Mrs. J. E. Staub, jr., Mrs. Roy Rimmel and Mrs. Lennig Sweet.

Mrs. Macneil Entertains

Mrs. Robert Lister Macneil entertained at a small luncheon yesterday at the Sulgrave Club. Guest of honor was Mrs. E. C. Metz, who recently returned from Buenos Aires and is now visiting Capt. and Mrs. Donald Bingham in their Chevy Chase home. Mrs. Metz's husband formerly headed a United States naval mission in Argentina.

Full Schedule Planned for Dr. Padilla

Arriving early yesterday morning, the Mexican Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Dr. Ezequiel Padilla, took a brief breathing spell before beginning a schedule that will be crowded with official appointments and social events.

A few hours after he registered at the Mayflower Hotel with members of his party, however, he was at the State Department for a conference with Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles. This evening he will be guest of honor at a dinner to be given at the Mayflower by Mr. Welles.

The Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera will entertain at a large reception tomorrow afternoon at 6 o'clock in honor of Dr. Padilla, and on Thursday the latter will be honored at a dinner to be given at the Mayflower by Senator Tom Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, Nelson Rockefeller, will be host at a dinner for Dr. Padilla on Friday.

Still another social event on Dr. Padilla's Washington calendar is the banquet to be given at the Pan American Union on April 6.

Accompanying Dr. Padlila to Washington were the Mexican Undersecretary of the Treasury, Raymond Beteta; Luciano Wichers, economic adviser of the Bank of Mexico, and Mario Romero, private secretary to Dr. Padilla.

Ruth Nichols, Noted Flier, Here for Visit

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Willard Boyd have as their house-guest for several days Miss Ruth Nichols, well known woman flier, who arrived in town last night from New York.

Miss Nichols will be Mrs. Boyd's guest at a luncheon today at the Junior League before an afternoon meeting of the league at which she will be the guest speaker. A Quaker, Miss Nichols is most absorbed in the mercy angle of the war, her special interest being in "Relief Wings," an organization for the conversion of private planes to ambulance service.

Dr. and Mrs. Boyd's was the experience of coming from the sun and sand of Florida straight into Washington's worst snowstorm in years. Luckily, because they flew, they arrived Friday night before the real storm Saturday. They spent about a month at Miami Beach with their three youngsters, Josephine, Walter, jr., and John Covert Boyd 3d.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hiner Jackson, of Ashland, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Rawlings, to George Ray Boyd, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ray Boyd, of Washington. The wedding will take place in June.

Enjoying Southern Sunshine

Park Madison Studio, Miami.

. . . is Mrs. J. F. McMahon, who with her husband went to Miami Beach, Fla., for a vacation early this month. Mr. and Mrs. McMahon have been attending the races and fishing. They have also been guests of Mrs. James O'Sullivan, of Coral Gables, Fla. They are expected to return to their home in Silver Spring, Md., on Thursday

Jane Rust, Bride-Elect, Is Honored

A small party with a big purpose, two of them in fact, was that given last night by Miss Suzanne Slingluff for Miss Mary Jane Rust. The fete was partially a farewell fete, because after her marriage this evening to Lieut. William L Kent, Miss Rust will go with him to live at New River, N. C., while he is stationed there. Lieut Kent is expected to arrive in Washington today.

The party was also a shower, and the guests came bearing gifts of lovely lingerie for the bride-elect. The evening was passed with a bit of bridge and a snack of sandwiches and what-would-you to drink—coffee, sherry, coke or beer.

Among the invited guests, all of them old friends of Miss Rust, were her maid of honor, Miss May Rust, and her bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Gordon and Mrs. Joseph H. Baker, the latter of New York City. Also invited were Mrs. Cabell Maddux, jr., Mrs. Clark Worthington, Miss Audrey Cowan, Miss Lalla Harrison, Miss Margaret Van Hook, Miss Joan McKenna, Miss Hanna Jane Boggs and Miss Margaret Craighill.

E. Thomas Fishers New Additions to WPB Contingent

Another WPB family—which certainly is not to be confused with a WPA family, although the difference might seem to be but one notch in the alphabet—now settled in Washington is that of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Thomas Fisher. Recently arriving here, Mr. and Mrs. Fisher have taken a house on N Street. They have with them their two small children, Evan Thomas, jr., and Peter Burnett.

A third child is attending St. Paul's School in Concord, N. H. Mr. Fisher, who was connected with the American Sugar Refinery in New York, has been called to take a job in the sugar section of the War Productions Board.

The move to Washington is a homecoming for Mrs. Fisher. She is the former Elizabeth Burnett, daughter of Mrs. Sidney Ballou. She attended Holton-Arms School and was married in St. John's Church.

Party Planned for Military Mission

A large section of Washington society will have a chance to meet the 11 members of the Yugoslav Military Mission tomorrow when the Yugoslav Minister and Mme. Fotitch entertain at a reception at the Legation, 2221 R street. The party is set for 5:30 p. m.

Heading the mission, which arrived here two weeks ago, is Col. D. Savitch. With him are Maj. M. Mishovich, Capt. S. Papich, Capt. D. Ristich, Capt. D. Mucich, Capt. B. Voulich, Capt. D. Stanisaljevich, Lieut. M. Jellich and Flight Sergeanta V. Jellich, M. Mitvch and S. Kolega.

Envoy Is Host

Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, the Ambassador of Ecuador, gave a luncheon at the Mayflower yesterday in honor of President Elie Lescot of Haiti. At the request of President Lescot, the guest list was limited to members of his staff, the Ecuadorian Embassy, and the Haitian Legation.

Miss Lugenbeel To Be Married

The chapel at Bolling Field will be the scene of the marriage tonight at 7 o'clock of Miss Adelaide Lugenbeel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Lugenbeel, and Dale Shields, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shields, of Rochester, Pa.

The Rev. E. E. Richardson will officiate. Miss Lugenbeel will have as her matron of honor her sister, Mrs. William H. Weed, and her other attendants will be Mrs. Georga A. Gray and Mrs. Herbert Drayheim.

Mr. Shields will have Nelson Wilkossky as his best man, and Warren Ray, William Ray, William Thompson and Gordon Parkinson will be ushers. A reception will follow the ceremony.

Icelandic Minister Is Guest Speaker at Tea Given by D. C. University Women's Branch

ALTHOUGH NIGHT clubs are scarce in Iceland and the United States soldiers stationed there may not have breath-taking adventures, at least they can write: "Dear Mom—there's plenty of hot water for baths."

In fact, hot springs or geysers spout hot water and steam so plentifully that Iceland is now completing purchases here of materials for a heating plant in Reykjavik that will warm every house in town with hot water from the springs, according to the Icelandic Minister, Thor Thors.

Thor Thors

Guest speaker at the tea of the Washington Branch, American Association of University Women, yesterday afternoon, the Icelandic envoy explained that upon the completion of the heating plant in the fall no coal or oil would be needed to warm the houses during the long winter months.

Pointing out that the small northern country—warmed by the Gulf Stream—has a mild climate, Mr. Thors said: "Iceland is a misnomer."

Referring to the American soldiers stationed in his country, the envoy made it clear that they were welcome visitors in Iceland. He stated: "The most important instance in the history of Iceland . . . became known July 7, 1941. On that day, American forces landed in Iceland to take over the protection of the country and to replace British forces. This was done in accordance with an agreement between the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Iceland."

Emphasizing the fact that the agreement between the United States and Iceland is a friendly treaty between two democracies, the Icelandic Minister said: "It makes no difference that one of the democracies is the most powerful and important in the world, and the other is the smallest in the family of free nations. The treaty is based on mutual respect and confidence, particularly as it is made for the sake of freedom."

The Minister reminded his listeners that Iceland was the first country to resist the Nazis successfully. He told of his country's refusal to permit Germany to establish air bases there. Also, he stressed the fact that Iceland loves its democracy with a tradition of 1000 years. "We should, I believe, be the last country in the world to substitute democratic rule with nazism," he said.

In discussing the Icelandic women, the envoy proudly explained that they hold seats in Parliament in most of the municipal governments. He went on to point out that the women of his country had voted on local matters since 1812 and had enjoyed universal suffrage since 1915.

Miss Mary Connelly, chairman of the committee on legislation, introduced the guest speaker.

Democratic Club Hears Representative Byron

NOW IS women's opportunity to prove their worth—and this they are doing daily. So declared Representative Katharine Edgar Byron.

Speaking before members of the Woman's National Democratic Club at the luncheon yesterday, Mrs. Byron enumerated various ways in which women are playing important roles in the work effort. She referred specifically to women in offices—routine and executive positions, to women in skilled trades, women doing work only done by men before.

Katharine Byron

The comely speaker, attired in a new spring suit of powder blue, topped by an American Beauty rose-colored wool coat, spoke glowingly of "those women who are still carrying on as housewives and giving their spare time for defense work so unselfishly."

"I am proud of my sex," she said. "I am glad we have this opportunity and I am thankful that we are united. We have the best country on earth. We have the most courageous fighters and our leaders are the finest example of what America is made of and we thank our Heavenly Father for these blessings."

Representative Byron pointed out the double blessings that people in America enjoy. "We are free to work together, to plan together and, above all, to believe together," she insisted.

When it comes to courage, initiative and resourcefulness, Mrs. Byron thinks that women have as much as men. "And may I say," she added, "that we have been using all three to very good advantage."

Part of the Representative's speech consisted of reminiscences of her campaign.

Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, second vice president of the club, presided and introduced the guests of the day. Mrs. Claude Pepper presented the speaker with a brief introductory talk.

Soroptimist Club

Tomorrow will be a red letter day in the history of the Soroptimist Club. It is then that the club will present to the District of Columbia chapter, American Red Cross, a sum of money to buy a mobile canteen unit, equipped to feed 300 people in the District in time of emergency. Miss Mabel Boardman will be among the honored guests.

On April 19, the Washington Soroptimist Club will be hostess at the annual meeting of the South American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs. This will be the spring conference of the South Atlantic Region.

North Carolina Club to Hold Annual Frolic

Members of the North Carolina delegation in Congress and their wives will be guests of honor Saturday evening, April 11, at a banquet and ball, given by the North Carolina Democratic Club of Washington, in the grand ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel.

At this event, which is given annually by the club, members of the Tar Heel delegation and their constituents meet for an off-the-record frolic, a clever skit slightly sizzling the guests of honor, featuring the program.

Wesley McDonald is general chairman of the banquet. He is being assisted by Mrs. Mabel Cooley Downey, sister of Representative Cooley; Mrs. Newman A. Townsend, vice president of the club; Miss Mae Oliver, Mrs. Lindsay Warren, Mrs. Dudley Bagwell, Mrs. Charles Hackney, John K. Slear, Marion Sedberry, Mrs. Macie Lowe, Mrs. Jerry Griffin, Mrs. Frank Johnston, Mrs. Garland S. Ferguson, jr., Mrs. Thomas A. Wadden, Mrs. W. Ney Evans, Mrs. John S. Langston, Mrs. J. D. Gilliam, W. E. Stroud, Dr. Sterling Ruffin, Mrs. Fred Morrison, Mrs. Livingston Vann, jr., Mrs. A. T. Hocutt, Mrs. Oscar Carpenter, Miss Annie Perry Neal, Miss Jane Pratt, Mrs. Sarah Smithson, Joe G. Butts, jr., Miss Mary Hutchison, Mrs. El Mason, Tom L. Garland, Hubert Rand, Miss Sallie Turner, Dr. and Mrs. Wade Atkinson, Percy Meekins, John Wilbur Jenkins, James Shepherd, Mrs. W. D. Hessick, Miss Ellen Owens, Miss Inder London and Mrs. Albert Hart.

Also assisting with the details of the affair are Mrs. Phil Hammer, Foy McDavid, Mrs. Lamont Brown, Mrs. Frederick Wall, Amazon Turner, N. C. Hines, jr., Harvey Monk, Miss Elizabeth Terry, Mrs. Bernard Smith and Harvey Lupton.

Chevy Chase Pen Women to Meet Thursday at 2:30

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson and Miss Viola Offutt will be hostesses to the members of the Chevy Chase Branch, National League of American Pen Women, at a monthly meeting Thursday, 2:30 p. m., at the Shoreham Hotel.

Following a short business session, Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, will review her latest book, "The Defense Rests," which was published last month.

Newly elected officers of the club are: President, Miss Mary Downey; first vice president, Miss Dorothy Nicholson; second vice president, Mrs. Carol Calhoun; third vice president, Mrs. Lida C. Lueck; secretary, Mrs. Charles L. Curtiss, jr.; treasurer, Miss Viola Offutt; auditor, Mrs. Daisy B. Calhoun, and historian, Mrs. Emma W. P. Slack.

Members of the standing committees are: Ways and means, Mrs. Hester Beall Provenson; membership, Mrs. Mollie Davis Nicholson; publicity, Mrs. Frances Troy Northcross.

The new officers will be installed at the branch's annual dinner early in May. New members who have recently joined the Chevy Chase branch, N. L. A. P. W., include Mrs. Benjamin Sullivan, Dr. Elizabeth Parker-Bartch, Dr. Jeanette Marks and Dr. J. Emmert Sebree.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Employe Swapping Plan Takes Shape

It's long overdue, but at last consideration is being given seriously in official circles to the convenience of Federal workers in the location of Federal buildings. If plans go through that are now afoot, you can expect the wholesale transfer of employes to agencies whose buildings are located near their homes. The President will be asked to issue the order. The shortage of tires and gasoline, plus a poor transportation system, coupled with a little horse sense, have forced the mass transfer idea on top Federal officials.

For example, Census Bureau will start moving out to Suitland, Md., on April 15. The new Suitland building is 9 miles from downtown Washington and it will make a Census employe who lives out Chevy Chase way or over in Virginia spend several hours a day to go and come. Bus fare would run at least 50 or 60 cents a day. At the same time, people out Suitland way must go to downtown office buildings. What's being proposed—and the President is certain to back the idea—is that persons living in Suitland and in that part of Prince Georges County be given jobs at Census. In turn, Census would trade them employes for whom it would be inconvenient to work at Suitland.

The same thing would apply to the Navy Building at Arlington where some 5000 are working. The traffic tie-up around the building before and after working hours is terrific. Transportation and the highway approaches to the building are horrible. Wouldn't it be better if the bulk of these Navy employes lived in Arlington? The employes would be happier and contented employes work harder and produce more. That's the belief of the small group of Federal officials who are working on the plan for a mass trading of employes between agencies. The Navy and Public Health units at Bethesda and the many Agriculture Department bureaus at Beltsville would be among the other agencies affected by the proposed executive order. The employe trading plan could be put over if it were argued on a basis of relieving traffic and conserving tires and gas.

Biggest Land Buyer

Maritime Commission hasn't yet found suitable space in Baltimore for its regional office. Norfolk, Philadelphia and New York are other possibilities for the office . . . Robert H. Shields has been promoted to solicitor of the Agriculture Department. Mastin G. White was called to active military service . . . Uncle Sam is the largest land buyer in history. Since Pearl Harbor he has purchased 3,500,000 acres valued at 60 million dollars. Employes at Justice's Lands Division have put in 21,000 hours of overtime within the last eight months. Incidentally, the House approved a deficiency for the division to hire 18 additional attorneys and 16 new stenographers which should reduce the overtime.

In January the Government set a new high record in the number of checks written. The number was 6,801,000. That figure doesn't include Army and Navy pay checks. In the first seven months of this fiscal year nearly 40 million checks have been written. During the same period a year ago the number was 25 million. The Bureau of Disbursements, the check-writing agency, had 1505 employes on July 1, 1941. It has 1680 now and it will hire another hundred before July 1. Guy Allen, disbursing officer, estimates it costs the Government 9 cents to typewrite a check. The cost, however, is going up as he has lost 559 of his checkwriters to other agencies in the last few months. Allen says it takes a minimum of six months to train a checkwriter to write 300 checks a day.

Several Board of Economic Welfare employes who were accused in the Dies letter to Vice President Wallace are considering libel action against the Texas Congressman. They do say the mild-mannered Vice President was really boiling when he wrote the acid reply to Dies. Wallace not only has won the first round with Dies but he has won the confidence of his employes at the board . . . War agencies are screaming for stenographers while several top-notch stenographers sit with little to do at Soil Conservation. The bosses of these girls were given other jobs and their successors brought in their own secretaries from the field. And Soil Conservation is supposed to have a promotion-from-within policy.

This Is the Payoff

Out in Prince Georges County there is a tap room proprietor whose candor is certainly disarming. He put this sign on a pin-ball machine: "In case of an air raid, crawl under this machine—it's never been hit."

A Parting Gesture

George A. Neely, 317 East Capitol Street, was returning home last night when a holdup man approached him, told him "his wife was sick" and asked for his cash. Neely turned over $33 and went his way—then the holdup man returned and handed Neely $1, saying "I can't see you stranded—Here's a buck for a cab."

Two Defense Areas Praised On Financing

Two civilian defense areas—Friendship and Lincoln Park—were praised by the District Defense Council yesterday for the manner in which they have gone about raising funds to equip warden and sector posts.

One hundred copies of the "Friendship Plan" were distributed to deputy wardens in other parts of town. John Chedester and Leonard L. Tucker said it was quite a simple plan, but made very businesslike.

"We have a bonded treasurer and we explained all about our work and our needs in an advance bulletin. We estimated about $2 per family would care for all our needs. The first report given last week indicated the neighborhood was responding practically 100 per cent. We had between $1150 and $1200 and the drive is just 25 per cent complete," Tucker said.

Lincoln Park, according to District headquarters, has gone ahead with its organization on a complete community basis, has collected enough funds to set up an "outstanding" post in Kingman School, Fourteenth and E Northeast, to furnish sector posts, and to "put $3000 into the bank."

Col. Lemuel Bolles, District Defense Council, declared neighborhoods will have to "go ahead under their own steam," as far as community equipment for defense is concerned. "Especially," he declared, "is it important to get the sector posts equipped. Unless the smallest units are functioning, we cannot expect the top to be completely effective."

Navy Acquires Tome School For Training Base

Baltimore, March 30 (AP).—The Navy Department, in condemnation proceedings filed today in Federal District Court, acquired Tome School at Port Deposit, Md., for use as "a major naval training station."

Tome School closed its doors last June because of adverse financial conditions after operating as an exclusive boys' institution for 41 years.

It was founded by the wealthy philanthropist, Jacob Tome, and operated under direction of a board of trustees in recent years. Attorneys representing the board said it was agreed that the Navy could take control of all properties on the 330-acre tract, situated on the banks of the Susquehanna River.

No price was included in the Navy petition, but Government attorneys estimated cost to the Government would be approximately one million dollars.

Buildings include five large three-story and several smaller two and one-story structures.

Boston Symphony Plays Here Today For Soviet Relief

With President and Mrs. Roosevelt heading the list of distinguished invited guests, the Russian War Relief committee will present the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Serge Koussevitsky today at 8 p. m. at Constitution Hall, Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, chairman of the Washington committee for Russian relief, announced yesterday.

The program will open with a presentation ceremony in which the flags of 28 United Nations will be displayed under a special United States Marine guard of honor. Then the Boston Symphony will begin its program with the United States and Russian national anthems.

Since this is the first opportunity in many years that Washington music lovers have had to hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra, it is expected that the concert will be a sell-out, Mrs. Davies said. The entire proceeds, over the orchestra's expenses, will go to the relief fund.

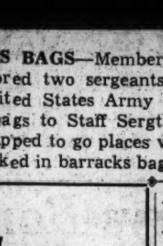
Postlude

Symphony Bows Out In Top Form

By Ray C. B. Brown

Hans Kindler conducts the National Symphony Orchestra in Constitution Hall on Monday night in the final concert of the eleventh season. Annual request program of compositions by Wagner, Chaikovski, Borodin and Brahms.

Although a belated snowstorm had postponed the National Symphony Orchestra's last concert of the season for a day, it did not abate the enthusiasm of the large audience which assembled in Constitution Hall last evening to bid au revoir to the organization and its conductor, Hans Kindler. That they enjoyed the program was a foregone conclusion, for it was one prepared after a counting of their own votes. But to the procedure of the annual request program, sanctioned by 11 years of custom, something new was added when two colorbearers, one from the Army and one from the Marine Corps, appeared on the stage in precedence of Dr. Kindler, who faced the auditors and led them in the singing of the national anthem.



BROWN

Director and players were in gala temperament, and the concert had zest in intonation and sparkle in color. There is no better occasion than this to repeat what I said at the beginning of the season—that the National Symphony Orchestra has attained its majority as an artistic organism, and that its playing has the firm authority of experience as well as the fervor of youth.

The program consisted of Brahms' first symphony and three selections so familiar that the names of the composers need not be mentioned; the overture to "Die Meistersinger," three excerpts from the "Nutcracker" suite and the Polovetzkian dances from "Prince Igor." To these Dr. Kindler added as extra numbers before the intermission his own transcription of a Frescobaldi toccata and Shostakovich's mischievous polka.

This program is a proof that neglect of American composers must not necessarily be blamed entirely upon our conductors. The National Symphony Orchestra has played this season enough new native works to have made up an entire program with some left over. Yet the patrons, given the opportunity to express their wishes, voted for music with which they were thoroughly acquainted—and not one American composer won a place.

King-Smith Studio School presents Benno Rabinov and Bernardo Segall in a recital of sonatas for violin and piano by Brahms, Debussy and Turina on Monday night.

Postponed from the memorable March Sunday of snowdrifts was the enjoyable sonata recital given last evening in the cozy King-Smith Theater by the American violinist, Benno Rabinov, and the Brazilian pianist, who is our own by adoption, Bernardo Segall. By missing the latter part of the National Symphony concert, I arrived in time to hear what was for me the most rewarding part of the program, a sonata by Joaquin Turina. From the manner in which the collaborators played that engaging work I know that they did very well by the A major sonata of Brahms and the Debussy sonata.

With the excellence of Mr. Segall both as a technician and an artist of refinement we are well versed, and he had a compeer in Mr. Rabinov, whose tone is full-bodied and eloquent and whose technique has surety and polish. Their reading of the Turina sonata was plastic, fervent and sensitive. The sonata is one of melodic beauty, harmonic piquency and Iberian fire. A few traces of French influence in lyric phrasing detract no whit from its individuality of idiom.

Highlights Of New A.B.C. Code Revealed

Liquor advertising, a possible service tax on liquor bought from out of town wholesale houses and credit and possible discount arrangements between District retailers and wholesalers are the main points considered in the new liquor regulations, Commissioner Guy Mason announced last night.

The revision of the ABC code, prompted last month by Congressional dissatisfaction with the ABC Board, will be presented for consideration to the Board of Commissioners early next week, Mason said.

He stated emphatically that the elimination of prices in newspaper advertising will not be included in the new regulations. Such an order is provided in the Schulte liquor bill, now before the Senate, but neither the Commissioners nor the ABC Board are in favor of it.

Type of Control Proposed

"The kind of regulations that are in order," Mason said, "are designated to control advertising which is offensive, not only to prohibitionists, but to the drinking public as well.

"There is a tremendous movement on to revive prohibition," Mason said. "The consumers and the dealers must be protected from certain dealers whose greed is hastening the return of prohibition."

The credit regulation now in force requires that a retailer cannot run a charge account with his wholesaler longer than 15 days after the end of each month. This regulation was adopted last summer because the ABC Board feared that extended credit would run retail shops so hopelessly in debt to the wholesale houses that the latter would be, in effect, controlling retail selling as well as their own.

Mason indicated that the period of credit might be curtailed to ten or five days, or might be forbidden entirely, putting the wholesale business on a cash basis, as the retail trade now is.

Aimed at Cut Rate Dealers

The service tax on liquor is one way Mason says he hopes to stop the practice of many cut-rate retailers of underselling good liquor by buying it directly from the distillers under disguised labels. The tax not only would require the purchaser to certify that he could not obtain such brands here (and thus would allow the ABC Board to check on it) but would be more equitable to local wholesalers, who have to buy licenses, which outsiders don't.

The discount rules, Mason said, would provide a closer scrutiny of the transactions between retailers and wholesalers to prevent illegal underselling being accomplished by means of secret rebates.

Mason will confer with ABC Chairman Thomas Ellis Lodge and Assistant Corporation Counsel Vernon West on Wednesday before whipping the new regulations into final form for presentation before the Commissioners.

Inquests Today In Two Deaths

Coroner's inquests into the deaths of two Negroes who died of wounds suffered Saturday night and early Sunday will be held at 11:30 a. m. today.

The victims were Paul S. Byrd, 30, of 2129 Stevens Court Northwest, allegedly shot by a 16-year-old boy, and Ida Mae Lipscomb, 31, of 5117 Deane Avenue Northeast, who police said was mortally wounded in a struggle with a 31-year-old man over a shotgun.

The accused men in both cases are being held for action of the coroner's juries today.

Senate Votes Recreation Board Bill

Measure Authorizes 7-Member Group to Direct Activities; More Funds Sought

The Senate yesterday passed a bill to create a seven-member District of Columbia Recreation Board and authorized appointment of a superintendent of recreation to carry out a "coordinated and speeded" program.

Members of the board will be a representative of the District Commissioners, a representative of the Board of Education, the superintendent of National Capital Parks, and four District residents. All would serve without compensation.

Transferred to jurisdiction of the board will be all functions of the Community Center and Playgrounds Department now under the joint control of the Commissioners and the Board of Education.

More than a year ago, the House passed a similar recreation bill. Since that time the problem has been affected by the influx of war workers and the taking over of much park area for temporary buildings and other war purposes.

The bill now goes to a joint conference committee in which slight variations in the House and Senate measures will be ironed out.

In a study released last week the Federal Security Administration showed the need for a tremendous amount of recreational development, both inside the District and nearby. Funds for much of it are expected to come from the new Lanham bill now before Congress. To replace facilities such as swimming pool, diamonds, tennis courts, "uprooted" on the Mall, National Capital Parks has asked for an additional deficiency appropriation of more than $1,000,000. This is to be spent in the development of 31 recreational locations in and near Washington.

Even before the influx of war and defense activities, recreation was one of the District's biggest unsettled problems. The new board, which is to be given unified control of the situation, will have its hands full.

The four citizens appointed to board membership must have lived in the District for at least five years, according to provisions of the Senate measure, and the board's chairman must be selected from among them. Members of the board will have authority to appoint the superintendent.

Marines Call 10 Reservists In D. C. Area

Marine Corps Headquarters announced yesterday that another group of reserve officers, including 10 Washington area men, had been called to active duty.

On the list was Capt. Arthur E. Lyng, of Washington, who enlisted as a private in 1910, became a sergeant at Vera Cruz in 1913 and during World War I helped organize the 49th Company and served overseas with it as a platoon leader.

He holds a number of decorations, including the Navy Cross and the Distinguished Service Cross.

Also called to duty were Capts. Benjamin M. Hammond, of Washington; Gordon M. F. Chance, Brookville, Md., and Marshall E. Simmons and Ralph E. Updike, of Arlington, Va.; First Lieuts. Robert D. Tedrow, jr., of Washington, George F. Colburn and Philip Holt, Silver Spring, Md., and Walter R. Walsh, Arlington, and Second Lieut. John R. Corbett, Washington.

First Violator Charged on New Auto Theft Law

The first warrant charging violation of the new District law which provides a maximum of three years' imprisonment for the theft of automobile accessories was issued yesterday for Daniel A. Vaughn, 18, of 3221 Sixth Street Northwest, who was ordered held in lieu of $500 bond for a District grand jury after being arraigned in Police Court.

Vaughn is accused of stealing an automobile wheel, tire and tube on March 23 from the car of Charles B. Weaver, 803 Mount Vernon Place Northwest.

The new law, embodied in Section 826-C of the District Code, is aimed primarily at tire thieves but covers other accessories, including gasoline and oil.

Auto Looters Rob Cars of Two Service Officers

Automobile looters concentrated on the armed forces last night.

Capt. Lewis Cowan, United States Army, reported his parked automobile was broken into near his residence, the Carroll Arms Hotel, First and C Streets Northeast, and $290 worth of defense bonds and stamps were stolen along with clothing valued at $45.

Lieut. Comdr. Harold Baker, United States Navy, of 652 South Highland Street, Arlington, Va., said a uniform valued at $45 was stolen from his car, parked at Fifteenth and I Streets Northwest. Entrance to each was made by prying open a side ventilator.

Auto Parking Rules Revised For 11 Streets

Parking changes on 11 District streets were ordered last night by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer. About half of the changes were in compliance with requests from citizens associations.

Changes on Connecticut Avenue from Woodley Road to Twenty-fourth Street were ordered to relieve what was regarded as the only serious bottleneck on Connecticut Avenue. Regulations on Wisconsin Avenue at Grant Road were promulgated because of the failure of a large store there to provide a promised off-street parking area for 170 cars.

The complete list of changes includes:

Northwest

Adams Mill Road, between Calvert Street and Columbia Road on the west side: No parking at any time.

Connecticut Avenue, from Woodley Road to Twenty-fourth Street, on the west side. No parking at any time; from Porter Street to Woodley Road, on west side: No parking 7 to 9:30 a. m., one-hour parking 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Massachusetts Avenue, from Thirtieth Street to Thirty-fourth Street, on north side: no parking at any time.

Wisconsin Avenue, from Grant Road north to the driveway along side the branch Public Library: On east side, one-hour parking 7 a. m. to 4 p. m.; no parking 4 to 6:30 p. m.; from the driveway to Brandywine Street: No parking at any time.

Second Street, from Laurel Street to Whittier Street, on west side: No parking at any time.

Thirty-ninth Street, from the Pepco pole No. 221638 to Tunlaw Road, on north and east sides: No parking at any time.

Fortieth Street, from Albemarle Street to Chesapeake Street: No parking at any time on the east side.

Northeast

First Street, from H Street to a point 220 feet south on the east side: No parking at any time.

Eighteenth Street, from Irving Street to Queens Chapel Road: No parking at any time on the east side.

Southwest

First Street, between Canal Street and Warder Court, on east side: No parking at any time.

Southeast

Maple View Place, from Nichols Avenue east to the first alley on the north side: No parking at any time.

Colonial Village Raises $126.50 For Blood Bank

Colonial Village, a supporter of the Children's Hospital blood and serum bank since it was established in 1939 by the first annual campaign, yesterday contributed $126.50 to the 1942 fund.

The sum was raised at three benefit parties held in the housing community's recreation rooms. A dance, arranged by J. C. Blake and Mrs. Louise Wolfe, netted $77.50. A card party given by Mrs. C. W. Watts, of Lyon Village, Va., raised $32, and a bridge party by the Colonial Village Bridge Club, H. A. Rounds, president, produced $17.

J. T. Onley, Arlington County chairman of the blood bank drive, which is cosponsored by the American Legion, Washington Bridge League and The Post, turned in the money yesterday.

Headquarters For Licenses Are Thronged

Although more than 5000 District automobile tags for 1942 were sold yesterday, the sales total for this year is approximately 5000 behind the corresponding day for 1941, it was reported yesterday.

License headquarters in the Municipal Center, 300 Indiana Avenue Northwest, was thronged until closing time at 4:15 p. m. yesterday, but all of those who were in line received tags before the doors were closed.

With the deadline for the tags at midnight tonight, officials said the licenses may be secured today between 8:15 a. m. and 4:15 p. m. with the possibility of a slight extension on the normal closing hour. The six cashiers can accommodate 6000 motorists in a full working day.

Yesterday's sales were the largest of the year, previous heavy days having disposed of between 2000 and 3000 plates. The delay of motorists in coming down for their tags was attributed to three factors: fears that gas and tire restrictions might soon make operation of their cars impossible; fears of being called up for military service, and "just plain laziness."

No cars may be driven after midnight tonight without the new tags.

Auto Tag Line Is No Place to Get Marriage License

Cupid missed his queue here yesterday.

It happened when the crowds began to gather to buy automobile tags at the new Municipal Center. A clerk, assigned to inspect the applications of those standing in line, found one elderly man who had no application.

"You have to have an application before you can get your license," said the clerk.

"I thought this was the line for applications," said the olderly man.

"What kind of tags do you want, pleasure or commercial?" asked the clerk.

"I want a marriage license," said the elderly man.

He was graded "A" for application, and directed to the District Court where marriage licenses are issued.

Two District Auto Accident Victims Die

Two Washingtonians died yesterday of injuries suffered in auto accidents Sunday.

Mrs. Susie Mae Chewning, 37, of 1428 N Street Northwest, died at Richmond, Va., and will be buried there tomorrow, the Associated Press reported. Mrs. Chewning's husband, Earl B., was hurt and Mrs. Elizabeth Branzelle, of Petersburg, Fla., was fatally injured in the accident, which occurred 2 miles north of Richmond, according to the Associated Press.

ROBINSON

Wallace F. Robinson, 48, of 2309 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest, a Postoffice employe, died at Georgetown Hospital of injuries suffered Sunday when his mail truck overturned after hitting a snowbank in the 2900 block of Thirty-fourth Street Northwest. Mr. Robinson, who worked out of the Friendship Heights postal branch, had been employed by the Postoffice Department for only five weeks.

A native of Appomattox Court House, Va., Mr. Robinson had lived here nearly 15 years. He worked for Chestnut Farms Dairy before going with the Postoffice Department. He leaves his wife, Louella, and a son, Warren, 14. His oldest son, Wallace, jr., 15, was accidentally killed by a gun the boy carried last Armistice Day.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. from St. Alban's Episcopal Church, with burial in Washington National Cemetery, beside his son.

Alger Cheeks, Negro, 38, of 438 Rhode Island Avenue Northwest, was charged with drunken driving after his auto collided last night with a Second Precinct patrol wagon at Fourth Street and New York Avenue Northwest. Private Newton E. Woodward, driver of the police vehicle, and two prisoners were unhurt in the accident.

BUCK MEETS 'EM COMING DOWN

Lakeland, Fla., March 30.—We don't know whether it was Socrates or Confucius who first said "Be nice to the people you meet on the way up, because you may have to meet 'em again on the way down." Anyway, Buck Newsom could have used that tip. As of this morning, Buck was paying his own meal checks in the Detroit training camp, unsigned and unwanted.

POVICH

The man who doesn't want Newsom is General Manager Jack Zeller, of the Tigers, and it is with pleasure that Zeller doesn't want him. Zeller is now extracting a delightful revenge from the situation which finds Newsom with the miseries because of a $20,000 pay cut. Zeller is the man who is firmly suggesting that amount and indicating that Newsome can go home if he doesn't like it.

Buck's troubles spawn from the fact that he wasn't nice to Zeller last spring when Newsom was the big shot of the club following his World Series triumphs. Zeller wasn't the general manager then, merely manager of the Detroit farm system, and Newsom regarded him as something of a flunky. "Hello, Curly Locks," Buck would hail the completely bald Zeller, "Heard from Landis lately?" It was an unkind reference to Zeller's troubles with Judge Landis, who ordered the Detroit club to make free agents of 90 players because of Zeller's contract manipulations.

That 1941 Record Looks Bad

Now it is Zeller who is in the saddle since Club Owner Walter Briggs retired to his tank factories, and the Newsom who must talk salary with him is no longer a big shot on the club. Not after losing more games than any other American League pitcher last season. Buck is sufficiently a student of human nature to expect no mercy from Zeller, and such being the case he is openly defiant.

"I won't sign at what you're offering me until you grow a head of hair, Old Baldy," was Newsom's crack to Zeller the other day. "And by that time I guess I'll be bald headed. So trade me."

Newsom feels himself very badly treated by the Tigers in the matter of salary despite the fact they paid him $32,000 last year. "Now they want to cut me 66 per cent," he says. "I've offered to take a $10,000 cut, but they want me to take $20,000. I didn't go up that way, and I'm not going to come down that way. They jump your pay two or three thousand at a time and then try to cut you $20,000. I've got too much self-respect."

Buck says he deserved the $32,000 the Tigers paid him last year despite the fact he won only 12 games and lost 20. "I was getting paid mostly for what I did in 1940," he says. "I won 20 games that year with a bad ball club and pitched 'em into a pennant. After I won two games in the World Series, they begged me to pitch the last game with only one day's rest and I even stayed away from my father's funeral to stand by the club. They're fine ones to talk about gratitude."

Newsom has a complete distrust of Zeller. When it was suggested that Buck sign a blank contract with the Tigers and depend on Owner Walter Briggs to pay him what his work merited, Buck refused. "You could be a big man with the Detroit fans," Zeller had told him in a moment of mercy "and Mr. Briggs would take care of you if you put yourself on your honor," It was no dice with Buck.

Once Burned, Buck Is Twice Careful

Neither will Buck sign any Detroit contract with a bonus clause attached. "I've had enough of these bonus clauses," said Buck, "Remember the year I was going to get a bonus if I won 18 games with Washington? I was getting pretty close to it and what happened? They kept me on the bench for 22 straight days and wouldn't let me pitch to save their bonus. To hell with that stuff."

Newsom denies he was a flop with the Tigers last season, despite his record of 12 and 22. "They couldn't get any runs for me. I was pitching pretty good ball, but I didn't have much to work with. Without Hank Greenberg, the Tigers weren't much ball club. The greatest pitcher who ever lived couldn't win 20 games for the Tigers last season."

Ignored by Manager Del Baker and most of his teammates, Newsom is completely unaffected, he has lost none of his swagger. "I didn't come down here until they sent for me," he says. "We didn't send for him," says Zeller, "He asked permission to work out with us."

The newspapermen ought to be on his side Buck says. "There is always something to read about when I'm around," he said modestly. "They all ought to be my friends. I've never squawked yet about anything that was written about me except the time somebody wrote that I slugged a 70-year old waiter, and that was a lie. The only thing I ask of the baseball writers is to spell my name right."

Nats Buy Buck Newsom, Salary Terms Accepted

Tigers Sell Big Hurler; Price Quiet

Big Hurler Makes Announcement After Hour-Long Session With Clark Griffith

By a Staff Correspondent

Orlando, Fla., March 30.—Big Buck Newsom maintained his record for the sensational tonight when he ended his long holdout siege—not as a member of the Detroit Tigers, but as a newly acquired pitcher of the Washington club.

Shortly before midnight, President Clark Griffith, of the Nats, announced that (1) he had bought Newsom had accepted the Nats' salary terms.

Thus the unpredictable Newsom, who for two months had persistently rejected the salary offers of the richest club in baseball, signed with a team he had laughed at only a few hours before as "unable to pay me the money I wanted."

Neither Newsom nor Griffith would disclose the amount of Newsom's 1942 salary with the Nats, but Newsom, publicity-minded to the last, won from the Nats' owner the right to do the talking to reporters.

Makes Announcement

"Newsom asked me to let him make the announcement of the deal," said Griffith, "so you'll have to ask him the particulars."

Big Buck held court in the Nats' hotel lobby after an hour-long session with the Nats' owner.

He mustered his widest grin and declared "I didn't budge from what I had been asking the Tigers to pay me. I got what I wanted from Mr. Griffith. I can't say how much, because I don't want to make anybody jealous."

Newsom, who was paid $32,000 by the Tigers last year, had rejected the Detroit club's final offer of $13,000 earlier in the afternoon. His own last compromise with the Tigers was an offer to sign for $20,000.

Signed for Less

He signed with the Nats for less, it was emphatically stated by other sources.

Earlier in the day Newsom received permission from General Manager Jack Zeller of the Tigers to talk terms with Griffith, and he motored to Orlando tonight.

Before closing the deal, Griffith called in Manager Bucky Harris and declared afterward that Harris had specially requested him to sign the big pitcher.

While Griffith refused to discuss the price paid for Newsom, Zeller had declared that he was willing to sell the pitcher for "not much more than the waiver price" of $7500. The Nats and the Browns were the only teams who had refused to waive on Newsom, who last year had an unimpressive record of 20 defeats and 12 victories.

To Stay With Nats

Griffith declared emphatically after making the deal with Newsom that it was not with any intent to resell the pitcher to the Brooklyn Dodgers or other National League clubs who had sought his services.

"We bought him to pitch for Washington," said Griffith. "I telephoned tonight for two uniforms of Newsom's size."

Before making the deal, Griffith satisfied himself on the point of Newsom's physical condition. The Nats' owner was impressed with the absence of excess weight on the big fellow, who showed off for reporters by stepping on the hotel scales. They showed him at 222 pounds in full dress.

"That means I weigh 214 without my clothes," said Newsom. "I've been working out in Hartsville, S. C., for five weeks before I went to the Tigers' camp. They let me pitch in batting practice the other day and I surprised 'em by knocking the bats out of their hands."

The Washington club's startling deal for the 33-year-old Newsom represents an encore of Griffith's habit of repurchasing players who formerly were in his hire. Newsom returns to the Washington club after a four-year absence following three seasons as a pitcher for the Nats.

Griffith paid $40,000 for Newsom in buying him from the Browns in May, 1935. He had only one winning season in three with the Nats and in midsummer of 1937, he was traded to the Red Sox in a five-player deal involving Ben Chapman, the Ferrell brothers and Mel Alamada.

Tigers Next

The much traveled Newsom wore out his welcome in one season in Boston and was traded to the Browns during the winter of 1937-38, despite the fact his record for the season was 16 wins and 14 defeats. There was friction betwen the temperamental Newsom and Manager Joe Cronin.

The Tigers were the next team to take a chance on Newsom, buying him from the Browns in midseason of 1939, handing over $85,000 in cash in a five-player deal. With the Tigers Newsom achieved the height of his pitching career.

He finished up that 1939 season by winning 20 games and losing

Tigers Belt Nat Hurlers To Win, 8-5

Leonard and Cathey Prove No Puzzle; Nats Make but 4 Hits, 2 Flukes

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Lakeland, Fla., March 30.—The report today is very sad, folks. The Nats made only four hits and got licked by the Tigers, 8 to 5.

Dutch Leonard, who is supposed to be Washington's best pitcher, got slapped around. So did Hardin Cathey, who as of this morning, was supposed to be the Nats' prize rookie.

Washington didn't have much right even to make it as close as 8 to 5. For five innings, the Nats couldn't stir up even a faint sign of a hit against Left-hander Arnold Newhouser, and their first two runs were forced home by walks.

In fact, two of the Nats' four hits were exceedingly lucky affairs. One was a drooping pop fly off Jimmy Pofahl's bat, and another was a slow roller by Rookie Alex Kvasnak that curled up and played dead half way to third base. Those Nats were not exactly nudging that nugget this afternoon.

Tied Up in the Seventh

But as late as the seventh inning the Nats were still in the ball game with the score tied at 4-4. However, it wasn't their own doing. Newhouser walked two batters, Shortstop Eric McNair fumbled a ball and Relief Pitcher Virgil Trucks walked a third batter in the Nats' passive offense. That was the inning in which the Nats made their two cheap hits.

Neither Leonard nor Cathey were of much account. The big knuckleballer had neither control nor effectiveness. He walked two runs home and was raked for six hits in his five innings of duty. Cathey turned in his first sour job of the training season when he gave up five hits and four runs in the last three innings.

Cathey, however, struck the Nats' hardest blow of the game. He banged a tremendous triple over Rightfielder Patrick's head in the eighth inning. The Nats had only three hits to their credit until Ortiz doubled in the ninth. You wouldn't have been proud of the Nats today. They filled the bases against Newhouser in the first inning on a pair of walks and an error, and couldn't get anybody home. The same thing happened in the fifth when Newhouser walked the first three men to face him. Case, Kvasnak and Ortiz couldn't get the ball out of the infield. The Tigers came up with two runs in the second inning after Higgins singled to center. McNair was safe on Galle's fumble and a bit later Tebbett's infield hit filled the bases with none out. Newhouser popped up, but Leonard walked two men to force home a pair of runs. A third scored on McCosky's fly.

Illinois Nine Plays 18 Games; Track Slate

By the Associated Press

Champaign, Ill., March 30.—An 18-game schedule for the University of Illinois baseball team was approved today by the University Senate committee on athletics. Five contests will be with service teams and 12 with Western Conference foes.

An eight-meet outdoor schedule, including three dual matches with Big Ten teams, also was approved for the track team. The Illini also will compete in the Drake relays at Des Moines, Iowa, and the central collegiate events at Milwaukee, Wis.

Baseball Schedule

May 1-2—At Wisconsin; 5—Chanute Field, here; 8-9—At Ohio State; 15-16—Michigan, here.

Track Schedule

April 18—Quadrangular meet, here (Iowa, Northwestern, Purdue, Illinois); 24-25—Drake Relays, at Des Moines.

May 2—At Michigan; 9—Purdue, here; 15-16—Western Conference meet at Evanston, Ill.

June 3—Central Collegiate meet at Milwaukee; 13—Pacific Coast-Western Conference dual meet at Chicago; 18-19—N. C. A. A. meet, at Lincoln, Nebr.

Storm Delays Bowie Inaugural a Day

Nearby Plant Victim of Postponement Third Time; Weights for Rowe Announcement

Bowie will open on Thursday and not tomorrow as scheduled. General Manager Joseph A. Farrell made that announcement late yesterday after a visit to the Prince Georges County track to look over the snow situation. Although there was no doubt, barring more unseasonable weather, that the racing strip would be in condition, Farrell believed that it would be better for all concerned if the opening of Maryland's spring season was delayed for a day. He pointed out that the storm delayed preparation for the opening such as checking electrical equipment, etc., as well as the transportation of horses to the track.

This is the third time racing at a Maryland major track has been postponed and in each case Bowie has been the scene. The spring meeting of 1924 was delayed two days as the result of a snowstorm similar to the present one. Three years ago the meeting was cut short two days in the fall because of a blizzard that began during the Thanksgiving Day program.

$5000 Race Thursday

The Rowe Memorial Handicap, $5000 feature, will top Thursday's program. Weights for this event were announced yesterday. E. R. Watkins' Clyde Tolson, named for the F. B. I. official, was given top weight in the field for the 6-furlong sprint. Clyde Tolson has been working well and is definitely regarded as a starter. His assignment is 123 pounds. Getting in the test at 122 pounds is Victor Emanuel's formidable Omission.

Last year in the same race Omission took the measure of Clyde Tolson. There is a drop of 4 pounds between Omission and the next eligibles. Johnnie J. and Liberty Franc, a pair of campaigners from Florida, were labeled with 118 pounds each.

Transfigure and Cape Cod, considered likely starters, were placed at the 116-pound figure, 1 pound more than the 115 given Madigama and Warlock. Other assignments are Halcyon Boy, 111; Maechance and Riding Light, 110; Charm Bracelet, 107; Joe Ray, 105; Pete Junior and Designator, 104; Marksman and Espero, 102; Cassis, 100; Cold Crack, 95.

Post time at Bowie will be 2:30 p. m. and will remain at that hour for the remainder of the 10-day session. The condition book shows eight races daily.

As was the case last year, the smallest purse at the Bowie meeting will be $1200.

In addition to the Rowe Memorial three other $5000 events are booked for the meeting. The Saturday feature will be the Bowie Handicap at a mile and 70 yards. On April 8, a week from tomorrow, the annual Bowie Kindergarten Stakes will be contested by 2-year-olds at a half mile. As usual, the valedictory feature, this year on April 11, will be the Southern Maryland Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth.

18-Year-Old Coast Hurler, De Rose, Signs With Yanks

By International News Service

San Francisco, March 30.—The New York Yankees reached into the San Francisco Bay region today and signed up 18-year-old Carl De Rose, of suburban Albany.

Yankee scouts became interested in the young pitching sensation last week when they saw De Rose strike out 21 men while holding Richmond High to one scratch hit.

Bonus price paid for the lad, who stands 6 feet 4 inches and weighs 215 pounds, was reported to be $20,000.

In an exhibition game today between the Philadelphia Athletics and the San Quentin Prison team, De Rose hurled three innings as a "guest" pitcher for San Quentin, allowing only one hit. The Athletics won the game, 4 to 1.

"He has plenty of swift," agreed the A's who faced De Rose.

He expects to leave for the Yankee training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., late this week. It was reported that he will be farmed out to a Kansas City club for seasoning.

Ohioan Beats Oscar Wright By Decision

By Tony Neri

Oscar Wright's ascendancy in the lightweight ranks was halted, temporarily at least, last night when a young Midwesterner gave the local colored boy an educational lesson in the art of self-defense. This young man, Billy Murray, known in the fight game as the Belleaire Blazer, gained a unanimous eight-round decision before 1300 fans at Turner's Arena.

Wright met in Murray, who hails from Bellaire, Ohio, his first real test, and although his performance showed his usual dauntless courage, the local boy couldn't cope with Murray's style.

Murray's victory was doubly sweet for in the first round his ears were dented with the boos of the crowd when he was knocked to the floor twice. But after that initial session, Murray was the complete master.

Murray on Floor

The Bellaire Blazer was caught cold in that first round by one of Wright's overhand powerhouses and he dropped like a felled log. He was up at the count of five, but again was knocked down. He immediately arose and staved off the onrushing Wright, who was trying desperately for a knockout.

Murray successfully weathered the storm and after losing that opening round, went on to gain the edge in all the remaining heats.

Little Oscar, winded and bewildered, was never able to bring into play his vaunted right hand. After that first session Wright fought as in a daze, vainly attempting to block lightning left jabs and effective right crosses.

When Murray wasn't sticking his left jab in Oscar's face, his right was beating a tattoo on the local colored boy's body.

By his victory last night Murray clinched a shot at Lew Jenkins, former lightweight champion of the world, in a show to be staged at Riverside Stadium, April 20, it was announced by Matchmaker Gabe Menendez.

Murray finally received a gratifying ovation from the crowd, which paid a net $1114 at the gate. The winner scaled 140 and Wright, 135. It was Murray's forty-ninth triumph in 51 fights.

Following the main event, Buddy Holmes and Buddy Thomas, a pair of local middleweights, battled to a six-round draw.

In the top preliminary bout, scheduled for six rounds, Gus Mirman, former Columbus University boxer, dropped Art Johnson of Baltimore to the canvas twice before Referee Marty Gallagher stopped the scrap at 52 second of the second round while Johnson was stretched out on the floor. Mirman caught the Baltimorean with a slashing left hook near his own corner and Johnson went down in a heap, rolled over once and then the referee stepped in and gave Gus a technical knockout victory.

In the opening round Mirman also sent his man down and the latter was saved by the bell after taking a four count. Mirman's left crashed repeatedly against Johnson's jaw and it was obviously only a matter of time before Johnson would go out. Mirman scaled 172 and Johnson 173.

Duffy, Rosa Draw

A six-rounder between Bill Duffy, of the Naval Air Station, and Manual Rosa, of Baltimore, ended in a well received draw. Duffy staged a fast finish to earn a stalemate, Rose earlier centered his attack on the sailor's midriff and the former Villanova collegian was unable to cope with the body blows.

The fast fight was replete with action, to the delight of the crowd. Duffy weighed 150 and Rosa 155.

Ray Landis, former protege of Welterweight Phil Furr, returned to the local wars in another six-rounder only to lose the decision to Sammy Daniels, another Baltimore boy. Both connected with heavy blows but were unable to follow up their advantages. Landis weighed 142 and Daniels 145.

Ken Stribling, 156, knocked out Billy Washington, 155, in 2:30 of the second round of the scheduled four round curtain raiser. Washington had been smashed to the floor twice for counts of one and eight before the finishing blow. Both boys are from Washington.

Al Reiss Stopped By Zamaris in First

Detroit, March 30 (AP).—Frank Zamaris, East Orange, N. J., heavyweight, stopped Al Reiss, of Detroit, in the first round of a scheduled six-round bout on a boxing card here tonight.

The plunging, swinging Zamaris damaged Reiss so badly that Referee Lou Handler summoned Dr. Joe O'Brien, State Boxing Commision physician, who ordered the fight halted. Handler awarded Zamaris a technical knockout.

Bobo Stops Franklin After 2 Knockdowns

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, March 30.—Harry Bobo, Pittsburgh's dynamiting deacon, got up from the floor tonight to score a sensational knockout over the Cleveland heavyweight, Lem Franklin, in 2:40 of the first round of their 10-round fight. Bobo weight 209¼, Franklin, 196½.

The Cleveland Negro, essaying a comeback after his 8-round knockout by Bob Pastor last month, took the full count, draped full length in his own corner, his legs stretched inside the ring, his head lolling on the apron. It took his handlers several minutes to revive him sufficiently to raise him to his feet.

The knockout came after Bobo had floored his man twice in quick succession for counts of eight and nine. Bobo started his sensational spurt after Franklin, a wild right-hand swinger, dumped Harry for a three count with a haymaker right.

Franklin Boss for Moment

Franklin seemed in complete command after flooring Bobo first, the Pittsburgh Negro cagily backpedaled around the ring with Lethal Lem in wild, but futile pursuit. At close quarters, Franklin was belaboring Harry with chopping right hands when the world exploded like lightning around the Cleveland kid's ears.

Shifting suddenly from pathetic defense to tigerish offense, Bobo caught Franklin flush on the jaw with a short left hook, followed by a vicious right cross. Franklin sank to the floor, a look of pained amazement on his face. He rolled on one elbow as the count was tolled in his ear.

Lem staggered up at eight and tried weakly to hang on, but Bobo caught him again in his own corner with a long, shattering left hook to the jaw. Franklin crumbled like a tall chimney under a demolition charge. He managed—no one in the roaring, record-breaking indoor audience knew how—to get to his feet but the end was apparent.

He's a Big Shot Now

Bobo's final fusilade of rights and lefts black-jacked Franklin in a pathetic flip-flop in his own corner where the count became a formality.

By winning in such sensational fashion, the 21-year-old Pittsburgher, who is a Sunday school deacon, moved into top drawer society among the heavyweight title challengers.

The bout was unfolded before a crowd of more than 7000 which paid a gross of $23,436.50 and a net of $20,526. Both gross and net receipts established indoor records in Pittsburgh.

East Finally Beats West In Gloves Bouts

By the Associated Press

New York, March 30.—The East's amateur Golden Gloves boxers finally stopped playing "cousin" to the Western wallopers tonight and won the annual inter-city competition for the first time in eight years, nine bouts to seven, before a crowd of 16,571 fans in Madison Square Garden.

Jimmy Carrollo, the New York heavyweight champion and most highly touted amateur bigboy since Joe Louis was punching for nothing, came through over the Western warrior, Hubert Hood, by the narrowest of margins to preserve the East's slim edge and give the Atlantic Seaboard sockers their first team victory since 1934.

Twice since then, the East has managed to tie the annual fuss, but couldn't quite get out in front. Tonight's was the fourth team title for the Easterners in the 15-year competition. The West has won eight and three were deadlocked.

54th Bout ni Row Is Captured by Lulu Constantino

By the Associated Press

New York, March 30.—Lulu Constantino, 129¾, won his fifty-fourth straight fight tonight, easily outpointing Jose Rozo, 128, Colombia, in an eight-round scrap that topped the ring card at St. Nicholas Aerna.

The New York candy store clerk cut Rozo's right eye in the second and closed the South American's other orb in the later rounds. Rozo also suffered a badly cut lip.

In the six-round semiwindup, Charley Davis, 131, New York, defeated Henry Vasquez, 132½, Brooklyn.

Dodgers Score Two Runs in 11th to Beat Browns, 5 to 4

Bill Herman Finally Hits To Win Game

Pirates' Five-Run Rally Beats Chisox; A's Take Baseball To San Quentin

By the Associated Press

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 30.—Billy Herman's eleventh inning single, his first hit in 22 trips to the plate, drove in the two runs that brought Brooklyn a 5-to-4 verdict over the St. Louis Browns today.

Earlier in the frame Dixie Walker was issued a pass and hurried to third on Dolph Camilli's single, the Dodger first baseman just beating Glenn McQuillen's delayed throw to the plate with the deciding marker.

It was a triple by Camilli with two mates on base that started the Brooklyn scoring in the first.

St. Louis evened the count at 3-all in the ninth on doubles by George McQuinn, Roy Cullenbine and Pinch Hitter Chet Laabs. The Browns went out in front in the eleventh on Don Gutteridge's single, a pass to Harlond Clift and another single by McQuinn.

Larry French, who won only five games for the Dodgers last season, was touched for three straight blows and a score in the first but then spaced three singles over the next five frames.

Pirates Edge Cubs

Pasadena, Calif., March 30 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates scored five runs in a big seventh inning rally today to tie the score, 6 to 6, and then got another marker in the eighth to win out over the Chicago, White Sox, 7 to 6.

High light of the Bucs' seventh was Vince Di Maggio's home run over the left field wall, which scored two runners ahead of him. Pittsburgh was two runs short of tying the score, but Elbie Fletcher walked, Maurie Van Robays was safe on an error by Bob Kennedy, and Frank Gustine cracked out a two-base hit to send Fletcher and Van Robays across the plate.

The Pirates won in the eighth as Pete Coscarart beat out an infield hit, went to second on Kennedy's error and scored when Sox Shortstop Luke Appling fumbled John Barrett's grounder.

Veteran Ted Lyons pitched the first five innings for the Sox and allowed six hits and one run. Thornton Lee was the victim of the Bucs' later uprising. Pitchers Ken Heintzelman and Max Butcher limited the Chicagoans to seven safeties.

Yanks Head Home Lacking Considerable

Even McCarthy Dissatisfied With Spring Showing of World Champs

By Judson Bailey
Associated Press Sports Writer

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 30.—The New York Yankees are heading for home with a lusterless ball club and if people didn't have so much confidence in the managerial genius of Joe McCarthy and the known capabilities of some of his veterans there might be some doubt about their future.

McCarthy himself is not satisfied. He does not say so, but actions speak louder than conversation and for the first time in the memory of writers covering the Yanks the team pulled away from camp tonight without thinning out the rookies. This was in spite of the fact that some of the Yankee farm clubs are crying for talent.

The pitching has looked good and bad by turns, the fielding but passable and the hitting has been notable chiefly for its absence. However, the failure to hit as a team has not worried McCarthy because most of the training parks have spacious outfields which make long flies out of balls that would be home runs for the bombers in the regular season.

Stars Lack Luster

Some of the individual players are causing concern, though.

Gerry Priddy and Buddy Hassett, both of them striving to nail down regular jobs in the infield, have been unable to show anything whatever at the plate. When they left Hassett had a batting average of .129 and Priddy owned a modest .179, and as a result the third base and first base positions still were as open as when training started.

Priddy has looked satisfactory in the field and may yet find himself at bat, but Red Rolfe, who showed up late because of recurrence of intestinal trouble, and has not yet played in a game, may be back at his old stand in the hot corner. He believes he is well again and McCarthy says the veteran looks much better than was expected.

Hassett's rival for the first base position left vacant by Johnny Strum going to the Army, is String Bean Ed Levy, who is leading the club hitting with a .342 pace. Levy has been in the Yankee system for half a dozen years, however, without ever impressing the bosses too much.

Levy Tied to K. C.

Levy is a right-handed hitter, which means that if he were included in the same infield with Priddy, the Yanks would have a slightly lopsided right-handed batting order. In addition, he still is on the Kansas City roster and can be left there for instant call while the club would probably have difficulty getting waivers on Hassett. These factors seem to favor the Irish thrush from the Bronx opening the season on first.

Somewhere along the way there will be cuts—an outfielder, an infielder, a catcher, four pitchers—but for the present the Yankees are holding onto everyone they can just to be sure the club is not as bad as it has looked.

Tigers Send Dick Wakefield To Beaumont

By the Associated Press

Lakeland, Fla., March 30.—The Detroit Tigers, making the first move to streamline their squad, today sent four players to Beaumont, their Texas League farm club.

Dick Wakefield and Walter (Hoot) Evers, outfielders, and Leslie Mueller, pitcher were assigned to Beaumont on option, while Pitcher Earl Cook, 28-year-old Canadian who was with Buffalo last season, was sold outright. Wakefield is the former University of Michigan outfielder who received a bonus in excess of $50,000 for signing with Detroit last season.

Wakefield and Evers, who was an outfielder at the University of Illinois, both played at Winston-Salem, N. C., last year and are advancing from Class C to Class A baseball. Mueller, a righthander, was with Beaumont in 1940 and 1941.

Phils Sign 3 Rookies And Farm Them Out

Allentown, Pa., March 30 (AP).—The National League Phils have signed three promising Lehigh Valley youngsters, it was revealed today, and optioned them to Rome, N. Y., in the Canadian-American League.

The players are Bill Schuster, former high school star who performed in the outfield in a semi-pro league last year; Righthander Dale Mathewson, of Bethlehem, Pa., who has a no-hit scholastic game to his credit; and Eddie Yanscak, a southpaw pitcher from Catasauqua, Pa.

Mize Fails to Deliver, Giants Reported On Verge of Returning Him to Cards

By George Kirksey
United Press Staff Writer

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 30.—Pickups and putouts in the grapefruit circuit: The reports refuse to down that the Giants will turn Johnny Mize back to the St. Louis Cardinals before the season opens . . . the Giants are being very mysterious about it and the dope seems to be that they are waiting to see what happens to Babe Young's appeal for a reclassification of his 1-A draft rating . . . Young supports his elderly mother and father and his case is somewhat similar to Ted Williams'. . . . Young has looked good this spring while Mize, besides being a big risk because of his trick shoulder, hasn't shown the home-run punch the Giants are looking for. . . . If the Giants do take advantage of the verbal agreement they have with the Cards and turn back Mize, it'll force a complicated situation . . . The Cards will have to give the Giants back their $65,000 and players Ken O'Dea and Bill Lohrman . . . Then the Cards will be stuck with three first basemen. Mize, Johnny Hopp and Rookie Ray Sanders.

Buddy Hassett hasn't knocked down any fences or performed any Hal Chase plays around first with the Yanks . . . Manager Joe McCarthy wants to go along with Hassett, but the former National Leaguer will have to show something soon . . . Ed Levy is battling hard for the Yankee first base job and rates over Hassett on his showing thus far . . . but the fact that he's a right-handed hitter is being held against him . . . The Yanks have too many who hit from that side . . . Outfielder Chet Ross, who was a rookie sensation with the Braves in 1940, but broke his ankle last season, is still bothered by the injury.

Howard Moss, new Giant rookie outfielder who played outlaw ball in North Carolina and Georgia the past four years, claims he hit over 40 homers a season in that company . . . He looks the part of a real hitter . . . The Cardinals have been getting sensational pitching this spring, but look what their outfielders have been hitting—Musial, .241; Moore, .200; Slaughter, .163 . . . The blistered finger that's bothered rookie Pitcher Hank Borowy throughout his career is the only thing that can keep him off the Yanks . . . Trainer Earl Painter has been trying a new treatment on it and Borowy reports considerable improvement . . . Instead of letting the finger get calloused, Painter is using wet packs to keep the skin soft.

If Mike Chartak, big left-handed-hitting outfielder, isn't kept by the Yanks he'll probably go to Washington . . . The Yanks can't send him out on waivers any more and the Nationals are ready to grab him. . . . Bucky Harris is high on his rookie shortstop, Bob Repass . . . Ray Poat, who pitched on Lou Boudreau's U. of Illinois team, is a Phi Beta Kappa . . . The Reds now have ten outfielders and are trying to sell one or more of them to some other club, preferably an American League outfit . . . Joe Cronin is impressed with the work of rookie catcher big Bill Conroy and will keep him.

The Dodgers are a cinch to make a trade or buy a player before the season opens . . . Ival Goodman, Reds' right fielder, who was out most of last season with a double hernia, looks like he's set for a big comeback . . . Barney McCosky outran all the other speed boys on the Detroit club the other day to retain his title as the fastest Tiger . . . Giant followers are afraid that big Babe Barna is going to get hurt by a fly ball unless he wears a mask in the outfield.

Jack Wilson, former Red Sox pitcher, now with Washington, has his heart set on beating his former teammates every opportunity he gets because of his dislike of Business Manager Eddie Collins . . . Bob Blattner, Cardinal rookie infielder, has shown rapid improvement and will be the No. 1 replacement at short and second this season . . . Henry Edwards, the Cedar Rapids rookie, is likely to open the season in right field for Cleveland.

Gopher End Coach Called Into Army

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, March 30.—Lou Keller, director of athletics at the University of Minnesota, said today that Bert Baston, Minnesota football end coach, soon would become a lieutenant colonel in the newly formed ordnance division of the United States Army. Baston was a Marine captain in World War I.

Baston is expected to enter active service this week. He is the third Minnesota athletic official to join. Bernie Bierman, Gopher head football coach, is a major in the Marine Corps, where he also served in World War I, and Frank McCormick, who was director of athletics, recently left for military service.

Keller said nothing would be done immediately about filling Baston's place on the Minnesota football staff "but undoubtedly we will have to do something by fall." He said no successor had been discussed.

The Minnesota football squad began spring training today, more than 100 hopefuls turning out. They will be coached by Dr. George Hauser, who succeeded Bierman; Red Dawson, former Tulane head coach; Bud Wilkinson, former Syracuse assistant coach, and John Roning, former Gustavus Adolphus (St. Peter, Minn.) head coach, all Bierman-trained talent.

Marietta Coach To Join Army

Marietta, Ohio, March 30 (AP).—Frank L. (Duke) Hayes, who came here from Grinnell (Iowa) College in 1927, reported today he had obtained a leave of absence as Marietta College athletic director and head football coach to become a captain in the Army Air Corps.

Hayes, assistant University of Michigan coach from 1924 to 1926, said Marietta probably would lack sufficient man power to compete in intercollegiate football next fall.

Coach Butch Loebs Gets Navy Commission

St. Louis, March 30 (AP).—Frank (Butch) Loebs, former football coach at Washington University, today was commissioned a lieutenant, junior grade, in the United States Navy.

He will be assigned to the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board and will interview prospective fliers at colleges in eastern Missouri, southern Illinois, southeastern Iowa and western Kentucky.

Loebs is a graduate of Purdue.

Vandy Grid Captain In Naval Reserve

Nashville, Tenn., March 20 (AP).—Fred Holder, center and captain-elect of the Vanderbilt University football team, today was sworn into the United States Naval Reserve Corps as an ensign, Navy recruiting officials announced.

The recruting officer explained that the commission, in the ordnance department, was probationary, and that Holder would not go into active duty until graduation in 1943. Holder is from Paris, Tenn.

Georgia U. Nine Easy Victor, 18-4

Athens, Ga., March 30 (AP).—Georgia's Bulldogs defeeated a jittery Michigan State baseball team, 18-4, today, collecting 17 hits while holding the Spartnas to six.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, March 31.—What interests you?

BASEBALL?—The baseball broadcasters are going to have a pretty tough time of it this season, until the listeners realize that the gab artists are not permitted to give out any information about the weather.

CONSIDINE

You may be listening to an exciting game whose score is tied in the closing chapters, and the winning run may be on base with your favorite team's slugger at bat—then, without warning, your announcer may say "the game has been postponed." After an interminable wait, during which time the radio crams in two suffering soap operas, the anguished baseball fan may learn that "the game will not continue today." Not until you read the papers the next day will you find out that rain caused the delay and finally the cancellation.

You may possibly hear an announcer state that an outfielder missed a simple fly, but before you denounce the fielder you'd better give him the benefit of the doubt and decide that he lost it in the sun. The announcer won't be able to tell you that. Nor will he be able to tell you that batterymen suffering from the heat have been removed, for that reason, or a host of other meteorological and atmospheric facts and figures that have crept into the language and the warp and woof of the game. The Government, of course, feels that the foe within our gates might use such information to pass along to an enemy at sea.

If the ban achieves no other end, it will have served a noble purpose if it succeeds in exterminating the frazzled terms "Old Sol" and "Jupe Pluve" from the lexicon of announcers.

SWIMMING?—Wasn't that an interesting story Henry Ortland, Naval Academy swimming coach, gave out? He told the College Swimming Coaches Association that the success of Japanese soldier-swimmers had brought about a change in the entire theory of teaching swimming at Annapolis. The emphasis which once was placed on speed is now placed on endurance. The crawl stroke and flutter-kick has been replaced by the durable breaststroke and scissors-kick.

Ortland related the bizarre but authenticated story of Japanese snipers swimming silently into Hongkong harbor, their rifles strapped high on their shoulders, and exploding harbor mines with expert rifle marksmanship. The British believed they had destroyed the causeway which connected Singapore with the main Malay Peninsula. But at night, Japanese soldiers, attached to engineering brigades, swam out in the strait, measured the break in the causeway, and otherwise laid the groundwork for its quick repair. Soon Japanese tanks and troop cars were rumbling over the healed breach.

Another reason why the Navy is stressing endurance swimming is that a mastery of same will cut down on the number of casualties in sea disasters. In the recent sea battle off Java, a seaman kept himself afloat for 28 hours before being rescued. He had neither lifebelt nor floating wreckage to help him.

RACING?—Warren Wright's magnificent Whirlaway, whose chances of winning the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap and of thus becoming the greatest purse-winner of them all were ruined by the war, will soon come fast. Wright has informed Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt that Whirly will run in the Metropolitan handicap at Belmont. The race will be worth $15,000. Before retiring Whirly to Calumet Farm, Wright wants to give him an opportunity to break Seabiscuit's record earnings of $437,730. Whirly is now $88,069 behind that figure.

Contesting Whirlaway in what promises to be his first start as a 4-year old will be such dependables as Our Boots, Sweepida and Mioland. Alsab also is eligible. Whirly is entered also in the $38,000 Suburban handicap.

BOXING?—Wonder what ever became of the stories about how much Louis was slipping? . . . and whatever became of Pvt. Bummy Davis? . . . and did you know that Abe Simon, who looks like a professional house-haunter, is one of the most intelligent and docile men in sports? . . . and that when Joe Louis fights for nothing, that nothing is all that John Roxborough, Julian Black, Jim Braddock and Joe Gould (stockholders) get? . . . and by any chance do you happen to know the name of the next heavyweight champion? We do. Fellow named Johnny Colan.

Louisville Gets Three Red Sox

Sarasota, Fla., March 30 (AP).—Eddie Pellagrini, Boston Red Sox rookie shortstop, and Pitcher Andy Karl were sent on option today to the club's Louisville farm team in the American Association, and Nelson Potter, veteran hurler obtained last year from the Philadelphia Athletics, was sold outright to the same club.

Pellagrini, a long hitter and classy fielder, has spent the past four years in the Sox farm system, and there is a strong possibility the Boston-born youth may be back with the Sox before the season is far along, as John Pesky, Joe Cronin's present first string shortfielder, has a 1-A classification.

Karl, who was brought up from Scranton by Judge Landis' order, didn't fit in with the Sox 1942 plans and was sent to Louisville for more seasoning.

Women Open Titleholders' Quest Today

By the Associated Press

Augusta, Ga., March 30.—Led by Defending Champion Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, a field of eight players will go postward tomorrow in the fifth renewal of the Titleholders' Golf tournament, a 54-hole test at medal play.

Professional David Ogilvie, sr., of the country club, scene of the tournament, explained that war conditions riddled the entry list this year as a number of the players found it inadvisable to travel by automobile.

Besides Miss Kirby, the only other entrants already on hand for the tournament, a three-day event, are Louise Suggs, of Lithia Springs, Ga., the present North and South titlist; Mrs. Helen Hicks Harb, Woodmere, Long Island, a former national champion; Mary Jane Garman, of Sarasota, Fla.; Georgia Tainter, of Fargo, N. Dak., sensation of the Florida swing this year; Jeane Cline, of Bloomington, Ill.; Mrs. Charles Harbaugh, of Cleveland, and Eileen Stulb, of Augusta.

Homeward Bound Noses Out Minee-Mo in Tropical Feature

In Question, The Favorite, Runs Third

By the Associated Press

Tropical Park, Fla., March 30.—Jake Freedman's Homeward Bound, which had failed to make good in a half-dozen starts at various distances in Florida this winter, came through w h a photo finish triumph in the Normandy Isle Purse here today. This mile and a sixteenth attraction topped the program which ushered in the final full week of the meeting.

Homeward Bound, under Ira Hanford, barely withstood the challenge of J. B. Patridge's Minee-Mo, which made his bid on the inside. The latter, victorious in two recent sprints, headed Mrs. C. S. Bromley's In Question, favorite in the field of seven, for the place. The winner, a $23-for-$2 hazard, covered the distance in 1:44 4-5 and his triumph was witnessed by 5,223 fans.

The finish of the feature was so close that many thought Minee-Mo had nipped the Freedman 4-year-old.

Hanford took Homeward Bound right to the front at the break and the gelded son of Happy Argo opened up a daylight lead in the first quarter. Insco Lad forced the running for a half-mile before finding the pace too fast. Minee-Mo, rated not far behind by Wayne Wright, drew up on virtually even terms with the eventual winner as they pounded around the last bend. It was head and head to the wire, with the result in doubt until the camera's evidence was flashed. In Question's move came too late. The favorite probably would have won in another couple of strides.

Brown Is Named Racing Steward

Camden, N. J., March 30 (AP).—Edwin James Brown, nationally known racing official, has been named one of the stewards at the Garden State Park meeting scheduled to open in July, Walter H. Donovan, managing director of the track, announced today.

Brown has been one of the Pacific Coast's leading officials for many years. He was chairman of the rules committee of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners in 1935 and 1936, and was president of the group in 1937 and 1938.

Slapnicka Joins Browns as Scout

Deland, Fla., March 30 (U.P.).—Cyril C. Slapnicka, former general manager and chief scout of the Cleveland Indians, has joined the St. Louis Browns as chief scout and supervisor of minor league affiliations, it was announced tonight.

Slapnicka, credited with the discovery of several major league stars for the Indians, including Bobby Feller and Tommy Henrich, resigned his post with the Tribe late last season after serving since November, 1935. At that time, Slapnicka said he just "preferred to make a change" and would take a month's vacation before trying to find a job to keep in baseball.

Boys Club Fives Pace AAU Tourney

The annual A. A. U. Basketball Tournament started on two floors yesterday with Boys Club of Washington teams surviving the majority of tests in three weight classes.

In the 105-pound division the winners were Eastern Branch Cards and Central Branch Celtics, winners over Greenbelt Boys Club, 26 to 15, and the Cadets, 32 to 25, respectively.

In the 120-pound class Alexandria Boys Club took a close 41 to 36 decision over the Bethesda Barons, and the Crows stopped the Cadets, 38 to 25. Clashes in the 135-pound section went to the Brightwood Eagles, 39 to 19, over Swanson Junior High, and to sons of Palestine, 44 to 26, over National Training School.

Selections at Tropical Park.

Dear Al:

Well, Bowie won't open tomorrow, after all. Track officials announced last night that the snow storm has forced a delay until Thursday. However, today's still "get-away-day" as far as I'm concerned at Tropical Park so I'll just take a day off tomorrow. I need a change of scenery, too. I haven't kept any record of my selections during Florida racing and that is probably a good thing. We have potted around and had a winner here and there, but not with the consistency we sometimes attain, and I do mean sometimes, on our home grounds. The horses have been running fair at Tropical, but they were doing plenty of tricks at Hialeah. I wouldn't be surprised if a lot of the Hialeah horses show up in the circus when it comes to town. Jockey Wayne Wright certainly made a nice comeback at Tropical Park. The blond boy seemed to be sliding out for the big time a couple of months ago. Going into today's program he has ridden eight winners at this meeting and seems to have all his old skill, according to the pressbox boys in Florida. The Southern Maryland Handicap at Bowie on April 11, promises to be a real horse race. W. L. Brann has named Pictor and Challomine. I wish he had named Challedon, but there is little chance of the "big horse" seeing action until Havre de Grace. The Southern Maryland field also contains Porter's Cap, Trois Pistoles, Air Master and others with plenty of distance punch. The Bowie Kindergarten, to be run a week from tomorrow, has drawn 41 nominations for the half-mile battle, the first in Maryland for the new crop of juveniles. Still two days to Bowie. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—LADY BOB breaking off the rail, has the speed to make the most of the position and I'm going to string along. TOWER MISS gets in light and will be a factor. ZACANITE for the show end.

Second race—CONQUEROR III has been waiting for his sort of company. Carries 115 pounds but I'm going to take my chances. CHANCE RUN downs this kind occasionally and is dangerous. NOBLE BOY to take care of the others

Third race—MAYDIG seems the best suited of this crew. Wayne Wright will do the riding and I see no reason for mistakes. NIGHT TIDE has speed and belongs close. FLY GENT belongs in the money circle.

Fourth race—MICHIGAN SWEET is tossed in this with a feather assignment and looks like the goods. BATTER UP promises to be in the thick of contention despite 115 pounds. ALBATROSS for the show end.

Fifth race—SHERRON ANN gets a nice shift in the weights against BOY ANGLER and I expect them to come home in the order named. SMART CRACK could fill out the money bracket.

Sixth race—BILLY O. is the class of the distance test and appears capable of handling the top weight. CHATLET, with 101 pounds, will be a keen factor. FALSE PLAY may take a piece of the money.

Seventh race—GAY AMERICAN, WAYRIEL and BLUESTRING is the way I prefer them in this affair. However, it is a wide open race.

Eighth race—BAYPORT gets the call in the day's fiale. Needs only the right ride. CURWEN and COUNTRY will battle it out if the top one makes mistakes.

Best Bet—BILLY O.

Cowboy Luttrall Returns for Mat Bout Thursday

That one-man Wild West show—Cowboy Luttrall—will be back at it again Thursday night, this time to face Art LeGrand, of Wisconsin, in a special 30-minute match on the wrestling card featuring Sandor Szabo, the National Wrestling Association champion, in a title bout against Pat Fraley, of California.

Luttrall had the fans stirred up last week in his match with Lou Plummer which ended in a draw. So rough was Luttrall that Plummer for the first time locally found himself in the role of hero.

Sheriff Tom Hanley, the 320-pound blimp from Oklahoma, who is almost as wide as he is long, will return to face Milo Steinborn, the Memphis "Strong Man," in a 30-minute match.

The semiwindup is between Gus Sonnenberg, former champion, and Joe Cox, of Kansas.

Szabo is risking his title in a one-hour time limit match. He drew with Ernie Dusek last week.

Full Week-End Schedule Awaits D. C. Horsey Set

Three Events Are Slated, Snow Permitting At Upperville, Chevy Chase and Maryland

By Anne Hagner

Three important horse events in a single weekend is the full schedule that confronts local followers Saturday and Sunday—providing the snow melts rapidly enough to make them possible.

The University of Maryland Riding Club Horse Show will start Saturday morning at College Park; the Piedmont Hunt will hold its annual point-to-point races Saturday afternoon at Lieut. and Mrs. Paul Mellon's Rokeby Farm, near Upperville, Va., and the Chevy Chase Horse Show will go on Sunday with the same card that its committee had planned for last Sunday, only to be snowed out.

Bill Stevens, chairman of the Maryland U. affair, has planned a well-rounded card of hunter, jumper, hack and horsemanship events that will bring out a long list of local exhibitors. Unexpectedly, the collegiate show will be the first on the outdoor spring circuit, as a result of the Chevy Chase postponement. Humphrey Finney and Capt. Boris Wolkonsky will judge.

The races at Rokeby, winding up the best point-to-point season seen in years locally, will be over the same beautiful 5¼-mile course as in previous seasons, most of it visible to spectators from one high vantage point.

Mowgli Due to Compete

Divisions are for heavyweight riders with a minimum of 200 pounds; a ladies' race with a 145-pound minimum, and the featured Rokeby Bowl race with a 175-pound requirement.

Although Crompton Smith was unwilling to say whether his wife's Mowgli would enter the Piedmont race after his victory at Potomac Saturday, followers of the sport figure that the gelding will seek his fourth point-to-point triumph in as many weeks.

Others who are certain to go after the big Rokeby Bowl are Mrs. surprising broodmare who kept Mowgli's record from being unblemished when she outran him at the Redland Hunt race March 8; Lillian Chambers' Cautious Tom, who chased Mowgli home at Warrenton; Thomas T. Mott's Port Law, Francis Hoge's Indian Duke, Gerald B. Webb, jr.'s Big Charley, and a long list of others.

In the ladies' race, most of the entrants will be out to catch Mrs. Robert C. Winmill on her Keeline, admittedly one of the heavy favorites. But Judy Johnson, victim of more bad fortune this year than any other point-to-point enthusiast, is certain of a mount on either a Mott racer or Boyd Keys' Locomotive, which she rode to a ten-length victory at Potomac last week and was disqualified for cutting a flag.

Another, likely choice, is Ruth O'Keefe's Sun Alv, who followed Locomotive's trail at Potomac and likewise was disqualified.

Arizona Bookies Phone From Dog House

Phoenix, Ariz., March 30 (AP).—Because the bookies were in the dog house, they operated successfully during horse races at the State Fair Grounds.

Agents investigating for the State Tax Commission finally found the bookies' telephone headquarters—in two dog houses across the street from the track. E. Douglas Prime's Kitty Kidd, the

Quest for Lost Glory Brings Alsab North to Louisville

Miami, Fla., March 30.—Alsab, the colt that came to Florida last fall hailed as another Man o'War, but couldn't win a race all winter, heads Northward Wednesday to try to recapture his lost glory in the Kentucky Derby.

If he stands up well through the train trip in Louisville, the 1941 2-year-old champion will be sent from there to Baltimore to make his first start of the spring in the $15,000 added Chesapeake Stakes at Havre de Grace April 18.

"It all depends on how he ships," Owner Al Sabath said today.

"He's in good shape now. Why, he breezed a mile in 1 minute 43 1-5 seconds without trying."

Despite his Florida failures, the gentle, grapefruit-eating thoroughbred still ranks as one of the top advance favorites for the Derby—where his great juvenile record won't penalize him with a heavier burden than the other horses must carry.

In every race at Hialeah, Alsab had to give away enough pounds to prove a big handicap. Even in the $50,000 Widener, running against one of the best fields of champions ever to go to the post at the same time, the Sabath colt was top-weighted, on the pounds-per-age scale.

Alsab made the best showing of his brief 3-year-old campaign in the Widener, finishing a game fifth, and since then has been rested before starting serious work for the Derby.

He has gained so much weight that Sabath said he may enter the big race 75 pounds heavier than he was in the Widener.

The Chesapeake will provide a good clue of the horse's progress, if he should run, because many of the leading 3-year-olds are entered in that recognized Derby preview.

Buck Newsom Comes to Nats In Cash Deal

only 11, and in 1940 he virtually pitched the Tigers to a pennant by turning in 21 victories against 5 defeats.

It was in the World Series of that year that Newsom became something of a national hero, winning two of the first six games for the Tigers. When his father died during the series, Newsom stayed with the team to "pitch one for dad" and with one day's rest turned in a classic in the seventh and decisive game. He was beaten, 2 to 1, because of a lapse in the Detroit infield.

It was following the triumphs of 1940, that Newsom earned the headlines as the highest-paid pitcher in baseball, gaining a contract from grateful Club Owner Walter O. Briggs that called for a $32,000 salary in 1941.

That 1941 season was one of Newsom's worst. He was started 36 times, knocked out of the box in 24 games, and ended up with 12 wins and 20 defeats. The Tigers refused to offer him more than $13,000 for 1942, and Newsom stubbornly held out.

Grimth, long famed as baseball's top showman, visualizes Newsom as a powerful drawing card for the Nats with their 21 night games of this season. That was a potent factor in his willingness to buy and sign a player who couldn't come to terms with the richest club in the league.

Eagles Engage Gulls Tonight

Freddy Weaver, flashy winger, will be back in the line-up, but Center Kenny Ullyot will be inactive due to a dislocated shoulder tonight when the Washington Eagles close their ice hockey season and United States Amateur Hockey Association playoff series against Atlantic City's Sea Gulls in the resort city.

The Eagles, currently tied with the Johnstown Blue Birds for the playoff lead with ten points, can definitely eliminate Johnstown and clinch a tie for the playoff championship in the event of victory. The New York Rovers alone will have a chance of deadlocking the Eagles in the event the locals win tonight, inasmuch as the New Yorkers have three games remaining on schedule and a record of three games won as against two lost.

Maybe It Isn't Sports But Horses Are Horses

Chicago, March 30 (AP).—The national horsepulling contest will be held September 23-24 at Allegan, Mich., the Horse and Mule Association of America, sponsors, announced today. Fifty prizes totaling $2680 will be offered for two classes, covering pairs weighing 3800 pounds and up, and pairs weighing under 3800 pounds and not exceeding 16 hands in height. Pairs entered must be under single ownership.

Boxers 'Happy' About Relief Show Here

George A. Garrett, campaign chairman for the Washington Citizens' Committee for Navy Relief, yesterday proudly displayed a joint letter from two outstanding boxers from the United States Naval Air Station, Jacksonville, Fla., who have been notified that they are eligible to compete on the all-star carnival scheduled for Griffith Stadium on May 21.

Al Nettlow, an outstanding welterweight, and Steve Belloise, ranking middleweight, voiced their acceptance as follows:

"Dear sir: Your letters arrived today, and it made us very happy to know that we were two of the boxers selected to participate in the big show on May 21.

"We feel deeply honored to be considered for the Navy Relief show, and for the opportunity to help out such a worthy cause.

"Our services are available at any time concerning benefits for our armed forces. We are more than willing to do our share; you have our consent, and we will await further orders.

"Keep 'em flying.

Supreme Court Refuses Review Of O'Brien vs. Pabst

By the Associated Press

David O'Brien, Texas Christian University football star in 1938, failed yesterday to get a Supreme Court review of a decision that the Pabst Sales Co., beer distributors, did not invade his privacy in using his picture on a calendar.

The athlete, who sought $50,000 damages from the Pabst firm, appealed from the Fifth Federal Circuit Court.

O'Brien's petition contended that he was "the outstanding college football player" in 1938 and that his picture on the calendar "implied indorsement" of the beer. He told the high court he was humiliated by the use of his picture on 30,000 calendars distributed in 41 States.

Veteran Steward Moves to Keeneland

Lexington, Ky., March 30 (AP).—Sam H. McMeekin, of Louisville, steward at Churchill Downs and Lincoln Fields race tracks, will serve as presiding steward at the Keeneland race track during its spring meeting, April 9-23, it was announced today.

Associate stewards will be Louis A. Beard, William Hamilton and George B. Leach, all of whom have served at the track during previous meetings.

Maryland Awards '42 Open and Jr. Golf Meets to D. C. Clubs

Baltimore Gets Amateur And Women's

Hale America Trials Go to Bannockburn And Hillendale Clubs; 4 Pro-Amateurs Here

The Maryland State Open and Junior Golf Championships were awarded to Washington clubs but the State Amateur and Women's title tournaments will be played in Baltimore according to the 1942 schedule.

Prince Georges club will play host to the Open championship July 21 and the Junior will go to Argyle July 23. Both are 36-hole, one-day affairs.

The Amateur stays in Baltimore for the second straight year, this time going to the Five Farms course of the Baltimore Country Club the weekend of June 25-27. The women's tournament will be played at the C. C. of Maryland the same week, June 23-27.

Nine pro-amateur tournaments which will be run in conjunction with the Middle Atlantic P.G.A. championship were divided, five to Baltimore and four to this city, at Manor, Congressional, Kenwood and Indian Spring.

The State association has set aside Monday, May 25, as the intra-city qualifying dates for the Hale America tournament to be played the latter part of June in Chicago. Baltimore's trials will be played at Hillendale, while the District Golf Association will sponsor the District tests at Bannockburn.

Washington also was slated to get the final sectional tests bringing together professionals and top flight amateurs from New York to Atlanta and as far West as Ohio, on the weekend of June 6 and 7. The only three District clubs contacted — Chevy Chase, Congressional and Columbia—are now likely to go to either New York, Atlanta, Cleveland or Cincinnati. The District was the only city in the Mid-Atlantic sector under consideration.

May 1-8, Maryland State handicap week, all clubs.
May 15-16, intercollegiate championship, Bonnie View.
May 18, pro-amateur, Congressional.
May 23, Hale America intera-city qualifying rounds, Hillendale and Bannockburn.
May 30-31, Memorial Day Red Cross tournaments, all clubs.
June 1, pro-amateur, C. C. of Maryland.
June 6-7, Hale America sectional qualifying rounds, site undecided.
June 25-26-27, State amateur championship, Five Farms.
June 23-24-25-26-27, State women's championship, C. C. of Maryland.
July 4-5, Independence Day Red Cross tournaments, all clubs.
July 8, mixed two-ball, Chevy Chase.
July 13, pro-amateur, Rolling Road.
July 14, junior open, Roland Park.
July 21, Maryland Open, Prince Georges (formerly Beaver Dam).
July 23, State junior championship, Argyle.
July 27 pro-amateur, Manor.
August 10, pro-amateur, Hillendale.
August 16, mixed two-ball, Hillendale.
August 23, father-and-son championship, C. C. of Maryland.
August 24, pro-amateur, Kenwood C. C.
September 2, State senior championship, Green Spring Valley.
September 5-6-7, Labor Day Red Cross tournament, all clubs.
September 14, pro-amateur, Suburban.
September 28, pro-amateur, Indian Spring.
September 13-20-27, October 4, State team matches, Washington and Baltimore.
October 5, pro-amateur, Elkridge.

A's Win in Prison

San Quentin, Calif., March 30 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics brought major league baseball inside the walls of San Quentin Prison for the first time today and handed the home boys a 4-1 defeat.

Ken Richardson, a rookie after six years in the minors, drove in the winning run in celebration of the news that he will be retained on the squad. Richardson has been holding down first base in the absence of Dick Siebert, erstwhile holdout who joins the team this week.

Manager Connie Mack announced he would use him elsewhere in the infield and he may get a chance to replace either Crash Davis or Al Ruebling at second.

Giants Blanked

Jacksonville, Fla., March 30 (AP).—For the second time in three days a pair of Cleveland Indian left-handers blanked the New York Giants. Today it was Chubby Dean and Harry Eisenstat who held the men of Mel Ott to three singles and defeated them, 2 to 0.

Billy Jurges and Bill Werber rapped singles in the third, but couldn't fashion a run, and Ott got the final blow, another single, in the ninth.

Four straight hits, topped off by Jeff Heath's long double, brought Cleveland its two markers in the third. Lou Boudreau, young manager of the club, started with a single and was followed by Roy Weatherly and Ken Keltner who registered similar blows to fill the bases.

Then came Heath's wallop which Hank Lieber almost caught.

Angels Beat Cubs

Los Angeles, Calif., March 30 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs dropped a 3-2 decision to their Los Angeles farm club today, the National Leaguers making only five hits off German (Pete) Mallory who went the route for the Angels.

The Cubs were ahead 2-1 in the third when Toto Pressnell was safe on an error, Stan Hack doubled and Charley Gilbert scored both runners with a single. Los Angeles tied the count with a run in the fifth and made their winning run in the seventh when Cub Shortstop Len Merullo threw high to first attempting a double play which would have retired the side.

Komaroff Bests Krauser For Alleged Mat Crown

Uline Feature Ends in 28 Minutes; The Octopus Bows Before Swedish Angel

By Oscar Elder

Flash! A new world's champion was crowned at Uline's Ice Palace last night as some 1200 awed spectators sat in stunned silence. The title transferred was the alleged world's junior heavyweight wrestling championship, and it was captured by one Ivan Komaroff, listed as a Russian Cossack, by virture of his gruelling 28-minute victory over bulky Karol Krauser of Poland.

The lank-haired Russian used a couple of flying tackles and a body press to take the match, and by way of reward he received a lot of hysterical applause, a gilt belt sadly in need of dry cleaning, and a thoroughly sweaty workout.

The bout was clean throughout, like a couple of good amateur matmen at work, and Krauser, the former champ, was generally master of the situation—until the twenty-eighth minute when Ivan pulled his coup.

Komaroff had a unique way of peering through his bangs at his opponent, which endeared him to the fans, and whenever he suffered at Krauser's hands he did it so beautifully that the entire house was with him.

Rematch Possible

Rumor has it that Krauser will get a rematch soon, and it is a better than even bet that the crown will once more rest on his furrowed brow.

The Swedish Angel, otherwise known as Ollie Olafson, won a tainted semiwindup from something called the Octopus, Impresario Jack Pfieffer's latest seal, when the oddity was diqualified after 19 minutes. He made the slight mistake of hanging Referee Barney Rosenberg's neck in between two strands of the ropes, and Rosenberg peevishly sent him to the showers.

Mr. Octopus, who resembles something out of a nightmare by Walt Disney, was rough all the way, and poor old Angel really suffered from a barrage of slugging and strangling.

Ollie, whose skull gives credence to the thought that he must have run under a low bridge as a small boy, looks bad enough normally, but when he suffers he's horrible!

Octopus Rallies

The Octopus made a comeback in the nightcap when he conquered George Becker, the lone survivor, in the five-man rassle royal. This was a consolation affair for all the losers of the preceding matches and it finally boiled down to The Octopus and Becker after King Kong Marshall, Zimba Parker and Chief Bamba Tabu had been scrapped in that order. Then the 250-pounder used a body slam and press to win from Becker in 11 minutes.

The Arabian shiek, Emir Jo Jo defeated George Becker with a body press in 13, and Irish Jack Kelly butted Chief Tabu, the Seminole Indian, who isn't quite sure where Miami is, into submission in 18 minutes.

Zimba Parker, the colored hercules, and bewhiskered King Kong Marshall were both disqualified in the opener for assaulting the referee, who had ventured into the inclosure without his seeing-eye dog.

United Brethren Defeats Calvary

Center Bradley, of the United Brethren five, paced D. C. Recreation League individual scorers last night with a 22-point performance, leading his team to a 36-23 triumph over Calvary Baptist.

In other games Calvary Methodist defeated Douglas, 33-20; Ninth Street swamped Petworth, 69-39; National City won over Chevy Chase, 37-27; Epiphany stopped Francis Asbury, 44-27; Bureau of Aeronautics downed Bellman, 29-18, and A. G. O. defeated the Bluejays, 42-34.

Willis Bowls Record 204—In Practice

R. L. Willis, expert duckpinner in several Silver Spring leagues, dropped in Hugh Arbaugh's alleys yesterday afternoon for a bit of practice and in a 2-ball game posted the colossal total of 204. Willis had four strikes—three of them coming in a row—and five spares in the game, missing only in the third box when he got a nine count. The big game established a record for the alleys.

NAVY LEAGUE

The Navy Department boys at Arcadia had Jerry Small, Aeronautics, as the hero of the night with his 148 single which he turned into a 416 set effort. Navigation and Op-Nav were the teams to share honors with respective highs of 608 and 1772.

ODD FELLOWS

A 142 game and 368 set by Al Dobbins, Canton, and 139-382 by Walter Lund, Eastern, topped the Odd Fellows at Brookland with the latter's mates posting high team set of 1700 as a 593 game was high as rolled by Covenant. Amity No. 1 and Golden Rule are the first two in the standing with the former 5½ games ahead.

ICE PALACE

Dick Goodridge's 152-389 and Tom Lozupone's 382 led the Clyde Kelly Bible Class loop at the Ice Palace and sparked their Athletics to high set of 1660 with a 581 total winning the high game honors for the Redskins. In the A section of the league the Lions and Redskins share the leadership with the Senators first in the B League.

CLARENDON

Johnny Giove's 134 for Buckingham Barbers and Ralph Mason's 388 for Ralph's Barbers topped the Clarendon Commercial "C" League with both teams winning three from opponents, the first from Strickler Heating and the latter from Lyon Park Cleaners. Ralph's boys also posted team highs, a 598 game and 1691 set. Both Rynex Service and Arnold Bus won sweeps over opponents.

Chicago Star Tops Keglers At Columbus

By the Associated Press

Columbus, Ohio, March 30.—Raymond Hultquist, of Chicago, crashed the maples for a 735 series to take first place in the singles at the American Bowling Congress today.

After turning in games of 223 and 233, Hultquist missed the first frame of the third game, getting only nine pins. Needing at least ten strikes in a row to take over the top spot, he went out and got 11 to total 279.

He replaced Robert Tritschler, of Norwood, Ohio, who had 731.

Lloyd Oliver, of Chicago moved into ninth place in the singles with an even 700, and Kenneth Nelson and Walter Smith, of Minneapolis, took over seventh place in the doubles with 1291.

Shucco Beats Buddy Walker

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, March 30.—Tony Shucco, Boston heavyweight, rallied after a slow start tonight to win a unanimouse 12-round decision from Buddy Walker of Columbus.

Shucco, weighting 186 pounds, showed signs of his long layoff from the ring in the first five rounds, but from the sixth on found the range over the Ohio battler, a 2-to-1 favorite. Walker scaled 198½.

brought the Tigers' lead to 4-0 in the fourth, and the Nats had as yet no resemblance to a hit. In the sixth all of a sudden the Nats began to score and didn't stop until they tied the score. The rally was composed of McNair's fumble of Vernon's grounder, walks to Vernon and Early which filled the bases with none out, a walk to Repass by new pitcher Trucks that forced a run home, a freaky single by Pofahl that got another home, Campbell's infield out that scored a third and Kvasnak's infield hit that tied the score.

The Tigers bounced right back to assault Cathey for the winning runs. They got two in the seventh on Radcliff's single, a base on balls and McNair's single. They got two more in the eighth. Jimmy Bloodworth, former Nat, pounded a triple to center and scored on an error by Case, and a bit later Cramer and McCosky singled for another run.

Tomorrow the Nats meet the Reds at Tinker Field and will be trying not to lose their third straight in the Grapefruit League.

Tip From Miller Huggins Turned Greensboro Champ Sam Byrd From Outfielding to Golfing

By Fritz Littlejohn
Associated Press Sports Writer

Greensboro, N. C., March 30.—A vision of Ben Hogan storming home with some fantastically low round haunts the other pros along the golf circuit, even when they are winning.

While Sam Byrd, the former ball player, finished the Greensboro Open yesterday with a winning 279, they told him he was low man. His only reply was: "What's Hogan doing?"

Hogan was making a typical finish that boosted him from far down the list to second place, two shots behind Byrd.

The late Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, gave Sammy the tip that caused him to take golf over baseball as a career.

"If you see where you can save $60,000 in baseball by the time you are 35," Huggins said, "then it's a good career. Otherwise, get out."

Byrd got out. "I'm gambling on a 35-year career in golf against five years in baseball," Sammy added.

Yesterday morning after his only poor round of the meet, a 75, Byrd got a wire from his wife and 2½-year-old daughter, Donna, in Birmingham, Ala.: "Donna said her daddy was going to win a lot of money for us today. Love, Donna and Rae." Rae, otherwise Mrs. Byrd, is a fine golfer, too, having a three handicap.

No one in the galleries following Les Kennedy after his sweet 66 at Pinehurst knew what pressure was on Larruping Les, of Lynn. Later the guileless youngster told reporters frankly he had $6.15 and that he owed $6 of that for a dollar-a-day room in a tourist home. "I had arranged to borrow ten bucks to get to Greensboro," he said.

His winnings of $337.50 fixed everything except the fact that the tires on his jalopy are getting thin.

Another uninhibited member of the touring caravan is Rod Munday, whose left-handed putting injected the oddest note of many seasons into the winter swing. After dropping each putt, he would yell "Yip-eee!"

His real name is Ronald, he says, adding, "but don't nobody know it but me and momma."

Chips shots: Jimmy Demaret, golf's laughing boy, wearing a mustard-colored flannel jacket and laughing into a telephone like an alarm clock running down. He looks wonderful, physically and sartorially, and expects to do well in the Masters at Augusta despite the fact he dropped out after three holes here. Ben Hogan, who goes after his third straight Asheville triumph beginning Thursday, had 34 putts on one of his 67s at Pinehurst—which means he had 33 shots from tee-to-green, a record of some kind, over such a course. The top-flight boys are so near to perfection, it is hard to pick and choose just from the way they swing, but if Lloyd Mangrum isn't one of greatest shotmakers of all time some of the greensiders are mistaken—he's picture perfect.

Telephone Net Off $66,642 In February

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. yesterday reported net income of $101,668 in February, as compared with $168,310 in the same month last year.

A sharp increase in operating expenses more than offset a $323,000 climb in operating revenues during the month. February operating revenues totaled $1,498,759, as compared with $1,175,882 last year. Operating expenses were $1,190,905, against $818,964 last year. Tax deductions for the month were $116,584, compared with $123,755 last year.

For the first two months this year C. & P. net income totaled $262,469, against $337,398 in the same 1941 period, or a drop of $74,929.

Meanwhile, it was announced yesterday that directors of C. & P. had approved an additional expenditure of $3,373,000 for plant expansion and day-to-day requirements. Of this amount about $1,725,000 is for routine work, while $500,000 will be spent on additional interoffice lines to handle the rapidly increasing demands for service.

As reported previously, the C. & P. had 333,602 telephones in service at the end of February, an all-time local record.

Verbal Duel on 'Reuther Plan' Scheduled Today With Author and G.M. President as Contestants

Detroit, March 30.—In the auditorium of the big General Motors building here tomorrow the corporation's President Charles E. Wilson and Walter P. Reuther, director of the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) will discuss publicly for the first time the much controverted "Reuther Plan" for speeding military aircraft production.

Invited to the meeting which Wilson has termed a "joint press conference" where dozens of news writers, business associates of the two principals and George Denny, of New York, who will act as moderator.

No rules were announced for the questions-and-answers program; neither was there any promise of a formal appraisal of conclusions.

The joint conference was Wilson's idea. He suggested it after having said some weeks ago that "because of its weaknesses" industry had not author of the plan, accepted the invitation, although author of hte plan, accepted the invitation, although he said a few weeks ago that "the time for talk" had passed.

The plan, first broached by Reuther in the summer of 1940, asserted that if all idle men and machinery in the automobile industry were fully mobilized, it would be possible, after six months of preparation, to turn out 500 of the most modern fighting planes a day.

Reuther has discussed the plan publicly many times and has no doubts as to its practicability. Wilson has read it "several times," and once said that Reuther had refrained from discussing it with him because, he, Wilson, "understood it."

The meeting brings together the engineering viewpoint as represented by the white-haired, yet youthful-appearing, 51-yearold Wilson, and that of the expert tool and die worker who majored in economics in college in the engaging, quick-thinking Reuther, who will be 35 years old next September.

C. E. WILSON

W. P. REUTHER

The principals appeared agreed on one point respecting the plan as they prepared to debate it —that it was not a conversion proposal but one that contemplated use of "the excess capacity of the industry."

'Shuttle' Plan May Alleviate Sugar Shortage

By the Associated Press

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., March 30. Trainloads of raw sugar will roll to refineries daily from Florida under a sugar shuttle service that became effective with the arrival of the first ship from Cuba yesterday.

W. H. Cross, assistant chief of the War Production Board's sugar section, saw a possibility that rationing of the food product might be eased under the plan which is designed to release shipping for war service.

One ship, shuttling back and forth on the short haul between Cuba or Puerto Rico and Florida, can do the work of several which formerly took the raw product to refineries in States to the North, Cross said. Railroads will haul it from Florida.

"The shuttle service will release 80 per cent of the ships which would have been needed for sugar shipments had not this service been arranged," said Cross.

New Restrictions Put on Refiners

To prevent further depletion of sugar supplies along the East Coast, particularly in New England, the War Production Board yesterday ordered refiners to restrict deliveries of cane sugar to States adjacent to their plant.

The WPB order set the April delivery quota on refined sugar at 80 per cent of the April, 1941, deliveries, extended beet sugar deliveries into some areas normally served by cane producers; ordered beet sugar producers to set aside 15 per cent of their existing stocks and 15 per cent of future monthly output for Government allocation, and applied restrictions to all industrial sugar users, large and small.

The order included this restriction on the sale and shipment of domestic refined sugar:

Refiners in the New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore areas may ship to points only in the States of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pensylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

In addition, the new controls restrict all industrial users of sugar, including small bakers, candy manufacturers, carbonated beverage bottlers and others who usually accept deliveries of sugar from jobbers or wholesalers. The latter are forbidden to deliver to industrial consumers more than their prescribed quota. Exempted from these provisions are hotels and restaurants.

Stock Turnover Is Lightest Since Last May As General List Drifts in Narrow Range

New York, March 30.—It was a case of self-rationing in the stock market today and, while many leaders managed to show a modest hecovery trend, others held to Saturday's levels or slipped a shade.

Hesitancy ruled at the start of the sluggish proceedings. Timid bidding then appeared for scattered favorites and, at the close, advances of fractions to a point or so were fairly well distributed.

A little bullishness emanated from the thought the market had drifted far enough on the downside and was due for a good rally providing international developments warranted. On the other hand, some speculative and investment reluctance still was attributed to tax doubts, spreading Federal controls and the question of whether India would fall in with the British proposals of dominion status after the war. Bulletins from the battle fronts again had scant influence on trends.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 34.4. Transfers of 229,290 shares were among the smallest since last May and compared with 313,440 Friday.

Further strength in cotton futures was a prop for sentiment. This staple was up 60 to 95 cents a bale at a new 13-year peak. At Chicago wheat was unchanged to 70¼ of a cent a bushel, corn ahead ¾ to 1⅛ and hogs 10 to 20 cents advanced at the highest marks in 16 years. Bonds were selectively improved.

Zenith Radio was one of the few stocks to touch a new 1942 top with a modest gain. Others in front at the finish included General Motors, Chrysler, American Telephone, Union Carbide, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Chesapeake & Ohio, Douglas Aircraft, Deere, Anaconda, American Can and General Electric.

Allied Chemical dropped 3 points on a few trades. Others on the offside were International Harvester, United Aircraft, Santa Fe, Woolworth, Westinghouse, J. C. Penny, Du Pont, Johns-Manville, Air Reduction and Cerro de Pasco.

Montgomery Ward "A" jumped 2¾ points in the curb on a meager turnover. Lesser advances were recorded for Glen Alden Coal, Cities Service, Fairchild Engine and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. Among losers were Aluminum of America, Creole Petroleum, Brewster Aero, Lake Shore and N. J. Zinc. The aggregate here approximated 47,000 shares against 55,000 in the previous full session.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Best & Co Sales Set Peak

Best & Co., which operates a retail outlet in Washington, recorded its largest sales volume in history in the fiscal year ended January 31, 1942, according to the financial report received here yesterday. Sales aggregated $17,787,990, an increase of 6.57 per cent over sales of $16,384,120 in the previous year.

The company reported net profit of $1,055,495, equivalent to $3.49 a share. This compares with net of $1,111,398, or $3.63 a share, in the previous year. The company's entire preferred stock issue of $140,200 was retired on January 31, the company reported.

Bond Tenders Asked

The Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., of Baltimore, which has many bondholders in Washington and area, has announced a plan of liquidation for the $17,299,170 face amount of debentures outstanding. These debentures were issued in 1934 under a refunding plan in exchange for the bonds of 14 predecessor companies.

The estimated liquidating value of the outstanding debentures is figured at $27.41 per $100 face amount without giving value to the guarantee of interest. Holders have been invited to submit tenders before May 1.

Arnold Print Works Plans to Liquidate

North Adams, Mass., March 30 (AP). Directors of the Arnold Print Works announced today they had voted to recommend liquidation of the 79-year-old corporation because of inability to obtain supplies of cloth for conversion into dress goods and draperies.

The proposal to discontinue the business will be presented to the stockholders at a meeting May 1.

The directors said they could see no immediate prospect of a change in the situation, and therefore recommended immediate liquidation while the company could pay its creditors in full.

Lehman Brothers Get Union Electric Issue

New York, March 30 (AP).—The Union Electric Co. of Missouri today awarded to Lehman Brothers a new ten-million-dollar issue of 3⅜ per cent first mortgage bonds due in 1971 on a bid of 109.28011. Seven other firms submitted bids.

Formal proffering of the bonds was expected to be made on Wednesday.

SALABLE CATTLE—Receipts, 13,000; calves, 1000; fed steers and yearlings weak to 25 lower; weighty steers off most; supply choice offerings small, but shipper demand narrow; largely 11.25@14.75 steer and yearling trade; best early 15.65 paid for 1365-lb. averages; heifers steady; mostly 11.25@12.50; best early 13.25; cows and bulls strong to 15 higher; cutter cows to 8.50; heavy sausage bulls to 10.25; vealers steady at 15.50 down; latter price paid freely on late rounds; stock cattle scarce, firm at 10.75@11.75.

New York Cotton

New York, March 30 (AP).—Cotton futures prices climbed to the highest levels in 13 years today, the rise being credited to mill buying to fix prices on raw cotton, short covering and Wall Street purchasing.

Closing prices were 60 to 95 cents a bale higher. Early gains had ranged to $1.25 a bale.

Spinners were anticipating huge Government contracts, for bids were to be opened tomorrow at the Philadelphia Army Quartermasters Depot on an estimated 350,000,000 yards of cotton textiles, including numerous types of cloth.

Following a .15 of a cent rise in the average price of spot cotton at 10 designated markets the ceiling price on "A" print cloths effective tomorrow will be advanced ½ cent to 48 cents a pound, the highest ceiling since the flexible schedule was put into effect.

The mills' returns on the Government contracts will thus be enhanced by that ½-cent gain.

Record Pork Buying Booms Prices of Hogs

By the Associated Press

Chicago, March 30.—Hog prices spurted 10 to 20 cents a hundred pounds today, hitting new 16-year peaks, in response to a small supply, strong wholesale pork quotations and disclosure that the Government last week purchased a record quantity of pork and lard.

Choice hogs sold for -13.'5 a hundred pounds, the best price swine have brought in the local market since October 1', 1926. Average price rose to about $13.75, highest since June, 1926.

The Agricultural Marketing Administration announced Saturday that it had purchased 36,324,784 pounds of pork and lard during the week. This was the largest weekly purchase since the buying program began in March, 1941. Buying by the AMA is primarily for lend-lease shipment abroad.

Trade circles pointed out that packers' sales of pork to the AMA may be made at prices 2 cents a pound higher than prevailing ceilings on pork in wholesale markets. This ruling of the Office of Price Administration, announced last Wednesday, has enabled packers to pay more for live hogs, traders said.

Light pork loins sold at 26 to 27 cents a pound wholesale, up ½ to 1 cent from last weekend. These cuts were the highest they have been since the OPA announced, on March 10, that it would place a ceiling over wholesale pork. They were only ½ cent a pound under the ceiling.

Cities Service Net Climbs to $14,283,893

By the Associated Press

New York, March 30.—Cities Service Co. and subsidiaries reported today for 1941 consolidated net income of $14,283,893 compared with $9,928,029 in 1940.

After allowing for dividend requirements for 1941 only on three classes of preferred stock, all of which are in arrears, 1941 earnings were equal to $2.90 a share on the common, compared with $1.72 a share, in 1940.

Net income for Cities Service Co. alone in 1941 amounted to $4,899,730, compared with $6,799,684 in 1940.

The company and its subsidiaries spent 31 million dollars for new construction and acquisitions in 1941 and reduced by $11,852,000 the consolidated funded debt, notes and preferred stock in the hands of the public.

W. Alton Jones, president, told stockholders that while Government supervision of the oil industry was undesirable in peacetime, the present emergency had created the necessity for such action and the petroleum industry was cooperating fully with the oil coordinator and his staff.

Sales of petroleum products increased by 152 million gallons in 1941 over the preceding year, Jones said, more than offsetting a decline of 43 million gallons in export sales.

Shell Union Oil Nets $1.32 a Share

The Shell Union Oil Corporation and subsidiaries reported 1941 net income of $17,334,214, equal to $1.32 a share of common stock, compared with 1940 income of $15,654,678, or $1.05 a share after provisions for dividends on preferred stock then outstanding.

The company's 1941 net operating income was $21,334,214 but of that sum 4 million dollars was set aside for a special reserve.

Deposits Fall 555 Million on Tax Payments

By the Associated Press

Heavy withdrawals of bank deposits to pay Federal income taxes were shown yesterday in bank reports to the Federal Reserve Board.

In the week ended March 25, banks in 101 leading cities said their demand deposits fell 436 million dollars. In the preceding week the same banks reported a demand deposit decline of 119 million dollars, making net withdrawals in the two weeks 555 million dollars.

The banks reported also that commercial, industrial and agricultural loans declined 27 million dollars last week.

The board's 101-city member bank condition statement gave the following summary of assets and liabilities on March 25, together with the increase or decrease since the previous week and the corresponding week last year, (in millions of dollars):

200,000 More Homes Needed, Realtors Told

Buffalo, N. Y., March 30 (AP).—Private industry must provide at least 200,000 homes for warworkers within the next few months and probably another 225,000 before the end of the year, David B. Simpson, of Portland, Oreg., president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said today.

Simpson told the Buffalo Real Estate Board that greater use of existing industrial plants in war production rather than new plants in new locations should "head off the evils of great population shifts, and put more work where workers and their housing, transportation, schools, and other facilities already are located."

Steel Rate to Drop Slightly in Week

New York, March 30 (AP).—Steel operations will decline slightly this week to an estimated output of 1,678,200 tons, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported today. The rate of operations will be at 98.8 per cent of capacity.

In the preceding week operations were at 99 per cent and output 1,681,600 tons. A month ago it was 97.2 and 1,651,100 tons and a year ago 99.2 per cent of capacity and production at 1,601,000 tons.

It was the first decline since the week of January 26.

The small decline, coming on top of four consecutive weeks in which new highs in output had been achieved, was looked upon in steel circles as a natural development of such a fast pace of production.

It was pointed out that when steel mills get around the top in their output drive, equipment is strained to the limit and temporary shutdowns of furnaces for small repairs are more frequent. It was believed an accumulation of such incidents this week was responsible for the minor decline in expected operations.

$5,660,000 Rail Issue Authorized

By the Associated Press

The Interstate Commerce Commission granted yesterday an application of the Southern Pacific Co. for the issuance of equipment trust certificates amounting to $5,660,000.

The Pennsylvania Co. for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities will issue the certificates at 100.009 per cent of par and accrued dividends. Total cost of the box cars and flat cars to be purchased is estimated at $7,111,401.

Visible Grain Supply

New York, March 30 (AP).—The visible supply of American grain showed the following changes from a week ago (in bushels): wheat decreased 1,272,000; corn decreased 1,119,000; oats decreased 325,000; rye increased 365,000; barley decreased 168,000.

WPB Forbids Rubber Use in 20 More Items

By the Associated Press

The War Production Board banned the use of crude rubber and latex in about 20 additional products yesterday, and curtailed the amount which may be used in some 50 other articles.

The new lists—a second revision of the original rubber curtailment order—represents a gradual approach toward placing all crude rubber processing on an allocation basis.

The latest order prohibits use of crude rubber and latex in brewers' hose, wringer rolls, fountain syringes, acoustic aids, hatters' belts, and hat-forming bags, switchboard mats and matting, vacuum cleaner belts, hard-rubber syringes and dental dams. Reclaimed rubber, however, may continue to be used.

Common nail manufacturers were requested by the WPB yesterday to increase production to 72,000 tons a month, because lumber is largely replacing steel in wartime building construction.

The 26 manufacturers had monthly production averaging 55,000 tons in 1940, and 65,000 tons in 1941. The request included instructions to sell the products only to jobbers and other buyers having priority ratings.

Late Earnings Statements

Zenith Radio Corporation and subsidiaries reported profit of $1,596,450 before Federal taxes in the nine months ended January 31 of the current fiscal year. This compared with profit of $1,465,377 before Federal taxes in the nine months ended January 31, 1941. E. F. McDonald, jr., president, said that after deducting estimated Federal taxes net income for the nine months this year would amount to $1,033,343 or $2.10 a share. Comparative figures for the same period last year were not available.

Crown Cork & Seal Co. and wholly owned domestic subsidiaries reported 1941 net profit of $2,929,861, equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to $4.68 a share of common stock, compared with 1940 profit of $2,525,968, or $3.90 a share.

Philco Corp. reported 1941 net income of $2,513,569, equal to $1.83 a share of common stock, compared with 1940 income of $2,248,568, or $1.64 a share.

Continental Oil Co. and subsidiaries reported for 1941 net income of $15,398,082, equal to $3.29 a capital share. This compared with $4,317,657, or 92 cents a share in 1940.

Plymouth Oil Co. reported for 1941 net income of $1,546,894, equal to $1.48 a capital share, against $1,442,739, or $1.38 a share, in 1940.

Wesson Oil & Snowdrift Co. reported for six months ended February 28 net profit of 31,070,262, equal to 83 cents a share on the common stock, against $781,259, or 33 cents a share, in the comparable period a year ago.

Inspiration Consolidated Copper Co. reported 1941 net profit of $2,265,924 after charges, but before depletion, equal to $1.92 a capital share, against $2,212,688, or $1.87 a share, in 1940.

Virginian Railway Co. reported net income for February, 1942, was $359,711, a compared with $759,402 for February, 1941; and $899,060 for January-February, as compared with $1,590,520 for January-February, 1941.

New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad reported a net income of $625,739 for February against $90,982 for the corresponding month a year ago.

Union Bag & Paper Corporation reported net income last year was $2,168,313, equal to $1.70 a share on 1,272,437 shares of capital stock outstanding, compared with 1940 net income of $2,134,391. Net sales last year totaled $27,871,007 against $22,081,033 in 1940, a 26 per cent gain. The company's Federal income and excess profits taxes in 1941, totaling $3,313,692, increased 112 per cent over the 1940 tax total of $1,562,000.

Grant Co., department store chain, reported net income for the year ended January 31, 1942, of $4,446,393, equal after preferred dividend deductions, to $3.44 a share of common stock, compared with the previous year's earnings of $3,542,211, or $2.68 a common share. The company's sales of $130,555,907 represented a 16.8 per cent increase over the 1940 figures.

Fairchild Plans Sharp Increase in Women Workers

New York, March 30 (AP).—Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation today said employment of women in its factories had been so successful that their number would be increased to 50 per cent of the entire working personnel as military needs decrease availability of men.

"Experience has shown," the company said in a report of its annual earnings, "that women can be rapidly taught to perform any repetitive operations in either wood or metal except those requiring heavy lifting.

"Once taught, they exhibit great manual dexterity and a talent for strict adherence to the procedures requisite for precision."

The firm said 1941 consolidated net income was $541,079, compared with a deficit of $60,772 the previous year.

$49,000,000 Bond Maturity Faces D. & H.

New York, March 30 (AP).—The Delaware & Hudson Co., is studying plans for meeting the maturity in May, 1943, of 49 million dollars of its first and refunding 4 per cent bonds, Josepr H. Nuelle, president, said today in the annual report.

A committee has been considering the matter since last November, he said, and "when it is felt to be in the best interests of the security holders of this company, a fair and equitable plan to provide for this maturity will be proposed."

Nuelle said that while there had been some improvement in the "bootleg" coal situation in Pennsylvania, the problem on the whole was still a formiable one for the company.

War Plant to Refund Profits Above Average

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 30 (AP).—Directors of the Wayne Pump Co. have voted to refund to the Government any net profits, above taxes, for this year which exceed the company's net profits, after taxes, for the last five years.

ODD BODKINS — BY FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

SIR ECHO SAID I GOT TO FEED A WIZZLEBERRY TO "THE MAN WITH THE FUNNY MOUSTACHE!"
AND WHAT IF YOU DON'T?
HE SAID IF I DON'T DO IT, I'LL PROBABLY FIND MYSELF MARRIED TO DAISY GLUTZ! I GOT TO TAKE MY CHOICE!
DAISY GLUTZ? OH, GOLLY!
DID I HEAR SOMEONE MENTION MY NAME, OR WAS I ONLY HEARING THINGS?
YOU WERE ONLY HEARING THINGS, DAISY!
ANYBODY WITH BRAINS WOULD KNOW WHAT MY CHOICE IS GONNA BE!
TELL ME, MR. WHITTLE—WHAT IS IT GONNA BE?

It becomes quite obvious that Edward G. Robinson is a many-sided man.

There's the aspect in which, for example, for the delectation of movie audiences, Mr. Robinson portrays, very deliciously, some fairly monstrous types associated with the criminal world.

There's another in which, for the pleasure of a large and avid radio public, he assumes the quite contrary role of a most righteous and energetic editor who crusades indefatigably against the very thought of crime. That would be in "Big Town," which you hear over WJSV and the Columbia network every Tuesday night.

Then there are the reports one hears about Mr. Robinson's home life—in which he's neither one of these black and white things, but a gentle art lover, with one of the best collections in the country; a doting father and one of the most charitable citizens in that eminently charitable place known as Hollywood—witness the sizable contribution he made a few months ago to a national charity, a check for $100,000.

Now today comes the announcement that Mr. Robinson is much interested in such practical matters as traffic safety, so much so that he has established the "Big Town Traffic Safety Award," which is to be given to the city which has the lowest average traffic death rate for the past five years.

Through the National Safety Council it's to be awarded on his radio program tonight.

D.G.S. Boosts Defense Goal To $500,000

Members of the District Grocery Stores, Inc., last night at their first rally to promote sale of defense bonds and stamps in their organization decided the $250,000 goal set two weeks ago was not enough and upped the ante to half a million dollars.

It was explained that the 280 member stores in Washington and surrounding areas had already either pledged or bought more than 80 per cent of the original quota.

The meeting was held in the Jewish Community Center, Sixteenth and Q Streets Northwest. Roger J. Whiteford, a member of the speakers bureau of the local defense bonds and stamps committee, spoke.

Isaac Jacobson, president of the D. G. S., is honory chairman of the drive; Joseph Muchnick is chairman, Maurice Kay is cochairman, and Frank M. Fields, Max Rumshin and Herman Eig are members of the committee.

A victory banquet will be held April 26 in the Willard Hotel.

Band to Promote Defense Bond Sale

They are going to strike up the band on the Treasury steps again today to help along the sale of defense bonds.

Johnny Long and his orchestra now appearing at the Earle Theater, will play for 15 minutes, starting at noon, and then will sell defense bonds to all in the crowd who want to buy. The proceedings will last 30 minutes.

"Take Part of Your Change in Defense Stamps" will be America's most generally and often seen sign within a short time. The National Cash Register Co., in cooperation with the Retail Advisory Committee of the Defense Savings Staff, is now distributing the stickers to be placed on three million cash registers in America. Leading retail associations have approved the plan, which is expected to increase the number of stamp sales stations by 50 per cent.

All employes of the Raleigh Hotel have joined in a "Saving for Defense" plan instituted by C. C. Schiffeler, the manager. Each employe sets aside a stated amount each week toward the purchase of a defense bond. Schiffeler started it off with the purchase of a $1000 bond.

Mrs. Henry Pfeil's Burial Tomorrow In Arlington

Funeral services for Mrs. Henry Pfeil, daughter of the late Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Charles W. Hobbs, who died Sunday at Walter Reed Hospital, will be held tomorrow at Fort Myer Chapel with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Pfeil was the wife of Col. H[illegible] Pfeil, 2540 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. A native of Philadelphia, Pa., she had lived here for the last 20 years.

Besides her husband, she leaves a son, Lieut. Robert C. Pfeil, U. S. A.; a daughter, Miss Virginia M. Pfeil, and two brothers, Col. Horace P. Hobbs, of Washington, and Charles W. Hobbs, of Redlands, Calif.

Shooting Victim's Condition Improves

John T. Barber, 21, 2021 Portner Place Northwest, who was accidentally shot Sunday, was reported improved last night by Emergency Hospital officials.

STORE UP IRON for YOUR BLOOD

Get Vitamin B for Your Nerves

When the body craves these vital elements, a rich supply will put color in your cheeks, enrich your blood, benefit your glands and other organs WITHOUT ALCOHOL OR HABIT-FORMING DRUGS.

When your system is low in iron and vitamin B all your organs slow down—you look bad, get tired easily, and feel played out. Iron makes red blood and red blood is vital for healthy muscles, healthy skin, healthy glands and healthy organs. Iron-poor blood may cause low vitality, heart palpitations, shortness of breath, swollen ankles and frequent periods of ill health.

Your nerves need vitamin B and so do your stomach and bowels; if you don't have enough Vitamin B you may get a painful neuritis, stomach upsets, constipation, weak appetite, mental depression, restless sleep and you can suffer in other ways.

In these conditions, you need ENRICH, the thrilling new tonic that tastes like juice of wild cherries and gives you more iron every day than a bushel of spinach or boxes of raisins; more vitamin B daily than 8 ordinary cakes of yeast. Your pep comes back with a bounce when you restore missing iron and Vitamin B, and you eat more, stop worrying, and sleep better. Thousands of men and women feel keen and lead happier lives, through the help of ENRICH. Don't wait.

One bottle, $1.79; full course treatment, large size, $3.19. Money refunded unless ENRICH improves your state of well being.

Hit Them Where It Hurts . . . . BUY BONDS!

Make no mistake—this is a life or death struggle. Men are dying in your defense. Dying that America may be safe!

Give our fighting men the guns, the planes, the tanks they need! Bonds buy bombs. Every dime, every dollar you put into Defense Bonds and Stamps is a blow at the enemy. Hit them where it hurts—buy bonds! Bonds cost as little as $18.75 up—stamps as little as 10 cents up.

Defense Guards Take Up Posts at Bridges and Reservoirs

The District's 30 newly appointed Defense Guards yesterday were assigned to the Seventh, Eighth and Eleventh Precincts and immediately took up their work protecting bridges, aqueducts, and water and sewage installations.

Guards assigned to the Seventh Precinct are stationed at the P and Q Street bridges, the K and M Street and Pennsylvania Avenue bridges, Chain Bridge and Key Bridge; the Eighth Precinct attaches are guarding both the east and west end of Calvert Bridge, Taft Bridge, Connecticut Avenue Bridge and the Fort Reno reservoir, and the Eleventh Precinct guards are protecting Bennings Bridge, John Philip Sousa Bridge, the water reservoir at Eighteenth and W Streets Southeast, the sewage disposal plant at Blue Plains, the Fort Stanton water tower at Naylor Road and Alabama Avenue Southeast, and the pumping station at Eighteenth Street and Minnesota Avenue Southeast.

The defense guards, who will be paid $1320 yearly, have completed a course of basic training in the law of arrests and other pertinent police subjects; another course in the care, use and handling of firearms, and a third in pistol firing.

They will receive one day off each week, and not more than 15 days sick leave with pay a year, to be granted only as it is earned at an approximate rate of 1¼ days a month.

In cases of disability or illness, they may receive treatment at the police and fire clinic but, pending a final ruling, they may not be treated in their homes by members of the board of surgeons.
